Governor Chamberlain Delivers Address to Graduating Class at Lebanon.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Albany, Or., May 27.—Adele, the little 9-year-old daughter of Harry Crawford, a linetype operator in the Herald office, while riding a bicycle on the street last night, fell in such a way as to break her left arm below the elbow. She rode a man's wheel and on turning the corner lost control of the machine, the result being a fail. A physician was at once summoned and the fractured arm set, and the little girl, it is said will seen recover the use of the said, will soon recover the use of the injured member.

During the last few nights some property belonging to the county court and stored in a vacant lot near the court-house has been stolen and a search for the thieves is being made. Two wheels ordered to replace those worn out on one of the county road machines were among the stolen property. One of them was found a block away but the other has not yet been located. It is thought that the theft was the work of mischievous young men.

The seel bridge across the Willamette river at this point has been reopened after being closed for some weeks. The repairs have been completed sufficiently to permit travel.

The bridge has been redecked and a new approach at the Beater country and the seed of the sufficient of the seed of the approach at the Benton county end has been built.

Theatrical Magnate Sued by a Variety Actress for Breach of Promise.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Seattle, Wash., May 27.—Kate Rock-well, a variety actress, yesterday aftersoon filed in the superior court suit to recover $25,000 from Alex Pantages, wher of the largest vaudeville theatre in the city, alleging breach of promise. She says she picked up Pantages in 1900 when he was a waiter in a dance hall at Dawson and lifted him to the position of theatrical manager and a fig-ure in the vaudeville circuit of the northwest. In March, 1995, Pantages married Lois Mendenhall.

Attached to the complaint are letters written by Pantages' partner, Cohen, asking for money. Cohen, the woman claims, wrote all of Pantages' letters. Pantages at first denied that he ever knew the woman, but later said she was a former acquaintance of his.
