

CHAUNCEY OLCOTT AT THE MARQUAM GRAND

NAT C. GOODWIN AT THE MARQUAM GRAND
SAT. MAT. & SAT. NIGHT JUNE 3
THE USURPER AND A GILDED FOOL

THE full is over. With the opening of the Belasco theatre last evening theatricals again became a factor in current local history. Beginning with the lecture of Robert Lee Dunn, the celebrated war correspondent, tomorrow night, the Marquam will keep the lights turned on for most of the summer. Chauncey Olcott, the singing comedian; Nat C. Goodwin, Bertha Creighton for three weeks; Kolb and Dill and the great Lafayette are among the coming attractions. The theatre in which Mrs. Fleke will appear has not been announced, but it is hoped she will not have to give a lecture in Portland, instead of playing.

CLARENCE MONTAINE
COMEDIAN BELASCO STOCK CO.
IN "THE HEART OF MARYLAND"

has been seriously ill for several months in an eastern hospital. The most recent report has it that old man Stoddard is steadily improving, but may never attempt to act again.

SMALL TALK OF STAGE PEOPLE.

Bertha Creighton, who will be seen at the Marquam for three weeks, beginning June 3, is a chicken farmer, having recently acquired one of the best poultry ranches in California, at Petaluma.

Harry Hildebrand, a brother of the celebrated jockey, has gone on the stage as a member of the Alcazar stock company in San Francisco.

The Tivoli, always the first in the field with works which the authors release, is presenting "The Tenderfoot," Frank Curran, the veteran manager of the Florence Roberts company, is to retire at the end of the season and spend his remaining years, so he says, on his California ranch. At Denver recently Mr. Curran was given an elaborate reception by theatrical people.

Nance O'Neil, McKee Rankin and company have gone to Australia for a season.

A note from Fred Emmonson states that he closed with the Avenue theatre stock company in Pittsburgh on the 13th of this month, and had been engaged as stage director of a summer park company under the same management, that of Harry Davidson.

William Bernard is still commanding much attention in Los Angeles. His most recent creation, that of the emperor of an imaginary kingdom in "The Imperial Highway," is characterized by the critics as sensationally excellent. One critic, in fact, wrote: "Mr. Bernard's work is really superb."

Daniel Frawley, who has just begun his tour in "Ransom's Polly," will probably make the first American production of "The Garden of Lies."

MONOLOGUES.

Chauncey Olcott at Marquam.

Chauncey Olcott, popular comedian and charming singer, comes to the Marquam Grand theatre next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights, presenting a new and magnificent production of Augustus Pittor's pretty romantic drama, "A Romance of Athlone."

The piece had a successful run in New York, and is reported to be the best play as to dramatic merit that Mr. Olcott has ever exploited. As the name would indicate, the locale is Ireland and the time the beginning of the past century—a most romantic period in that romantic land. The atmosphere of the play contains all that is dear to the hearts of the romancers. There is an Irish nobleman, with two sons, one good and one bad. There is an heiress and a rich man who also has a beautiful daughter. The love interest comes from the contemplated and delayed marriage of the good son and the heiress. There is a kidnapping, an attempt to get ransom money, and what is necessary to complete any characterization of the time, a duel. The last is a feature of which much is made and is said to be one of the most realistic ever given on the stage. The scenery is gorgeous, the first act showing the exterior of an Elizabethan mansion with rose garden and park; the second act is a carved oak interior; the third a ruined abbey by moonlight; and the fourth a park of ginkgo trees in which the duel takes place. In the course of the play Mr. Olcott will sing new songs, written and composed by himself, and will also interpolate two songs new to his patrons—"Kate Kearney" and "My Dreams" by Tosti, the advance sale of seats will open tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

"A Wicked Woman."

"A Wicked Woman" is the title of the play which will open for a week's run at the Empire this afternoon. Strong and thrilling in every scene, with a delightful vein of comedy, it will doubtless prove one of the best successes of the season. The romantic but not unnatural story of "A Wicked Woman" tells of the suffering one designing woman can cause in this world.

Harry Grantley, a young New York stockbroker, with his wife, Florence, resides in the suburbs of New York City, in a cozy little home which they call Rose cottage. Grantley has lately come into possession of a quarter of a million dollars. This sudden and unexpected accession of wealth renders him dissatisfied with his unpretentious surroundings, and he longs for gay and fashionable life. Florence opposes this, but he is determined to have his way. He goes to a fashionable ball, and there meets a young girl, who is the daughter of a poor man. He falls in love with her, and she with him. He then goes to a fashionable ball, and there meets a young girl, who is the daughter of a poor man. He falls in love with her, and she with him.

Harry Grantley, a young New York stockbroker, with his wife, Florence, resides in the suburbs of New York City, in a cozy little home which they call Rose cottage. Grantley has lately come into possession of a quarter of a million dollars. This sudden and unexpected accession of wealth renders him dissatisfied with his unpretentious surroundings, and he longs for gay and fashionable life. Florence opposes this, but he is determined to have his way. He goes to a fashionable ball, and there meets a young girl, who is the daughter of a poor man. He falls in love with her, and she with him. He then goes to a fashionable ball, and there meets a young girl, who is the daughter of a poor man. He falls in love with her, and she with him.

Harry Grantley, a young New York stockbroker, with his wife, Florence, resides in the suburbs of New York City, in a cozy little home which they call Rose cottage. Grantley has lately come into possession of a quarter of a million dollars. This sudden and unexpected accession of wealth renders him dissatisfied with his unpretentious surroundings, and he longs for gay and fashionable life. Florence opposes this, but he is determined to have his way. He goes to a fashionable ball, and there meets a young girl, who is the daughter of a poor man. He falls in love with her, and she with him. He then goes to a fashionable ball, and there meets a young girl, who is the daughter of a poor man. He falls in love with her, and she with him.

Harry Grantley, a young New York stockbroker, with his wife, Florence, resides in the suburbs of New York City, in a cozy little home which they call Rose cottage. Grantley has lately come into possession of a quarter of a million dollars. This sudden and unexpected accession of wealth renders him dissatisfied with his unpretentious surroundings, and he longs for gay and fashionable life. Florence opposes this, but he is determined to have his way. He goes to a fashionable ball, and there meets a young girl, who is the daughter of a poor man. He falls in love with her, and she with him. He then goes to a fashionable ball, and there meets a young girl, who is the daughter of a poor man. He falls in love with her, and she with him.

ROBERT LEE DUNN
LECTURER ON RUSSIA-JAPANESE WAR
MARQUAM GRAND
MON NIGHT MAY 29

ence. Seats are now selling at the Marquam box office.

Nat C. Goodwin will be seen at the Marquam Grand theatre Saturday matinee and night. In the evening he will give a revival of his society comedy, "A Gilded Fool," a play in which the dominant factor is the love of a true man for a pure woman. It can be readily realized that a play with such a motive appeals to every one and it gives Mr. Goodwin ample opportunity to display his talents as a comedian and actor.

John L. Sullivan will appear all this week at the Star, at every performance, starting tomorrow afternoon. There will be three shows a day, one in the afternoon and two at night. The performances will run about an hour and a half, the longest vaudeville entertainment ever given in Portland. Those who desire to secure tickets early can obtain them by applying at the Star box office in the morning. At the matinee Mr. Sullivan will render a monologue. In the evening Mr. Sullivan will give a sparring exhibition. This will be the most famous vaudeville week in the history of Portland and every one will want to attend the Star. On the Staroscope will be shown a film representing the Corbett-McCoy fight. Mack and Elliott will present a sketch; Mrs. Jules Levy & Co. will contribute musical novelties; Hellman, the magician, will show strange and marvelous tricks; Kosare and Chaplin have a sketch; Melroy Trio will perform a variety of stunts; Richard Burton will render a new illustrated ballad. Decoration day the performances will be the same as on Sundays, continuous from 2 till 11 p. m.

The Grand Theatre.

The Grand, realizing that the coming week will witness the opening of the great exposition, has gathered together a bill that will offer irresistible attractions. Manager Erickson has engaged Emerson's Minstrel Maids, seven in number, who will burlesque oldtime minstrelsy. This is their first appearance in Portland. The Anderson children, greatest child actors in the world, will be presented. Lewis and Harry will present an old-time blackface musical sketch entitled "Old Folks at Home." Marie Sparrow, new to the coast, is a clean monologist and if anything happens in Portland while she is here the public will be treated to rich comment on it. Bingham and Thornton do a vocal travesty which is fine and Ed Mack is a comic dancer of the highest excellence. Joe Bonner will sing an illustrated song composed by Fote and Edwards, Oregon City, entitled "My Old Oregon Home." The crowning glory of the program is the greatest motion picture ever exhibited anywhere in the world, "The Nihilists." Today will be the last chance to see Majuna, the wonderful Indian actress in "The Heart of a Girl." On Decoration day the performances will be continuous from 2 to 11 p. m.

Dunn's Great Lecture.

Robert Lee Dunn, recognized as the foremost of the present day war correspondents and photographers, will deliver his famous illustrated lecture on the Russo-Japanese war at the Marquam theatre Monday evening at 8:30. Mr. Dunn was the first to reach the scene of hostilities, and for a long time was the only American correspondent with either army. He was at Chemulpo on the memorable night of February 8, 1904, when the war began, and took actual photographs of the blowing up of the Korietz and other thrilling scenes accompanying the commencement of the greatest war of modern times.

Mr. Dunn is a lecturer of rare power and his tour, which has covered almost the entire United States, has been one of the most successful of the post-war ventures. He has appeared before immense audiences in New York, Chicago, San Francisco and practically all the larger cities. The story of his remarkable experiences is illustrated with more than 100 stereoscopic views made from his photographs. His appearance in Portland is an event of unusual importance, and he will no doubt be greeted by a large and representative audience.

At the Baker.

Holmes and Holmes in a comedy sketch will be a feature this week at the Baker. Roman ring artists supreme are Avill and Grimm. Rice and Walters in "Why Is a Horse?" will make their first appearance. This act has won much applause, as it is entirely new. The Murwells, operatic singers, formerly of the Castle Square Opera company, will positively appear. Jean Wilson, Portland's favorite baritone, will sing the latest New York craze entitled "Would You?" with new slides. This sensational bill will conclude with the Bakergraph, showing the ever popular life motion pictures. Last chance today to see this week's all-star bill. Continuous today from 1:30 o'clock until 10:30 o'clock.

Star Theatre.

John L. Sullivan will appear all this week at the Star, at every performance, starting tomorrow afternoon. There will be three shows a day, one in the afternoon and two at night. The performances will run about an hour and a half, the longest vaudeville entertainment ever given in Portland. Those who desire to secure tickets early can obtain them by applying at the Star box office in the morning. At the matinee Mr. Sullivan will render a monologue. In the evening Mr. Sullivan will give a sparring exhibition. This will be the most famous vaudeville week in the history of Portland and every one will want to attend the Star. On the Staroscope will be shown a film representing the Corbett-McCoy fight. Mack and Elliott will present a sketch; Mrs. Jules Levy & Co. will contribute musical novelties; Hellman, the magician, will show strange and marvelous tricks; Kosare and Chaplin have a sketch; Melroy Trio will perform a variety of stunts; Richard Burton will render a new illustrated ballad. Decoration day the performances will be the same as on Sundays, continuous from 2 till 11 p. m.

FRANK MONTGOMERY
LEADING MAN, EMPIRE STOCK CO.
IN "A WICKED WOMAN"

plause, as it is entirely new. The Murwells, operatic singers, formerly of the Castle Square Opera company, will positively appear. Jean Wilson, Portland's favorite baritone, will sing the latest New York craze entitled "Would You?" with new slides. This sensational bill will conclude with the Bakergraph, showing the ever popular life motion pictures. Last chance today to see this week's all-star bill. Continuous today from 1:30 o'clock until 10:30 o'clock.

Star Theatre.

John L. Sullivan will appear all this week at the Star, at every performance, starting tomorrow afternoon. There will be three shows a day, one in the afternoon and two at night. The performances will run about an hour and a half, the longest vaudeville entertainment ever given in Portland. Those who desire to secure tickets early can obtain them by applying at the Star box office in the morning. At the matinee Mr. Sullivan will render a monologue. In the evening Mr. Sullivan will give a sparring exhibition. This will be the most famous vaudeville week in the history of Portland and every one will want to attend the Star. On the Staroscope will be shown a film representing the Corbett-McCoy fight. Mack and Elliott will present a sketch; Mrs. Jules Levy & Co. will contribute musical novelties; Hellman, the magician, will show strange and marvelous tricks; Kosare and Chaplin have a sketch; Melroy Trio will perform a variety of stunts; Richard Burton will render a new illustrated ballad. Decoration day the performances will be the same as on Sundays, continuous from 2 till 11 p. m.

Idaho at the Lyric.

The Lyric's offering for the week will be "Idaho," a western story containing every element that goes to make a successful play. "Idaho" is somewhat like "Arizona" in construction, and has military characters as well as cowboys, an Indian, miners, gamblers and a Chinese. Thomas H. Clark and Ella Wilson play the leading parts, and both will have ample opportunity of showing their talents. Thos. W. Ray will sing a new pictorial ballad, and the Lyricists will show new moving pictures. Today is the last opportunity to see "The Heart of Virginia," which has achieved much success this week. Continuous today, 1:30 until 11.

Exhibits on the Fair Grounds.

Will show up 100 per cent better if shown up on one of our parquet or hardwood floors. Call at 286 Yamhill street and investigate. Hardwood flooring for sale. Portland Hardwood Floor company.

At the Baker.

Holmes and Holmes in a comedy sketch will be a feature this week at the Baker. Roman ring artists supreme are Avill and Grimm. Rice and Walters in "Why Is a Horse?" will make their first appearance. This act has won much applause, as it is entirely new. The Murwells, operatic singers, formerly of the Castle Square Opera company, will positively appear. Jean Wilson, Portland's favorite baritone, will sing the latest New York craze entitled "Would You?" with new slides. This sensational bill will conclude with the Bakergraph, showing the ever popular life motion pictures. Last chance today to see this week's all-star bill. Continuous today from 1:30 o'clock until 10:30 o'clock.

Star Theatre.

John L. Sullivan will appear all this week at the Star, at every performance, starting tomorrow afternoon. There will be three shows a day, one in the afternoon and two at night. The performances will run about an hour and a half, the longest vaudeville entertainment ever given in Portland. Those who desire to secure tickets early can obtain them by applying at the Star box office in the morning. At the matinee Mr. Sullivan will render a monologue. In the evening Mr. Sullivan will give a sparring exhibition. This will be the most famous vaudeville week in the history of Portland and every one will want to attend the Star. On the Staroscope will be shown a film representing the Corbett-McCoy fight. Mack and Elliott will present a sketch; Mrs. Jules Levy & Co. will contribute musical novelties; Hellman, the magician, will show strange and marvelous tricks; Kosare and Chaplin have a sketch; Melroy Trio will perform a variety of stunts; Richard Burton will render a new illustrated ballad. Decoration day the performances will be the same as on Sundays, continuous from 2 till 11 p. m.

BERTHA CREIGHTON
WITH HER EXCELLENT COMPANY AT THE MARQUAM GRAND FOR THREE WEEKS BEGINNING JUNE 5

plause, as it is entirely new. The Murwells, operatic singers, formerly of the Castle Square Opera company, will positively appear. Jean Wilson, Portland's favorite baritone, will sing the latest New York craze entitled "Would You?" with new slides. This sensational bill will conclude with the Bakergraph, showing the ever popular life motion pictures. Last chance today to see this week's all-star bill. Continuous today from 1:30 o'clock until 10:30 o'clock.

Star Theatre.

John L. Sullivan will appear all this week at the Star, at every performance, starting tomorrow afternoon. There will be three shows a day, one in the afternoon and two at night. The performances will run about an hour and a half, the longest vaudeville entertainment ever given in Portland. Those who desire to secure tickets early can obtain them by applying at the Star box office in the morning. At the matinee Mr. Sullivan will render a monologue. In the evening Mr. Sullivan will give a sparring exhibition. This will be the most famous vaudeville week in the history of Portland and every one will want to attend the Star. On the Staroscope will be shown a film representing the Corbett-McCoy fight. Mack and Elliott will present a sketch; Mrs. Jules Levy & Co. will contribute musical novelties; Hellman, the magician, will show strange and marvelous tricks; Kosare and Chaplin have a sketch; Melroy Trio will perform a variety of stunts; Richard Burton will render a new illustrated ballad. Decoration day the performances will be the same as on Sundays, continuous from 2 till 11 p. m.

Idaho at the Lyric.

The Lyric's offering for the week will be "Idaho," a western story containing every element that goes to make a successful play. "Idaho" is somewhat like "Arizona" in construction, and has military characters as well as cowboys, an Indian, miners, gamblers and a Chinese. Thomas H. Clark and Ella Wilson play the leading parts, and both will have ample opportunity of showing their talents. Thos. W. Ray will sing a new pictorial ballad, and the Lyricists will show new moving pictures. Today is the last opportunity to see "The Heart of Virginia," which has achieved much success this week. Continuous today, 1:30 until 11.

Exhibits on the Fair Grounds.

Will show up 100 per cent better if shown up on one of our parquet or hardwood floors. Call at 286 Yamhill street and investigate. Hardwood flooring for sale. Portland Hardwood Floor company.

At the Baker.

Holmes and Holmes in a comedy sketch will be a feature this week at the Baker. Roman ring artists supreme are Avill and Grimm. Rice and Walters in "Why Is a Horse?" will make their first appearance. This act has won much applause, as it is entirely new. The Murwells, operatic singers, formerly of the Castle Square Opera company, will positively appear. Jean Wilson, Portland's favorite baritone, will sing the latest New York craze entitled "Would You?" with new slides. This sensational bill will conclude with the Bakergraph, showing the ever popular life motion pictures. Last chance today to see this week's all-star bill. Continuous today from 1:30 o'clock until 10:30 o'clock.

Star Theatre.

John L. Sullivan will appear all this week at the Star, at every performance, starting tomorrow afternoon. There will be three shows a day, one in the afternoon and two at night. The performances will run about an hour and a half, the longest vaudeville entertainment ever given in Portland. Those who desire to secure tickets early can obtain them by applying at the Star box office in the morning. At the matinee Mr. Sullivan will render a monologue. In the evening Mr. Sullivan will give a sparring exhibition. This will be the most famous vaudeville week in the history of Portland and every one will want to attend the Star. On the Staroscope will be shown a film representing the Corbett-McCoy fight. Mack and Elliott will present a sketch; Mrs. Jules Levy & Co. will contribute musical novelties; Hellman, the magician, will show strange and marvelous tricks; Kosare and Chaplin have a sketch; Melroy Trio will perform a variety of stunts; Richard Burton will render a new illustrated ballad. Decoration day the performances will be the same as on Sundays, continuous from 2 till 11 p. m.

Idaho at the Lyric.

The Lyric's offering for the week will be "Idaho," a western story containing every element that goes to make a successful play. "Idaho" is somewhat like "Arizona" in construction, and has military characters as well as cowboys, an Indian, miners, gamblers and a Chinese. Thomas H. Clark and Ella Wilson play the leading parts, and both will have ample opportunity of showing their talents. Thos. W. Ray will sing a new pictorial ballad, and the Lyricists will show new moving pictures. Today is the last opportunity to see "The Heart of Virginia," which has achieved much success this week. Continuous today, 1:30 until 11.

A Great Shylock in Yiddish

By JULES ECKERT GOODMAN.

(From The Journal's Own Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, May 19, 1905.—Some two years ago there appeared at the American theatre a Yiddish actor, Mr. Jacob P. Adler. For several years Mr. Adler had been well known on the lower east side and reporters in search of "copy" and curiosity-seekers, who went thither in search of novelty, returned with glowing accounts of his acting. It was long, however, before these accounts reached Broadway and the upper west side in spite of a certain amount of publicity, and Mr. Adler might have remained very much of an unknown quantity, except to the discerning few, had he not chosen the daring venture of appearing before people who knew nothing about him.

Everything was against him on his first trial. The play was "The Merchant of Venice," a play which has come down with the tradition of great actors. Mr. Adler, not being sufficiently conversant with English, was forced to use Yiddish, while his company spoke English. The incongruity was intensified when it came to the phrasing of Shakespearean verse into Yiddish, a colloquial character, certain words having absorbed a slang familiarity, bound to conduce laughter. Neither was Mr. Adler a young man. He was 48 at the time. He had no great international reputation to back him. His company was mediocre. The production was at first regarded as something akin to a curiosity. Yet Mr. Adler achieved what might almost be called a sensation.

Last Monday night, Mr. Adler again appeared at the American theatre, in "The Merchant of Venice." This time he had a much better company to support him, the Fawcett Stock company, an excellent organization which is producing some excellent plays. He still speaks Yiddish and the incongruity of hearing two different languages spoken upon the stage is still apparent. Again the audience laughed at some serious passages but again Mr. Adler has triumphed.

A Remarkable Impersonation.

Before discussing the correctness of Mr. Adler's interpretation, certain large characteristics may be noticed. What ever view you take of the character of Shylock, whether you side with Booth, or whether you prefer Sir Henry Irving, you cannot but be impressed by Mr. Adler's impersonation. It is so intensely real, so vitally absorbing, that it holds you in spite of all preconceived ideas. There is not a turn, not a gesture, not an inflection of the voice which is lost. If a criticism may be urged against it, it is that it is too real, too convincing. It lacks the shift of illusion. This Shylock lived, there is no doubt of his actuality.

Keen racial characteristics is the motivating principle. Mr. Adler's Shylock is first, last and always a Jew. He has the pride mingled with wheedling acuteness, the keen intellectuality, the intense religious fervor with those less-praiseworthy traits of greed and avarice and hate. There is, however, a splendid dignity to him, suggesting the avenger with a lofty spirit of high cause in his motive. It is in a word a distinctly sympathetic Shylock which he portrays.

The Truth About Shylock.

With the possible exception of Hamlet no role in all Shakespeare has had the discussion which the character of Shylock has received. There has been "great argument about it and about." And out of it all there have come two interpretations diametrically opposed; the one which conceives Shylock as a villain, pure and simple; the other which holds him to be an avenger and a martyr, unsuccessfully attempting to justify his religion and his race. Both interpretations, from a modern standpoint at least, are justifiable. Which, then, is the Jew that Shakespeare drew?

In this connection certain historical events are not without significance. Early in the year 1594 there was hanged at Tyburn a Jewish doctor, by name Rodrigo Lopez, convicted of high treason. The events leading up to this are extremely interesting and of literary value, though unhappily they can be but suggested here. Lopez, it appears, stood high in his profession, and was one of the chief doctors of London. Among his patrons were such men as the Earl of Leicester and the Earl of Essex, until in 1586 he was appointed physician to the queen.

How Lopez became embroiled in political feuds and machinations is a story

Refelling

251 WASHINGTON ST
PORTLAND OREGON.

MAKER OF MENS
CLOTHES