Hugh McGee, president of the truckdrivers' union, was also arrested on indictments charging them with conspiracy, voted by the grand jury Saturday. Albert Young of the teamsters was arrested on a charge of criminal libel in connection with assertions made that Robert J. Thorn of Montgomery Ward & Co. had offered to bribe him.

HE HUNTED BEAR ON SITE OF THE FAIR

Uncle John and Aunt Mary Hash.—Photo by Kiser Photographic Co. There was a man at the fair yesterday who used to hunt bear and deer on the very ground now graced by the palace of industry and the noisy throng. Beside him was his aged wife. They were Uncle John and Aunt Mary of Newberg.

Finally the party made Sacramento. It was evident that Hash could not stand the climate. So in the winter of 1860 he came to Oregon. Three months in this climate restored the young pioneer to perfect health and he has ever since resided in Yamhill county, farming and gardening. "Why, when I first struck Oregon," said Uncle John, "I remember that Portland was a shanty town, with turn fern shanties, too, down on the river front. We killed many a deer swimmer that river and out here, where I stand now, there was a regular jungle. I've chased rabbits, deer and bear across this here lot. Yep, I'm purty sure I have. Only in those days we had to pick our way through great big timbers that had been grown wild in this neighborhood, I believe, for a century. It's marvelous what time does. Just look at this now." The old man was more thunder-struck by the contrast, the longer he contemplated it. "I'll swear I can't hardly tell what age I'm livin' in."

WILLIAM WADHAMS HAS PASSED AWAY

Prominent Pioneer, Who Did Much to Build the City Commercially and Morally Dies This Morning of Paralysis in the Presbyterian Hospital in Philadelphia.

William Wadhams, a pioneer wholesale grocer of this city, died this morning at the Presbyterian hospital in Philadelphia, where he had been during the past few months. Death was caused by paralysis. For over 40 years Mr. Wadhams was one of the most active business men of this city. He came to Portland from San Francisco in 1854 to establish a branch grocery store for J. L. Sanford & Co. Several years later this house changed owners; the new firm was W. K. Leverage & Co. Mr. Wadhams was interested in the business. This was later succeeded by the well-known wholesale house of Wadhams & Co., of which the late Mr. Wadhams was the senior member for many years. Selling his interests in this firm, he later joined with Kerr Bros., under the firm name of Wadhams & Kerr Bros. Mr. Wadhams arrived in California from New York in the late '50s. On his arrival in the Bay City he engaged in the draying business. He was a delivery clerk in the San Francisco postoffice for five years and later engaged in the wholesale commission business with J. Sanford & Co. Mr. Wadhams was ever a prominent

Because Joseph Sigrist, a brewery driver in their employ, violated the ordinance prohibiting the opening of sidewalk cellar doors from beneath the walk. The suit was filed before Justice Reid this morning. The complaint states that May 18, Cameron, while walking down Couch street, near Sixth, stepped upon a dog leading from the sidewalk to the cellar of a saloon. At the same instant Sigrist raised another door from beneath. Cameron tripped over the door so raised and was thrown to the sidewalk, spraining his right arm and injuring his left hand and shoulder. His injuries prevented him from performing any labor and he asks $250 damages.

The trial of the case of Wellington D. Randall against the Southern Pacific Railroad company for $9,000 damages for the death of two race horses and the serious injury of two other horses. The case was brought before Judge George this morning. Randall was the owner of the race Amxster, valued at $5,000; Clivoco and Murat, valued at $2,000 each, and Jefferson, valued at $1,000. On October 28, 1904, he shipped the horses to Shellmond, California, at Jefferson, Oregon, a construction train collided with the stock train, and Amxster and Clivoco were killed and Murat and Jefferson seriously injured. The collision, it is alleged, was due to the negligence of the company in not having a signalman at the switch upon which the stock train was standing.

To the Friends of the Volunteers of America: Some people are holding street meetings, and the public is under the impression that they are Volunteers of America. They are in no wise connected with the movement. They can be found on different corners during the evenings, talking and singing for the collection. EXCURSIONS ADD TO FAIR CROWDS

Forest Grove and McMinnville Visitors Hit the Trail Early Today.

ALL ARE BOOSTING WILLAMETTE VALLEY

Wish Earth to Know That Paradise Lies Up the River—More Than Thousand on Special

Upwards of 1,000 excursionists arrived in Portland this morning to participate in the special day assigned to Forest Grove, McMinnville and Hillsboro at the exposition. The excursion train started from Gaston with 80 people and at Forest Grove picked up about 400 passengers. Dr. Cornelius Hays were added and Hillsboro contributed 250 celebrators. In addition to these, several hundred arrived on the regular train. The Forest Grove contingent was out for emigration. Each person from that point was furnished with a badge and a carnation, and pocketful of colored paper slips on which there appeared many forms of invitations to visit "the garden spot of the Willamette valley." The excursionists were loaded down with flowers, roses, predominating, which were massed in the upper reception hall of the Oregon building. From 1 o'clock on the flowers were given away with the compliments of Washington county. There was an abundance and every one received as many as he or she wanted to carry.

At 2 o'clock the excursionists and many strangers assembled in the Auditorium for the formal exercises of the day. Two bands accompanied the excursion from Hillsboro, one of them being the celebrated women's band of that city. The Administration band furnished music for the meeting in the Auditorium. Brief addresses of welcome were delivered by President H. W. Goode of the exposition and President Jefferson Myers of the state commission. Representative W. K. Newell, superintendent of the state horticulture exhibit, responded in behalf of Washington county. Other addresses were by W. N. Barrett of Hillsboro, Mayor Ben P. Cornell of Hillsboro, Judge W. H. Hollis and Professor R. Robertson of Forest Grove, and G. W. Marsh of Cornelius.

Musical features of the program were piano solos by Miss Wilma Waggener, vocal solos by Mrs. Chapman and an overture by the Administration band. Although it has rained daily since the opening of the fair, holding the attendance down to a minimum, there is no indication that the concessionaires are in the least discouraged. The men who run the trail learned long ago that it was unwise to expect much of the opening fortnight of an exposition and they are taking the view that, not joyous but without wry faces, they find a loaf of comfort in the business of opening day. At Omaha, in the center of a thick, settled district, the attendance on opening day was only one-third of the normal, with a corresponding difference in the business done by the shows at the two places.

One concessionaire remarked this morning that the man who expects big business during the first month of any fair does not know the show business. He added that at Buffalo the receipts of his show for the first week were only $12, while here on the first day alone he made over $65. His is a low-priced concession, too. The soft-drink concessionaires are so encouraged that they are applying for the privilege of erecting more booths.

THIEVES GARNER ELECTION HARVEST

Short-Change Men and Thieves Work During Night but No Arrests Made.

Four "short-change artists" successfully worked their game on Mrs. Amanda Bennett, who conducts a confectionery at 373 1/2 East Burnside street, yesterday, securing $20 of her money. Two stood waiting on the sidewalk while the others made a small purchase and juggled the woman out of her coin. Then they went to a saloon on East Burnside street and tried to work their game on the bartender, but he was too shrewd for them. Several others were picked up as prospective victims, but failed to fall into the trap laid for them. Patrolman Murphy managed to secure good descriptions of the gang. The police were notified this morning by the landlady of the yard of C. A. Buchmann at 255 Thirteenth street, last night and stole $20 from a tent in which he had been sleeping. Emil Fagerberg of 387 Yamhill street reported the loss of a gold watch, a gold chain used as a guard for eyeglasses and two pairs of trousers. Theodore Hanstetter was convicted in the police court this morning of stealing a bottle of liquor dealer, and fined $25. "That's a good price to pay for a bottle of whiskey," remarked Judge Hogue, "but such a lesson may teach you a lesson in morality."

FLEET OF WAR VESSELS TO ARRIVE TOMORROW

Tomorrow morning a fleet of United States war vessels is scheduled to anchor off the river in a line from the Lewis and Clark exposition grounds. Rear Admiral C. F. Goodrich, with his flagship, the Chicago, will be in command. The Boston, Marblehead and the torpedo boat destroyer Perry will complete the fleet which will remain in the Willamette for a fortnight. Exposition visitors will be allowed to go on board the vessels and inspect them. The following committee will receive Admiral Goodrich: President W. H. Goode, J. C. Ainsworth, A. B. Mills, W. D. Denton and T. B. Wilcox.

GEORGE F. HURBURT DEAD

George F. Hurburt of St. Johns died this morning and will be buried Thursday, the Odd Fellows having charge of the funeral. Mr. Hurburt owned a confectionery store in St. Johns.
