WOMEN'S FIGHT FOR BALLOT IN OREGON

Great Battle for Equal Suffrage Was Begun by National Association Today, When It Pledged Its Support to the Members in This State in Their Efforts for Political Freedom.

CAMPAIGN WILL BE MADE WITH VIGOR UNTIL JUNE

Miss Anthony Announces the Plan of Warfare, Which She Says Will Be Conducted in the Open, and for Which She Hopefully Predicts a Great Victory.

Oregon women suffragists, backed by the national association, today make the official announcement that the campaign in this state is begun, and that from this time until the ballots are counted in June next year the voters will witness a vigorous fight for recognition of arguments in favor of equal rights. The announcement created enthusiasm among the delegates and elicited from the venerable leader, Susan B. Anthony, a ringing declaration of the manner in which the issue will come up here.

The official pronouncement is embodied in a resolution drafted by Carrie Chapman Catt, vice-president at large, adopted as follows:

"Resolved, That the National American Woman Suffrage Association accept the invitation of the Oregon Equal Suffrage association to cooperate with them to carry on the coming campaign to final victory."

The women are imbued with hopes that they will win in the fight. The foundation has been laid for carrying the warfare into the remotest districts of the state.

"We would have won the campaign in California," said Miss Anthony, "had it not been for the fact that a few of the rural counties were not covered in the plan for a house to house canvass. Wherever we made such a canvass we won. For instance, in Los Angeles county the majority was 4,000, and in every other locality wherein the field was well covered we had a like result.

How Fight Is to Be Made.

"This will be the manner in which Oregon will be handled, as I am informed by the local workers. We purpose organizing the state in every part, and will strive to see that no portion fails to hear our arguments.

"What do I think of the prospects? Well, in view of the advancement that was made up to the last election when a vote was taken here, when the majority was only about 2,000 against, and when this is compared with the vote of 1884, when it was lost by a majority of two thirds of the total vote, I believe that I am justified in saying that the sky is rosy with hope and that I am confident that we will receive the guerdon of victory.

"The difference between the receptivity of people now and in the years when they branded us as social iconoclasts is so marked that the belief in victory this time seems to me to be reasonable."

Miss Anthony, with nearly 80 years of battling to her credit, more than 50 years old, and yet leading the suffrage hosts with strong grasp on the situation, talked of the coming fight with the ardor of a cadet and revealed the mild-mannered, sweet, womanly character she has, in which also are found the qualities of true generalship. Clad in soft blacks, appropriate to her advanced age, yet made into a gown of good style, she discussed the issues that are to stir a commonwealth and compel every voter to decide next year what he thinks of the woman's propaganda.

Contest Will Be in the Open.

"I stand for the fight in the open, she said with a glee of hope on her countenance, "and am not in sympathy with those who argue for the stull hunt. With them I have had many contests, and with more than half a century behind me whence to select material for my controversy, I pronounce unhesitatingly for openly carrying the battle into Africa, and for attacking the strongholds of our opponents.

"This is not to be interpreted as meaning that we purpose to mix up with our campaign the economic issues that pertain to the political parties. Often have I been invited to take part in partisan campaigns, but I have invariably refused. The idea of equal suffrage is the one to which I have devoted my life, and that I hold up as the most important of all that are before the people.

"'No entangling alliances' might be said to be our watchword, hence we accept no proffers of alignment with this or that party, but keep our matters separate from them all.

"Here in Oregon, where the people have broken away from the control of the political bosses, it is wise to make the next stand for the rights of women. The initiative and referendum gives the people a free hand to vote on any question they choose to take up.

Bosses Fighting Equal Suffrage.

"In other states it is different. In some the bosses know that, were they to allow it to come to a vote, the people would carry our fight for us. So they refuse to allow the legislatures to submit the question, and therefore we have been unable often to bring the issue to final determination.

"But the people of Oregon have inaugurated the initiative and referendum, perhaps the most salient movement of modern times for the emancipation of the masses from the power of the bosses. And this institution, we are sure, is the hope of the women, and the many men who are with us.

"Women will manage the campaign. The headquarters will be in their charge. They will attend to the correspondence, the newspaper bureau, the canvassing of the state and the house-to-house visitation which we hope will carry the day. Of course, we look for the assistance of the men, for without them we can do nothing. But, in order to prove the capability of women, we will place the vast work in their hands and expect them to give a good account of themselves.

Miss Anthony's Message to Oregon.

"Please carry to the people of Oregon my message—the recognition of our rights will do more to enhance the good of the commonwealth than any other one step which the wisdom of man could contrive. It will establish the real freedom and equality guaranteed by the national constitution to the citizens. It will inject into the electorate of the state an element that in the main will stand for the better things in government and it will raise the women themselves to a higher position and give them a complete realization of the duties and responsibilities that rest upon all who owe allegiance to our common flag."

This morning Dr. Annice Jeffreys reported for Oregon, showing that the commonwealth is in an excellent state of preparation for the coming campaign. Her report was:

"The past year has been a profitable one for the equal suffrage work in Oregon. When the invitation was extended to the National Suffrage association to hold its convention in Portland in 1905 we did it with fear and trembling, knowing that our membership was small and scattered. On my return from Washington, we began the work of reorganization of the state association, and have been busy ever since.

"We now have a membership of 155 for Portland, and through the splendid work of Miss Mary N. Chase of New Hampshire and Miss Gail Laughlin of New York we have the following clubs: Ten political study clubs, a Susan B. Anthony club, six civic clubs, one good government league, seven equality clubs and five equal suffrage, making a total of 52 clubs.

Over 20 of these have already paid in dues and we now have 286 paidup members, all of which have been secured since last July. We claim a membership of 720 and doubtless nearly all of the remaining clubs will send in their dues before the state convention.

Debt to National Association.

"We are under personal and financial obligations to this national association for this splendid growth. Had it not been for the holding of this convention in Portland and the assistance of its splendid organizers we should not be able to report this gain.

"The different granges throughout the state have granted our organizers a hearing whenever an opportunity presented itself, and the press work under the management of Mrs. Evans has supplied articles on suffrage work each Sunday for the woman's page in The Journal, and the Oregonian and Telegram have been most kind to us in printing reports of the meetings and convention work.

"Now that our state has adopted the initiative and referendum law we are determined to invoke its aid, and we are now circulating petitions for the necessary signatures. If the necessary signatures are not in when this convention closes I will guarantee to have the required number by September 1, and by so doing will ask the assistance and cooperation of this national association in carrying on the coming campaign so that we may add to the already four free states that of Oregon for 1906."

New York, Ohio, Utah and Pennsylvania also reported, and the convention went into executive session to consider some of the matters that pertain to the business workings of the organization.

This evening at 8 o'clock the New York delegation gives a dinner to Miss Anthony and Miss Shaw at the Portland hotel, the 19 members and the two guests making the 21 for whom plates will be set.

This afternoon the routine of reports was taken up. The program for this evening at the First Congregational will be: Prayer, Rev. W. S. Gilbert; music, Lakme quartet; address, Willis Duniway of this city; address, "The Vital Question," Mary N. Chase of New Hampshire; address, Henry B. Blackwell of Massachusetts; address, "The Fashionable Optimism," Laura Gregg of Nebraska; address, Rev. Stephen S. Wise, D. D., of Temple Beth Ishael; address, "The Young Breadwinner's Need," Florence Kelley of New York.

SULLY EXCITEMENT NOT A COMPARISON

New York Cotton Market the Most Exciting in the History of the Organization.

PURCHASERS DO NOT ASK FOR PRICE OR MONTH

Quotations Bound Upward With Terrific Speed—No Reaction Is Noticeable.

(Furnished by Overbeck, Starr & Cooke Co.)

New York, July 3.—Never in the history of the cotton exchange has there been so much excitement as during today's session. The early rumors of a high average condition caused a weak feeling but later when the news came of the real condition the excitement was terrific. Since the days of the Sully excitement there has never been anything to approach the feeling which was shown in the market today. At no period in the history of the organization did prices rise so fast after the true condition of 77 per cent was known. All anybody had to do was to offer cotton for sale and it was purchased so quick as to make his head swim. Everything in cotton was bought, purchasers not even taking the trouble to ask the price or month of delivery. What they wanted was cotton.

ARRESTED FOR SELLING LIQUOR AT CORVALLIS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Corvallis, Or., July 3.—For selling liquor in violation of the prohibition law, Jacob Blumberg was arrested this afternoon. It is alleged that he was seen selling the liquor and receiving money. This is his second offense, and under the law he must go to jail for not less than 25 days. A fine of $50 was imposed on him a month ago for the same offense.

CLIMBED MANY STEEPLES TO DIE ON STAIRCASE

(Journal Special Service.)

New York, July 3.—John Moffatt, aged 32, of San Francisco, known throughout the country as a "steeple jack," who has climbed many of the highest church steeples, smokestacks and flagstaffs, is dead here as the result of a fall on a staircase.

FIRST MELONS ARE HERE FROM TEXAS

Initial Car Unloaded on Street This Morning and Prices Slide Down.

STRING BEANS AND PEAS GLUTTING THE MARKET

First Local Apricots Received by Dryer, O'Malley & Co.—Eggs Duller.

Front Street, July 3.—The principal features of the Portland wholesale markets today are:

First car Texas melons arrives.
Wheat trade is nominal.
Oats and corn are very firm.
Hops are dull and quiet.
String beans are very weak.
Peas had for the asking.
Cherry season about to close.
California apples come faster.
Onions and potatoes down.
Holiday along street tomorrow.
Salmon catch continues heavy.
Texas tomatoes are plentiful.
First local apricots are in market.
Cucumbers come faster; prices drop.
Excellent demand for loganberries.
Cantaloupes are not so high.
Cheese market was never duller.
Creamery butter extremely weak.
Eggs unchanged with weaker feeling.
Poultry market is in good shape.
Orange market is cleaning up.

First Car Watermelons From Texas.

The first car of Texas watermelons ever received in this market was unloaded today. The car was brought in jointly by Bell & Co. and Page & Son. Quality was all that could be desired for early fruit. Most of the melons were of average size and were of the long variety. On the street they found a good demand at 2½c per pound loose and $2.50 crated. In the local market supplies of melons are now quite good and some reductions in the price may be looked for within the next few days. Cantaloupes are in much better supply and the price shows a small decline since Saturday.

Hops Are Dull and Quiet.

Only quiet and dullness is shown in the hop market. A few orders remain in the market but an "improvement is generally expected in the trade. McKinley Mitchell reports that the damage to the crop by the large number of lice now on the vines has been very much overestimated. He says that quite a number of the growers have already begun to spray and that others are about to begin. He says: "Those who do not spray will find their crop of inferior quality."

On the market the New York Producers' Price Current of a late date has the following to say:

"The hop market presents about the same general conditions as last week. Some sales have been reported in this state at from 20c to 23c, according to quality, and we hear of one very fine line sold at 25c country. From the Pacific coast we hear of some sales from 18c to 20c top, and it is reported there would be free sellers on the basis of 20c, but buyers are difficult to find at that price. Little is heard of the pool and unless something unforeseen happens to damage the growing crop it is practically dead. As to the growing crop, everything looks favorable in all producing sections of this country, England and the continent. The California crop which had been heretofore reported backward now shows great improvement. From Oregon the crop is reported in splendid condition and much farther advanced than it was last year in July. Reliable authorities estimate the Oregon crop at 105,000 to 110,000 bales, and some talking even larger. Late advices from the continent report the very best kind of growing weather and everything favorable with all indications pointing to a fine large crop."

Wool Market Is Firm but Quiet.

The wool market is firm but quiet today. All the large lots have already passed out of first hands and values are not being held up to such a high notch.

A Boston dispatch says: "In the amount of sales the wool market is more quiet than for some time, but this tone is not the result of any weakness in the situation. The market is exceptionally strong. The most of the large manufacturers bought very freely several weeks ago. An unusual occurrence is the effort being made to secure the clip of 1906 by contracts made at this time. Territory wools sell freely. The season for pulled grades is practically over. Foreign wool is firm."

Oats and Corn Are Firm.

There is a good tone to the demand for oats and prices of late have shown a fair advance. The market for corn is firmer with a larger demand and values are higher. The wheat trade is slow, the only business being some small sales to California points. The flour market remains with the dullness very intense.

String Beans Are Very Weak.

There is a glut of string beans in the market and the tone is very weak with prices down to the bottom. Supplies have been so heavy during the past week that dealers were willing to quote most any price in order to unload.

There is a great surplus of garden peas in the market and some sales have been made as low as ½c per pound.

Dryer, O'Malley & Co. have the honor to receive the first shipment of local apricots during the present season. The supplies came from eastern Oregon and were quoted at 90c@$1.00 per box. Some California stocks of fair quality are in the market and are quoted around 85@90c per box.

Peaches of better quality are arriving and supplies are larger with prices down.

Texas tomatoes are in good supply and prices range from $1.75 to $2 per crate.

Hothouse cucumbers are overplentiful with the market weaker and prices down.

The orange market is fast cleaning up and prices are higher for best stocks.

Some very fine Royal Ann cherries from Looking Glass were among the arrivals this morning. The season is fast coming to an end. Blings are rather plentiful but quality is not any good.

Potatoes are sliding downward on account of the larger receipts from local points. Some sales are reported as low as 75c per sack.

Onions are down with larger supplies from the south. Prices have been cut in some instances in order to move.

Cheese Market Was Never Duller.

As low as 11c is now being asked for first-class cheese. Supplies are very heavy and demand demoralized.

The butter market is dull for both creamery and country store. Generally speaking, 26c is the top on the street. Special brands some times bring a fraction more.

Eggs are not so firm, the late receipts of eastern having a bad effect upon the demand Prices the same.

Chickens show a fair tone with most stock cleaned up on Saturday.

COTTON FUTURES ARE NEARLY HUNDRED UP

(Furnished by Overbeck, Starr & Cooke Co.)

New York, July 3.—After a fair opening the cotton market suddenly became very strong on the bullish government report and futures closed 95 to 97 points up.

Today's official cotton market:

Wall Street, July 3.—Dick Bros. say: The market was very strong and active today, ignoring all unfavorable matters, and showing power to advance on profit-taking, as was evidenced. News from Russia was rather disturbing, and the government crop report was quite unfavorable, but this did not hinder the market.
