SARE FOURTH HAS LEFT FEW PANGS

But Two Serious Injuries Yesterday and Both Due to Use of Forbidden Explosives.

BEVERAL MINOR HURTS DUE TO DENSE CROWDS

Enforcement of the Ordinance Against Bombs and Giant Crackers Given Credit.

Portland's first same Fourth of July was celebrated yesterday. After the noise caused by the popping of fire-crankers, the soaring of skyrockets and the gurgles of Fourth of July lemonade had died away and became as a dream, the doctors of this city enjoyed a more restful night (fifth they had ever known to follow independence day.

Physicians state that the list of accidents yesterday was remarkable for its brevity. There were no fatal injuries and the list of accidents is small compared to other years. Last year there was one fatallty besides a list of 25 others who were injured. The chief reason for the sameness, pf yesterday and the small list of the injured is said to be the passage of the ordinance prohibiting the sale and the use of giant freerackers, bombs, toy cannons and torpedo canes within the city limits; this ordinance was strictly enforced, and as a result Portland today does not smell like an arnica factory nor resemble a second-class battlefield.

Some accidents did occur, however, in apits of the giant firecracker ordinance and the matchfulness of the police. Yes or hospitals. For most of them mades officit likes. A live wire caused a blaze in the residence of a Chinese at Second and Pine streets. The damage did not exceed $15. A fire balloon ignited the roof of a house at Twentieth and Washington streets, but the flames were soon extinguished The loss was about $190.

Henry Martin instructed his little sor in the art of lighting firecrackers yes terday morning, and his home was de-stroyed. A cracker flew into the corstroyed. A cracker flew into the corner of a room near a bundle of clothing.

Martin lives at Gray's Crossing, far from the fire department, and although the neighbors quickly gathered and attempted to save something from the flames their efforts were vain. The house burned as though it had been a bundle of dry shavings, the flames destroying all the furniture, clothing and food that were in the house. The loss is estimated at $1,000, and it is reported that there was no insurance. Martin is a painter, and has been working hard to pay for his home. It is reported that he paid the last dollar on it a short time ago.

The Price of the Fourth.

(Journal Special Service.)
Chicago, Ill., July 5.—According to Chicago, Ill., July 5.—According to figures compiled by the Chicago Tribune there are 43 dead, 2,450 injured and a fire loss of $125,000 as the result of the Fourth of July celebration in the United States. Last year when the final statistics were compiled a month later it was found that more than 500 deaths were recorded, mostly due to tetanus. The passage of laws against deadly fire-works has had its effect in decreasing the number of accidents.

WELCOMED BY OFFICERS OF THE GREAT EXPOSITION

Speech in Response Made by Fourteen-Year-Old Joseph B. Hosmer of Colorado.

American Boy day at the Lewis and Clark exposition today was one of the most successful ever held by that juvenile organisation. Boys and officers of the organisation from various cities attended. Gregon and Portland were well represented with stelegations.

Formal exercises were held in the Auditorium at 2 o'clock. William C. Sprague of Detroit, Michigan, president, general of the order, presided. President Goode delivered an address of welcome, to which Joseph B. Hogmer, a 14-year-old boy, of Fort Morgan, Colorado, responded. Addresses were also delivered by H. W. Stone, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., of this city, and Mr. Sprague. The list of speakers included a number of boys from Portland and other cities of the northwest. Music was furnished by the Administration band. The following program was observed:

Washington, July 5.—Suit will instituted by the department of Encuiture against all railroads for violation of the law which provides that cattle in transit from one state to another must be unloaded, watered and rested after they have been in cars for 25 hours. The penalty for each violation is a fine from $100 to $500. The law is an old one. Conclusive evidence has been secured for 1,200 prosecutions. Many of the railroads want to compromise by paying fines and all of them promise to obey the law hereafter.

Growth of Pair Idea.

Growth of Fair Idea.

"When I first heard of the Lewis and Clark exposition I was quite a small boy. I knew nothing of the achievements of Lewis and Clark, and my knowledge of Portland was meagre."

"Soon the newspapera began to devote much space to write-ups of the why and wherefore of this exposition and I began to be interested. Then a little more than a year ago, while in attendance with my father at the National Editorial association at St. Louis, I met Albert Tosler, one of Portland's enthusiastic citisans and expression of the National Editorial association. Here I heard such wonderful tales of the attractions of this peerless portion of the great west, such artistically painted word pictures of the coming exposition, that I resolved to attend and repeat the grand, good time I was then baving Little did I dream then of the honor that would be mine on this occasion. I shall always count among the happiest moments of my happy life the moment when I was told that mine would be the privilege of responding to the gracious welcome which has been accorded us.
