

BOX ORDINANCE WILL BE ADOPTED IF SALOON MEN CAN FORCE COUNCILMEN TO ACCEDE TO IMPORTUNATE DEMANDS

BITTER FIGHT FOR TIME

Saloonkeepers, Saying That Removal of Boxes Will Inevitably Injure Their Business, Ask New Act.

NINE MEMBERS SAID TO BE PLEDGED TO THEM

Citizens Deny That Men Whom They Elected Short Time Ago Will Betray Them and Are Confident They Can Defeat Liquor Interests With Aid of Upright Mayor and Police.

Liquor interests of the city are determined to kill the box ordinance. A measure amending the law has already been prepared for introduction at the meeting of the city council Wednesday.

A copy of it is being circulated among the councilmen, and the liquor men are exerting every influence to secure enough votes to pass it.

It is stated that nine of the fifteen members of the council have pledged themselves to vote for the measure, but vote in a position to know are of the opinion that the liquor interests cannot control that number of votes.

If the ordinance is passed, in all probability the mayor will veto it, and unless two thirds of the members vote to pass it the veto will fall.

The proposed ordinance provides that liquor may be served in private boxes containing 160 square feet of space, and at open houses may be permitted in the better class of saloons.

The liquor men claim that the enactment of the ordinance will mean the loss of much of their business. They are fighting the liquor men's efforts to keep the matter of boxes in saloons for another year.

Members of the Board of Health. The liquor men claim that the enactment of the ordinance will mean the loss of much of their business. They are fighting the liquor men's efforts to keep the matter of boxes in saloons for another year.

Chief of Police Gritmacher issued an order to the captains of police yesterday, in which he instructed them to inspect saloons on the basis and see if the boxes had been removed, side entrance signs placed, and if women were permitted frequent such places.

CIGAR MAKER TO WED MILLIONAIRE TOMORROW

(Journal Special Service.) Norton, Conn., July 17.—Preparations are complete at the home of the groom's parents near here for the wedding tomorrow that culminates the romance of Miss Harriet Pastor, the Jewish cigar maker, and the multi-millionaire settlement worker, J. G. Phelps Stokes. The wedding will be extremely simple, though attended by relatives and friends of the family and almost all the settlement workers of New York City.

The groom belongs to one of the wealthiest and most exclusive families of Gotham's smart set. The bride was formerly a cigar-maker in the ghetto. She abandoned her trade for newspaper work and met Mr. Stokes first when she was sent to interview him. It was a case of love at first sight.

COURT STOPS EVIDENCE OF GOOD CHARACTER

Says That's Admitted—Defense Takes Exception to This—Rebuttal Testimony to be Introduced This Afternoon—Case May Reach the Jury Wednesday.

Congressman J. N. Williamson, co-defendant with Dr. Van Gesner and Marlon R. Biggs in the land-fraud case on trial in the federal court, gave strong denial this morning from the witness-stand of the charges of the prosecution.

Cross-examination by Mr. Heney, the United States district attorney, brought forth some admissions which will undoubtedly figure largely in the arguments of the prosecution to the jury.

Character Witnesses Sworn. A dozen or fifteen character witnesses were to have been called by the defense, among them Senator C. W. Fulton, but after hearing two of them, and after being informed by Mr. Heney that the government would introduce no counter-evidence against the defense, the latter refused to allow defendant's counsel to present further testimony on the same line.

Although Judge De Haven stated that on the strength of the uncontradicted testimony already given he would instruct the jury that the previous good character of all of the defendants had been established, this was not considered sufficient by counsel for the defense and they took exception to the ruling.

At the opening of court Judge De Haven announced that demurrers were overruled in three other of the land fraud cases. The first of these cases is that in which W. W. Stelzer and other officers of the Butte Creek Land, Lumber and Livestock company are co-defendants with Binger Hermann, F. E. Mays et al. on the charge of conspiracy to unlawfully fence government lands.

The second case is that charging E. H. Hendricks, secretary of the same company, with subornation of perjury, and the third is the perjury charge against Charles A. Watson, a homesteader.

Judge Bennett conducted the direct examination of Congressman Williamson. The witness stated that he is a native Oregonian and has lived in Prineville the greater part of the time since 1876. As to the testimony of three of the government's witnesses, Duncan, Gaylord and Crane, concerning a conversation said to have taken place in Gesner's office about a newspaper article foreshadowing the prosecution of persons implicated in the land frauds, Williamson said that he had no recollection of such a conversation.

In the summer and fall of 1902 the witness was living at The Dalles. He visited the ranch at Prineville several times, but thought he was not there between April and July, his next visit being made in November or December.

"When did you first hear that Dr. Gesner was locating timber claimants and loaning them money with which to prove up?" asked Judge Bennett.

"I don't remember hearing of it prior to my visit in July," answered Williamson. "I think Duncan and some of the others had been located before that time. Gesner told me that he had located some people and had loaned them money with which to prove up. He did not tell me of any arrangement to buy the claims nor that he had offered them any price for the land. If there was any such arrangement I did not know of it."

The spokesman explained that the surveying done by him in July was for the purpose of locating sections which had been leased by his firm from the wagonroad company, and also to determine the eastern line of township 15 with a view to having it established as the "dead line" in the controversy that was being waged with the cattlemen.

"Did you ever conspire or agree with Dr. Gesner or Marlon R. Biggs to

Case of Property Holders Against City of Portland is Reversed.

IS ACTION TO ENJOIN STREET IMPROVEMENT

In Actions of Octavia Ausplund, J. A. McKinnon and F. S. West Against J. W. Higgins and Aetna Indemnity Company, Lower Tribunal Upheld.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Salem, Or., July 17.—The supreme court today handed down 10 decisions, as follows:

The case of M. E. Pogue against N. Simon was reversed. Simon got the decision below. This was an action to recover a house and lot in Salem.

The Oregon Transfer company, Cook-Kiernan Transfer & Storage company and Mary H. Cough against the city of Portland was reversed. The city got the decision below. These proceedings were instituted to enjoin the city from making improvements on Death street from Washington to Front.

The case of I. G. Day against the Guaranty Savings and Loan association, a state institution for savings, and A. Guesser, was remanded. Darr got the decision below. This was an attempt to have a mortgage declared usurious and all interest payments above 6 per cent applied on the original debt, thus canceling the same. The court held the complaint did not state facts sufficient to demand the relief sought.

The case of F. Peterson against C. J. Creason was reversed. Creason got the decision below. This was a suit to enforce an indemnity contract on Roseburg land.

J. H. McClung against W. E. McPherson was reversed and remanded. McPherson got the decision below. This was an action to recover possession of the Tremont house in Portland.

Octavia Ausplund against J. W. Higgins and the Aetna Indemnity company, affirmed. Ausplund won the decision below. This was an action instituted to recover damages for failing to erect a house as per agreement in Portland.

J. A. McKinnon against J. W. Higgins and the Aetna Indemnity company, affirmed. McKinnon got the decision below. This was the same as the suit brought by Octavia Ausplund.

F. E. West against J. W. Higgins and the Aetna Indemnity company, affirmed. West got the decision below. This action was the same as those of Ausplund and McKinnon.

GRAND DUKE BANISHED FOR AN ALLEGED PLOT

Constantine Constantinovitch Discovered in Communication With Revolutionary Conspirators and Isolated in Lonely House in the Caucasus—To Pay Japanese Indemnity.

Lodz, July 17.—(Bulletin.)—A regiment of infantry at Ekaterinberg mutinied owing to ill treatment by officers. One officer was killed and several wounded. The mutineers were finally subdued by other troops and the leaders imprisoned.

St. Petersburg, July 17.—(Bulletin.)—It is reported from Kronstadt that the crew of the battleship Emperor Alexander II has mutinied and the vessel put to sea without officers. The disaffection aboard the cruiser Minnie continues.

Berlin, July 17.—The Berliner Zeitung says that the czar has banished his cousin, the Grand Duke Constantine to Stavropol in the Caucasus. It is reported that the czar has in communication with revolutionary conspirators. The grand duke is incarcerated in an isolated house, under the strictest guard.

The Grand Duke Constantine Constantinovitch is one of the ablest and most highly respected and popular of the grand dukes of Russia. He is a second cousin of the emperor and the literary member of the family. He has always refused to have anything to do with the government. He is very conservative in his ideas, believes in the autocracy and has resisted all political reforms, spending his time in promoting science and letters. He is president of the Imperial Academy of Sciences and his hobby is the imperial library, where may be found one of the finest collections of books and manuscripts in the world.

The Grand Duke Constantine Constantinovitch is a lyrical poet of no mean order, is the father of six children, and was the first to translate "Hamlet" into the Russian tongue. He is the second son of the late Grand Duke Constantine Nikolavitch, who commanded the army that captured Plevna.

When a report got about that he was to appear professionally on the stage at Vienna, the czar and the other grand dukes were so furious that a Romanoff should thus demean himself that they placed an absolute veto on the plan and practically expelled the grand duke to his estates in Siberia. He is chief of the Preobrojensky regiment of the guards, who have distinguished themselves on several occasions by shooting down their own countrymen.
