

ILLINOIS BUILDING AT THE FAIR

The Illinois building at the exposition is built to represent the old home of Lincoln at Springfield. It is a thing before which the citizens of the United States feel disposed to take off his hat—letters written by the martyr president, political treaties, bullet dour which he sent to girls who had caught his admiration, newspaper clippings referring to his career in statecraft, and many other articles which have borne the impress of his hand.

Illinois day will be August 17, when Governor Doremus and party will be here and elaborate ceremonies will be had. Commissioners F. H. Hand and R. R. Tiffany are at the building, and Mrs. Hand and Mrs. Tiffany are hostesses. Miss Macy Berkeley is assistant hostess. Mrs. Webber, secretary of the Illinois Historical society and an authority on Lincoln memorabilia, placed the exhibit in the replica of the home of the great commoner, and every day an average of more than 100 persons who live in that state register at the building.

The house of Lincoln at Springfield has been reproduced with faithfulness to details such as elicit expressions of surprise from Illinoisans who visit the exposition. Upstairs is Lincoln's bedroom, with the furniture just as it stood over 45 years ago, before its owner became president of the United States. Downstairs the rooms are devoted to historical pictures, writings and other things relating to war times in Illinois, and some refer to events as far back even as the period when the country was evolving from colonies to a nation.

That Lincoln was a captain of federal troops is brought to mind by seeing relics of the early Mexican and Indian wars. Other great historic events are commemorated in the Illinois building.

and the views of each classified so as to assist the visitor in locating them as to time and influence on the nation's development.

Second only to the Lincoln features are those that tell the story of General U. S. Grant, who was a resident of Galena, Illinois, and to whom Illinoisans proudly point as one of the state's contributions to the solution of the problems of the civil war period.

The governors of Illinois from the earliest days are shown by portraits and in the same way the illustrious Indian chieftains of that region are represented.

Soldiers and statesmen, pioneers and empire builders are brought to mind by the pictures on the walls, and it is to be doubted whether there is a structure on the grounds in which there is so much of interest for the student of history and the ardent worshiper of the nation's heroes.

FAR-FAMED EXPERT IN BLUE RIVER

John S. MacArthur of Glasgow, Scotland, Examined the Treasure Mine.

SPENT TEN DAYS LOOKING OVER THE BIG PROPERTY

Treasure Will Soon Be in Possession to Attract Greater Attention, as Mill Will Start This Summer on Large Reserve.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Eugene, Or., July 25.—The recent visit of John S. MacArthur, the eminent cyanide expert and mining engineer, to inspect the Treasure mine, at Blue River, more than any other development in the camp had the effect of encouraging local confidence. Mr. MacArthur made the trip from Glasgow, Scotland, which is his home, for the purpose of reporting on the Treasure, at the instance of Manager C. H. Park, who has associated with him British capital.

Mining men in touch with Mr. Park's recent operations were aware that he had a great property, but they did not know that he was commanding the attention of such eminent members of the engineering profession. The Treasure is opened by about 5,000 feet of work, and the lower drift, which has explored the main shaft and is the deepest work of the camp, is in ore for a distance of more than 1,100 feet. For the first 500 or 600 feet this drift, while on the vein, does not open commercial ore, but the remainder of the drive has explored the largest body of ore yet opened in the Blue River district and it is said to be commercial. For nearly 1,000 feet the drift has an average depth of 500 feet, giving an immense reserve. At one point where the vein has been crossed, the width of ore pronounced milling is 42 feet, and from this figure ranges to the width of the drift.

Mr. Park is erecting a rapid-drop stamp mill, which will have a capacity of at least 100 tons daily. As values are entirely free in the work done to date, it is the purpose of the manager to amalgamate without using concentrating tables. As all present work is in drift, and for a greater depth of 450 to 500 feet will be the same, timber for all ordinary purposes abounds and as the property is six miles from the McKenzie river, one of the finest power streams of southern Oregon, the economics of the proposition are appreciated as among the best.

Mr. MacArthur spent 10 days at the property making exhaustive examinations of all workings, and his report is understood to be highly favorable to the Treasure. When the Treasure mill is running at capacity, with the Lucky Boy's 40-stamp mill in full commission, the possibilities of the Blue River district as a great low grade mining proposition will be brought to the attention

COKE TARIFF HANDICAPS.

Northport Smelter's Position Subject for Much Discussion at Roseland.

Since the wrangle at Roseland has developed, over the economy of smelting at the Trail plant, owned by the Canadian Pacific, or at Northport, owned by the Le Roi company, and situated just across the line in the state of Washington, there has been a great amount of criticism of the tariff on coke imposed by the United States. The coke used at Northport and Trail comes from the Crow's Nest Pass district of British Columbia. The coke passing across the line to Northport pays nearly $1 a ton tariff, while the product used at Trail is free of duty. This single handicap, with other burdens Northport struggles with, is the argument used in Roseland against continued smelting at the Washington state plant.

Against this position of the ardent Canadians, it is offered that the Northport plant is nearer the Boundary mines than Trail, and any move in this direction is a great economy owing to the necessity of using the carrying area of the Boundary in most of the smelting operations of the northern country. As there is a hitch in the merger proceedings for the properties of Roseland, it seems likely that the Northport plant will be the smelter for Le Roi ores for some time to come.

Rich Belmont Cleanups.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Tipton, Or., July 25.—Since Gilkey & Kershaw started their little three-stamp mill on the Belmont's rich ore body recently, they are credited with having cleaned up from $1,000 to $1,700. The ore handled is said to have ranged to about $40 a ton, necessitating frequent cleaning of the plates. While milling, the new owners say that they have been prospecting the property, and that the Belmont could not be purchased today for much less than $100,000.

Cie-Elum to Front.

Local mining men interested in the Cie-Elum district of northwest Washington, state that the Union Copper property at that place has received an offer of a high figure for the copper property situated in that section. It is not said that the offer has been accepted, nor are other particulars known. The same company owns the large quicksilver deposit in the Cie-Elum, which was reported to have been sold for an immense sum a few months ago. The district is near the base of the Washington coal beds, and operations there may be carried on at a remarkably low figure.

SALEM VOTES AGAINST BONDING THE CITY

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Salem, Or., July 25.—At a special election held in this city yesterday the taxpayers declared against the bonding of the city for bridge purposes by a vote of 333 to 117. It had been proposed to replace seven of the wooden bridges in the city with permanent concrete structures at an estimated cost of $25,000 and it would have been necessary to bond the city for this amount to carry out the work. But little interest was taken in the matter by the people in general as indicated by the light vote.

DRAIN TO REBUILD BURNED AREA

Handsome Substantial Buildings to Take Place of Those Destroyed.

NO INSURANCE MAKES INDIVIDUAL LOSS BIG

Railroad Surveying Crew Arrives and Rumors of New Line Again Revived—Force of Twenty Men Accompanies New Party.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Drain, July 25.—With two blocks of buildings, besides the railroad depot, roadmaster's office and warehouses in smoldering ruins, the north part of the business section of Drain presents a desolate appearance, yet the result is only that which comes sooner or later to blocks of frame buildings, and while the loss to individuals is great, there being no insurance, the burned area will probably all soon be replaced by better and more substantial buildings. There is already talk of a handsome new 30-room hotel and there will be other business buildings erected to supply the demand.

Building Depot.

The Southern Pacific company had the material on the ground with which to enlarge its depot. The arrival of William Hood, chief surveyor of the Southern Pacific railroad, with a gang of 20 men and two cars, at this place today, they come direct from Yuma, Arizona, and considerable railroad talk is being indulged in. They come with out being heralded by any one and no one knows their mission. Two years ago last month a similar crew dropped into Drain and commenced surveying for a coast railroad.

New Railroad Talk.

They come direct from Yuma, Arizona, and considerable railroad talk is being indulged in. They come with out being heralded by any one and no one knows their mission. ### YOUTH IS COMMITTED TO REFORM SCHOOL

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Salem, Or., July 25.—Hugo Albrecht, a 15-year-old boy who pleaded guilty to the charge of forgery in the circuit court for Marion county last week, was yesterday afternoon committed to the state reform school by County Judge J. H. Scott. Young Albrecht was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary by Circuit Judge George H. Bennett, but owing to his youth was given the benefit of a special law which made it possible, by recommendation of the circuit judge, to send him to the reform school.

The boy recently forged the name of F. A. Schubinger, who conducts a cheese factory near this city, to two checks which he had cashed by local merchants. The amount realized by him on the worthless paper was $25 with which he proposed to take in the Lewis and Clark exposition. He was arrested in Portland.

CUTICURA REMEDIES POSSESS TRUE MERIT

"My face was afflicted with eczema in the year 1897. I used the Cuticura Remedies, and was entirely cured. I am a practicing physician and very often prescribe Cuticura Resolvent and Cuticura Soap in cases of eczema, and they have cured where other formulas have failed. I am not in the habit of endorsing patent medicines, but when I find remedies possessing true merit, such as the Cuticura Remedies do, I am broad-minded enough to proclaim their virtues to the world. I have been practicing medicine for sixteen years, and must say I find your Remedies A No. 1. You are at liberty to publish this letter, or any part of it. I remain, very truly yours, G. M. Fisher, M. D., Big Pool, Md., May 24, 1905."

DODSON SAVED FROM HANGING BY GOVERNOR

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Salem, July 25.—Governor Chamberlain yesterday afternoon commuted the sentence of Andrew Dodson, the Josephine county murderer, to life imprisonment. Dodson had been sentenced to hang on August 11 for the murder of a miner named Dunlap, to which he had pleaded guilty. A. M. Ingram, who planned the murder, was convicted of murder in the second degree. The governor gave as a reason for the commutation that Dodson was instrumental in bringing to justice Ingram, who was the real criminal. Judge H. K. Hanna, who sentenced Dodson, and A. E. Reames, the district attorney, both recommended clemency.
