WEATHER REPORT.

Light sprinkles of rain occurred yesterday afternoon in eastern Oregon and southern Idaho and a thunder shower, with light rain, occurred at Walla Walla.

The temperatures in the north Pacific states still continue above normal, except in southern Oregon, where it is about 6 degrees cooler than yesterday.

Showery conditions prevail generally along the eastern slope of the Rocky mountains, while in the eastern states fair weather generally prevails, with temperatures slightly below normal.

The indications are for partly cloudy and threatening weather tonight and Thursday west of the Cascade mountains, with lower temperatures everywhere in this district except near the coast.
