Foot race—First prize, $1 Multnomah hat, donated by Samuel Rosenblatt & Co.; second prize, boy's sweater, donated by Ben Silling.

Pillow fight—One $5 hat to winner, donated by Hewitt, Bradley & Co. At the exposition yesterday afternoon and last night competitive drills were given by visiting and local teams. Portland camp No. 107 won first prize with 95 points. Oregon City camp was second with 84 points. Prosperity camp third with 78 points. Newberg camp fourth with 74 points, and Prospect camp fifth with 74 points. Captain J. B. Gowen, Captain Ingram and Lieutenant Brown of the Tenth United States Infantry were judges of the competing teams.

There were hundreds of people at the exposition grounds to witness the drills and the teams were frequently applauded. Tomorrow the visiting woodmen will take a trip up the Columbia. The steamer Glenora and barge Kluckitkat have been chartered and will leave the Alder street dock at 8 a. m.

DIERKE'S BAND WILL PLAY FOR VISITORS

Rev. Charles Sheldon of Kansas being refused to speak at the exposition tomorrow on account of the opening of the Trail, there will be no special event aside from the concerts by Dierke's band.

Monday will be a special day at the exposition in honor of Kootenai, British Columbia, Santa Rosa, Petaluma, Headsturg, Ukiah and San Rafael, California. The order of events will be as follows:

8 a. m.—Gates open.

SHERIFF WORD COMPLETES WEDDING TO GET MARRIAGE LICENSE FOR FRIEND

G. A. Owens of San Francisco and Miss Nan Campbell of Ohio Aided in What Was Considered a Hopeless Search by the Kind-Hearted Officer.

Sheriff Word left his residence at 4 o'clock last evening with the avowed determination of not going home again until he had removed impediments in the pathway of a young couple who desired to get married. He adhered to his avowed, but he did not get home until midnight, and then only after leading the strenuous life for six hours.

G. A. Owens, manager of the Pacific Coast Syrup company of San Francisco, arrived yesterday afternoon, and by arrangement with wireman Miss Nan Campbell, the daughter of a capitalist of Cádiz, Ohio; they intended getting married before proceeding to San Francisco. They had been lovers for years and the ceremony last night marked the straining culmination of a very pretty romance.

After meeting his fiancée at the Oregon hotel Mr. Owens went to the office of County Clerk Fields to procure a marriage license and was keenly disappointed to find it closed. He returned to the hotel and informed his bride-to-be of the unlucky circumstances, and they counseled as to what should be done. Finally a solution of the problem occurred to the prospective groom.

"I have it," he exclaimed, slapping his knee. "Before I left San Francisco a friend informed me that if I struck any obstacles to go to Tom Word for assistance. There's our man; we'll get him to aid us."

Sheriff Word was informed by telephone of the predicament in which the couple was placed, and immediately tried to find County Clerk Fields or one of his deputies, but was unsuccessful. "I will not be back home until these people are married," he exclaimed as he grabbed his hat and bade Mrs. Word good-bye. "I won't be back if it takes until daylight."

The sheriff walked to the house of H. C. Smith, chief deputy in the circuit department of the county clerk's office.

He found Mr. Smith at the residence of a neighbor and was accompanied to the courthouse by him.

"There's a new difficulty presented itself," Chief Smith did not have a key to the office in which their marriage records are kept, and no janitor could be found.

"I'll fix that," declared the sheriff. "You do the work after we get in."

So saying, the sheriff propelled himself against the door-like a catapult. It trembled; again and then again he hurled himself against the door. On the third attempt the lock broke and Sheriff Word and Clerk Smith fell in. The marriage license was secured, and the lock was temporarily repaired, after which they went to the Oregon hotel and became acquainted with the fiancés of Mr. Owens.

It was decided that Sheriff Word should give the bride away. Hacks were called and into them went Miss Campbell, Mr. Owens, Sheriff Word, Clerk Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Feevery, friends whom the groom met by chance while waiting to secure the marriage license.

"I want to be married by a Methodist minister," said Miss Campbell. The groom said he didn't care who performed the ceremony, so the party drove to several Methodist ministers' houses, but found none at home. It was finally decided that the Rev. Edgar P. Hill should perform the ceremony, and the bride promptly acquiesced.

They stepped out of Hill's residence, 554 Alder street, the sheriff had the party stop and everybody bid Miss Campbell good-bye.

"When she comes out," he said, "she'll be Mrs. Owens." It was even so. The ceremony was performed; the sheriff kissed the bride, whom he gave in marriage. A wedding supper was then served at the hotel.

They have procured Attorney E. Rand to represent the county in requesting a certificate from one road and dealt in tickets from another. He contended that a ticket was not property, but merely the evidence of the right of the holder to ride a certain distance on a certain road; that the ticket was the property of the company issuing it, and that in time it would be returned to the company.

Attorneys O'Day, Ditchburn and Watts represented the scalpers in the action and A. C. Spencer and Dan J. Malarky appeared in behalf of the railroad.

Judge Fraser upheld the constitutionality of the state law prohibiting the scalping of railroad tickets passed at the recent session of the state legislature. This practically sounds the death knell to ticket scalping in this state.

The case in court was that of Charles J. Murray against Sheriff Word brought for a writ of habeas corpus to release Murray, who had been arrested for scalping.

Murray filed a demurrer to the allegations of the sheriff, attacking the constitutionality of the law. The argument on the demurrer came up a week ago, and Judge Fraser overruled it this morning and remanded Murray to the custody of the sheriff, to await trial.

Judge Fraser in his decision held that there was a proper exercise of the police power of the state and that it aimed at a business based on forgery, fraud and deceit.

The law provides that nobody shall engage in selling tickets other than those who are given a certificate by that company to sell tickets of that company. The scalpers contended that once they secured a certificate from one company they could sell tickets issued by all companies.

Judge Fraser punctured this contention by stating that the law would not be complied with by a man who held a certificate from one road and dealt in tickets from another. He contended that a ticket was not property, but merely the evidence of the right of the holder to ride a certain distance on a certain road; that the ticket was the property of the company issuing it, and that in time it would be returned to the company.

JUDGE FRASER UPHOLDS CONSTITUTIONALITY OF LAW PROHIBITING RESALE OF TICKETS

MURRAY LOSES IN HABEAS CORPUS PROCEEDINGS

Court States Measure Was Proper Exercise of Police Power and That Business Was Based on Forgery, Fraud and Deceit.

Spokane Telegrapher Leaves Strikers' Ranks

Spokane, Aug. 5.—"Have come to the conclusion that our cause is lost and I came to Spokane to advise the boys to go back to work as soon as possible," declared R. P. Haney, local chairman of the telegraphers' union, this morning.

The defection of the local chairman is the most severe blow yet received by the strikers, and may presage an early close of the struggle. The effect of the defection is minimized by the strikers here. "Mr. Haney has gone back to work, but that will not affect our cause," declared Chairman Tanquary, who has charge of the strike here. "He did not show up around headquarters today to give us his advice. His successor will be elected this afternoon."

Superintendent Beamer of the Northern Pacific has issued an ultimatum giving the men until midnight to return to work.

Boys Leave for Seaview With Cheers for Judge

Three cheers for Judge Fraser! "That's the matter with Officer Hawley!" "Hurrah for Seaview!"

Such were the cries of 25 lusty-junged youngsters who with happy faces marched from Judge Fraser's courtroom this morning in custody of Detective Hawley of the Boys and Girls Aid society and boarded the steamship Potter for Seaview, where they will camp for a week.

The boys are the wards of the juvenile court who have been sent to the seaside for recreation and instruction. They were not boys who have been called before the court for committing misdemeanors or who are in any way guilty of an offense, but simply a crowd of youngsters who need a vacation and cannot otherwise receive it.

Children's Play Burns South Portland Homes

A fire started by children in a barn on Second street, between Sherman and Caruthers streets, burned the barn and badly damaged three dwellings.

The barn and contents were totally destroyed. The house, owned by Peter Taylor, whose family is at the seaside, was partly burned.

J. A. Martell's house, fronting on Caruthers, and occupied by several families, was not damaged. It is said there was insurance on the dwellings.

WARRANT IS ISSUED FOR THE ARREST OF GOVERNOR OF STATE OF OREGON

George E. Chamberlain Charged With Failing to Pay Occupation Tax, Contrary to Statutes in Such Cases Made and Provided; and There Are Others.

A warrant was issued from the police court yesterday afternoon for the arrest of Governor George E. Chamberlain, who is charged by Deputy City License Collector McCaskey with failing to pay his occupation tax for the period beginning January 1.

A large number of complaints were filed against lawyers, the list including Police Judge Cameron. Before a warrant was issued against him, however, Judge Cameron paid his tax, assessed himself $2.50 cents, paid the fine, and notified by the license collector that he was delinquent. He was informed that his fate was the fate of many.

Attorney Fliegel paid his tax and the costs this morning and expressed indignation, claiming that he had not been notified by the license collector that he was delinquent. He was informed that his fate was the fate of many.

Attorney McGinnis failed to find the clerk in his office, and said he would return. Finding so many names on the list with him, Mr. McGinnis laughed and said he could take his medicine as gracefully as any of the others.

"This was a horse on me," declared Judge Cameron. "I had no idea it was so doubtful if I could issue a warrant for myself, and without liquidating I could not gracefully sit in the other cases."

Mr. and Mrs. William Johnston are visiting the fair and viewing the rose gardens. They are en route to Tacoma, where Mr. Johnston will take the chair of English language and literature in the University of Puget Sound. He finished a two years post-graduate in modern languages at Harvard this year, then went to Waterville, Kansas, where he made Mrs. Johnston all his own, then they started west.

Mr. Johnston is the author of a number of short stories and poems. His verses, "A Middle Sort of Man," have won him very hearty praise from several of the best known writers. He graduated from Baker university with the class of 1902, and after a year at Harvard was instructor of American literature at his alma mater for a year. Mrs. Johnston is a graduate of Baker, also, having been a member of the class of 1905. Mr. Johnston is a native of Erie, Kansas.

Solon Thayer's Home Destroyed by Fire

The $2,000 residence of Solon Thayer at 520 Third street and Alder streets was totally destroyed by fire, which started at 5:30 o'clock yesterday in a defective flue. The house was destroyed so quickly that but little furniture and few of the personal effects of the family were saved. The house was near Prettymann's station in Mount Tabor, and there was no fire company available, nor was there water for volunteer work. No insurance was carried, and the loss was a heavy blow to Mr. Thayer, a contractor, whose savings were represented by his home place.

ALL TRAIN SERVICE BADLY CRIPPLED BY STRIKE

Great Northern Notifies Telegraphers That They Will Not Be Reinstated.

President Perham of the telegraphers states that the operators will not return until their demands are granted. He says that the full force of the strike has not been felt, that it will be impossible for the roads to operate their systems successfully with the number of men at work and it will be impossible for them to secure the 3,000 operators needed.

Claims set forth by both companies are that traffic is proceeding as usual and that but little inconvenience is suffered. On the other hand freight traffic is demoralized and passenger traffic very much impeded, all trains arriving from 3 to 25 hours late.

The railroads claim that operators are deserting the union and returning to work, which is positively denied by Perham.

The first violence reported on the Washington division since the telegraphers' strike was inaugurated occurred Friday night. A nonunion operator arrived at Pasco to take a train's place. He went to work about 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon and about 15 minutes later came outside the office. He was attacked and badly beaten.

Whether the aggressors were strikers or sympathizers is not known, as there are many railroad employees in the general department of the train service that either live or have a layover at Pasco during their trips.
