

CALIFORNIA CITIES MAKE MERRY

Market Street, San Jose, California, Showing City Hall, Postoffice, St. Joseph's Church and the Electric Tower

Sacramento and San Jose—one the present and the other a past capital of California—came to the exposition yesterday and took part jointly in a celebration which eclipsed the efforts of cities twice their size.

Out on the lawn to the westward of the California building, seats were placed for about 500 people, and all were occupied. J. A. Filcher, the state's executive commissioner, presided, and first introduced Colonel H. E. Doech, who delivered an address of welcome, in which he included some interesting reminiscences of California and Oregon as the pioneers found those states.

Mayor W. J. Hassett of Sacramento, in response referred eloquently to the benefits which the entire Pacific coast would derive from the Lewis and Clark exposition.

Lloyd Childs, in the absence of Mayor George S. Worwick of San Jose, responded for the Santa Clara valley, and J. G. Ing, secretary of the Sacramento chamber of commerce, grew eloquent on the beauties of the capital city.

Music was furnished by De Caprio's Administration band.

At the reception which followed more than 2,000 bags of plums and fresh fruits were distributed free by the cities interested in the celebration. The building was crowded with sightseers for two hours and California was well advertised by the event.

EAST MORRISON TO BE KEPT OPEN

Property Owners Will Not Sit idly by and See Roadway Barricaded.

TEMPORARY REPAIRS UNTIL FILL CAN BE COMPLETED

Is Busiest Highway on the East Side and Engineer's Threat to Close It Moved Interested Firms to Immediate Activity.

The east side office of the Journal is in the care of Mrs. F. W. McEwen, 220 East Morrison street. Telephone East 218.

East Morrison street will not be closed by the city engineer, except it may be for temporary repairs which will be speedily completed, and which will be so arranged that one side of the thoroughfare will be open to traffic.

When announcement was made to the executive board by the city engineer that he would immediately close the street from the approach of the bridge to Grand avenue unless the property owners took steps to put the roadway in repair, the property owners at once determined that something should be done.

General Manager E. M. Brannick of the Studebaker company, which has large interests on the street, took charge of the situation and yesterday stated that the street would not be closed.

"There is, of course, no use in putting down a permanent road before the fill is made," said Mr. Brannick, "but such repairs as are needed to make the street secure until the fill is completed will be made at once by the property owners, who will not allow the street to be shut up."

This decision was the more easily reached as there are only a few property owners interested, and most of the abutting lots are owned by half a dozen estates or corporations, the managers of which quickly came together when the need arose.

The work of filling the street was supposed to have been commenced as soon as the contract on East Washington street was completed, but for some reason this was not done, and with the exception of a few trains of dirt the fill has not been increased. The street is already filled in several places to the bottom of the elevated roadway and the contract will be much smaller than was the Washington street fill, which was completed first because the street was needed to allow the firehouse truck free access to the crowded warehouse district.

East Morrison street since the completion of the bridge and the rapid building up of business interests on Grand avenue has become the most important thoroughfare and the busiest on the east side, and closing it would hamper the entire east side and cost business firms of the district adjacent to it thousands of dollars a day.

TREASURY FATTENING.

Cows, Horses, Dogs and Chickens a Source of Revenue to St. Johns.

No longer is the exchequer of St. Johns empty, and the aching emptiness that a fortnight worried the officials begins to hurt a little less. Current expenses may be met should the increase in income continue. At the June election the people decided that cows, horses, chickens and dogs should not run at large; dogs with tags were expected. Last week a steady stream of cows, horses, calves, colts and dogs flowed into the pound. Sixty dog licenses have been requested, more than a dozen cows have been removed from the pound after payment of costs, and horses with lesser benefits have added to the revenue. The only difficulty so far experienced has come from the enforcement of the dog law, the animals being exempt from violence until properly advertised.

PEACE AT ARLETA.

School Directors Are Given Power to Build Temporary Structures.

The directors of the Arleta school district will secure money at once to build such temporary structures as may be needed. At a recent meeting past strife was forgotten, the discussion as to whether or not the district should bond itself for funds to build a good school was not raised, and after a vote of confidence in the board, it was agreed to leave in its hands the work of securing funds and the building of another temporary structure of at least eight rooms to meet the demands which the opening of the school year will bring. W. T. Kearns, Charles Kaddery and Dr. D. S. Briggs form the board, and will secure a loan sufficient to erect a building to house all the pupils of the district, who are increasing very rapidly. Nothing but temporary structures are owned by the district, but next year when the increased valuation of the property becomes taxable and the district can draw the state school allowance there will be money enough to erect at least one good building, and others will be added yearly until the classes are in modern quarters.

SEEK FIRE PROTECTION.

Mount Tabor Object Lesson Stirs Citizens to Decided Protest.

The object lesson that Mount Tabor had Friday night because there was not water enough to fill the buckets has started anew the discussion as to ways and means of securing relief in the suburb. The district is in the city limits, but it will be months at the best before a fire company can be established, and probably as long before adequate water service can be secured. The destroyed residence carried no insurance and even the furniture and bedding was not rescued. Many of the valuable houses in the district do not carry insurance because of the high rates, and even the most insignificant blaze may result in great damage, as there would be no way of checking it. A small chemical wagon to be manned by a volunteer company, while not entirely satisfactory, would be gratefully accepted by the district, which will soon be paying city taxes for city services, and at the next meeting of the Mount Tabor Push club action will be considered looking to the securing of such an engine from the city department. The Sellwood volunteer company has considerable apparatus furnished by the city, and the danger from fires there is much less as there is generally adequate water pressure.

EAST SIDE NOTES.

"If the boys and girls who bathe in the reservoir every warm day would first wash at home the flavor of the water would be improved." This is the wail from the St. Johns Review, but it is merely the expression of several St. Johns people who, living near the reservoir, have come to regard with suspicion the source of the town's water supply. So far as possible the bathers are chased off the water company's premises, and it is asserted by the management that the bathers are not numerous enough to taint the water anyhow; but nevertheless a somewhat earnest request has been made by some of the more sensitive of the place that the reservoir be not overworked.

R. N. Hamm says that Charles Wallace is a rascal to the extent of $10 and the east side constable has been trying for three days to find Wallace to get his side of the story, but Wallace has departed. In a complaint filed recently Wallace is accused of getting $10 on a worthless check from Hamm, and when a warrant was issued for his arrest it was discovered that the places that had known him and his wife knew him no more. Wallace worked as street agent for a photographic studio that made a specialty of enlarged pictures.

The steel shipbuilding plant at St. Johns has been kept working at its capacity recently to fill orders. At present it is manufacturing a dozen big oil tanks for the storage of fuel oil on the Southern Pacific line. The smaller factories and mills of the place are as busy. The shipyard is keeping a full force on the construction of a big tug and the veneer factory is getting orders faster than deliveries can be made.

One day was so hot along Young's river that apples on the south side of trees were thoroughly cooked, according to the voracious Astoria Budget.

DAUGHTERS CARRY OUT MR. FAILING'S WISHES

The three daughters of the late Henry Failing have donated $10,000 to the permanent endowment fund of Pacific University in accord with the wishes of their father, who was connected with the management of the institution and gave considerable sums to its support.

The donors are Misses Henrietta and Mary Failing and Mrs. H. C. Cabell. The money was not given to support any special chair, the donors preferring to leave the expenditure to President W. N. Ferrin.
