

CALL ISSUED FOR BIG CONGRESS

Temperance Leaders of Twenty Organizations Will Address International Gathering.

SPEAKERS OF NATIONAL NOTE WILL BE HEARD

World's Prohibition Convention in Portland Expected to Trade a Campaign Against Liquor That Will Have Wide Results.

An international temperance congress in which various temperance and kindred organizations throughout the United States and other countries will participate will be held in this city September 20-23, inclusive.

Speakers of national reputation, representing the several organizations, will deliver addresses at the congress. Among those who have consented to speak are Clinton N. Howard of Rochester, New York; Charles R. Jones of Chicago, Illinois; and John F. St. John of Vermillion, Missouri.

The Independent Order of Good Templars, O. J. Leonard, lodge deputy; Women's Christian Temperance union, Lucia Faxon Addison, state president Oregon W. C. T. U.; Women's Prohibition Clubs of America, Anna Sloan Walker, president; Intercongregate Prohibition association, Miss Mary Sutherland, president Intercongregate Association of Oregon; Prohibition alliance, J. E. Newell, president Oregon State Prohibition alliance; Epworth league, Theodore Pashler, president Portland City union; Baptist Young People's union, L. W. Martin, president; Oregon State Christian Endeavor union, H. Egre Powell, superintendent-temperance and good citizenship; Portland Ministerial association, Rev. F. B. Ford, president; Prohibition party, I. H. Amos, Oregon state chairman.

The official call includes an invitation to be present to every lover of home and country. It follows:

"We recognize that as a nation we are in bondage to a monstrous and cruel oppressor, the legalized liquor traffic, a traffic which is rapidly dominating our government, degrading our social life, destroying the uplifting influences of school and church, debauching our manhood, defiling our womanhood, and driving the dregs of our civilization like a pestilence into every artery of the body politic. We believe it high time for a new declaration of independence calling upon the American people to rise in their might and throw off the yoke of this unwholesome oppressor. We believe that if the forces now warring against the saloon can be brought into united, harmonious and persistent action, the days of the enemy of our civilization are numbered. With a view to promoting such unity of action a temperance congress, international in its scope, has been called to meet at Portland, Oregon, in connection with the Lewis and Clark fair, from September 20 to 23, in which all societies, organizations and churches, opposed to the average liquor traffic, will participate."

HOW J. D. ROCKEFELLER REFUSES TO PUNGE UP

(Special Dispatch by Leased Wire to The Journal.) New York, Aug. 12.—When John D. Rockefeller is distinguished contributor for a worthy object he does not write or have written a special letter. He has a form, which simply requires dating and addressing. Here is the letter:

"Mr. John D. Rockefeller is in daily receipt of great numbers of appeals for benevolence. Many of these are for objects properly inviting local aid only. Many are for objects to which Mr. Rockefeller is already a contributor through other channels. Nearly all are from worthy people and for worthy purposes. In considering these appeals Mr. Rockefeller is governed by rules which are the growth of much careful thought and experience.

"The friends who receive no other response than this note may be assured that Mr. Rockefeller declines from no lack of appreciation or sympathy but because he believes his duty lies in other directions."

God's truth often jumps man's track.

BOYS MAKE DARING ESCAPE FROM REFORM SCHOOL

One Tough Youth is Caught, But Eleven Get Away—Officers Scouring Country.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Salem, Or., Aug. 12.—Twelve boys in the Oregon State Reform school made a daring break for liberty at 5 o'clock this evening, and 11 of them succeeded in making their escape. All the boys in the institution who were off duty, about 100 in number, as is the custom after bathing on Saturday afternoon, were on the playgrounds below the building and near the Southern Pacific railroad track in charge of two officers, Henry Bruer, carpenter for the institution, who had charge of family No. 1 of large boys, and Harry Beard, bandmaster, who had charge of No. 1, small boys.

After playtime was over and in answer to the blowing of whistle to prepare for supper, the boys were being lined up to march to the main building. In the process of lining up, 12 of them broke away and ran toward the railroad track. Mr. Beard was left with the remaining boys, while Mr. Bruer gave pursuit. He caught one of the boys before he got over the barbed wire fence, but 11 escaped.

An appropriation of $4,500 to cover this expense for two years was appropriated by the last legislature and the salaries for deputies during the months of July and August have consumed the appropriation.

PROMOTER FIGHTS THE BOYCOTT

Chin Gee Hee, Chinese Railroad Magnate, Returns to Help American Goods.

SAYS CHINA WILL LOSE BY MOVEMENT IN END

Friendly Relations With United States Have Contributed More to Celestial Development Than Any Other Single Source.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Seattle, Wash., Aug. 12.—Chin Gee Hee, promoter of the Sun Ning railroad in the southern part of Canton province, China, who returned from Portland two weeks ago after floating a large amount of the stock of the company there, says for China in a few days. His mission, aside from reporting to the Chinese government his success in raising funds for the road and arranging for its construction, is to endeavor to have the boycott on American goods called off. With the boycott on he will explain it will be impossible to construct his line as originally intended.

He will also point out to the government and leaders of the boycott that, if continued, China will, in the end, be the loser, as friendly relations with the United States has contributed more to the development of China than any other factor in the world.

JAPAN AVERTS A CRISIS

(Continued from Page One.) that two days will be required adequately to discuss each of these points. There will be other matters to discuss—the envoys must move slowly, consulting their home governments frequently—so that it is altogether likely that the conference will drag on for another month before the treaty is ready for the exchange of signatures. In the meantime, however, the war dogs in the far east will be belling in leash. I am informed on excellent authority tonight that while President Roosevelt did not succeed in securing the armistice that he labored for, he has succeeded in bringing about a truce between the two nations whereby no further move will be made in Manchuria until either peace is declared or the negotiations are broken off. This, it will be understood, applies only to the two great armies and the battle between which would, it is feared, eclipse all the horrors of war that the campaign of the Yalu and Mukden has already chronicled.

Let Russians Tell Story

One other point that must be considered in the record of today's momentous events is the generous action of Japan in leaving to the Russians the glory of telling their diplomatic victory. Mr. Witte, secretary of state, gave out the story tonight on "Is it peace or war?" he was asked. "It had been a day of eager waiting and exhausting suspense. Sato and the Japanese plenipotentiaries had immediately besieged by the correspondent. "Is it peace or war?" he was asked. "Mr. Korostovets will tell you," responded the courteous Japanese with a smile.

It left the issue still in doubt, however, and the crowd chafed while the coming Korostovets was waited as the minutes dragged along. He hurried up to the conference, first, and the spokesman of the Japanese was immediately besieged by the correspondent. "Is it peace or war?" he was asked. "Mr. Korostovets will tell you," responded the courteous Japanese with a smile.

Meet Again on Sunday

"The Japanese plenipotentiaries have examined the Russian answer and conditions," the conference was opened at 3 p. m. to consider the conditions of the clause. The session closed at 7 p. m. Tomorrow being Sunday there will be no morning session, but the conference will meet at 3 p. m.

suft cases filled with documents to prove Japan's case and when Komura had read his history of the proceedings up to the breaking out of the war, he informed the Russian plenipotentiaries that if they could disprove the plain evidence, why then it would be well to do it by presenting documentary proof. There was not a vestige of the Russian case left, it is said, when the senior representative of the Tokio government had finished. In answer to M. Witte's statement that Russia was not expecting war, but was seeking peace, Mr. Komura submitted a statement of what Russia had done from May, 1904, until November of the same year in augmenting her naval strength in the Yellow sea. Russia had begun to do this when Japan had courteously asked her if she did not propose to state specifically when she could evacuate Manchuria and when she would cease fortifying points on the Yalu river adjacent to Korea. From his bag Mr. Komura produced the figures of Russia's increase in naval strength in Port Arthur during the period when negotiations were going on between the two nations. In six months Russia had sent to Port Arthur by sea three battleships, one armored cruiser, five protected cruisers, seven torpedo boat destroyers, one gunboat and two mine ships. Mr. Komura asked if that was meant for peace or war.
