PLENTY OF JOBS BUT FEW MEN

Remarkable Condition in Portland, Where Good Positions Await Workmen.

OFFICIALS FORCED TO ADVERTISE FOR HELP

Over One Hundred Places, Including Patrolmen's Beats, and Desks in City Engineer's Office, Are Waiting for Applicants.

An unprecedented condition obtains in Portland's city government—125 men are wanted for municipal places and the officials have been forced to advertise for them.

"Good men, with clean records, industrious and sober, men whom the government can trust, who will perform their duty regardless of consequences, may find work by applying to the several city departments," said Mayor Lane yesterday. "All must apply under the civil service rules, for those rules will be faithfully enforced.

"That was a good law—that civil service clause in the charter—and it will be lived up to according to the highest conceptions of its meaning. It is not intended to nullify that law, for it is for the protection of the people and insures improvement in the public service."

There are vacancies in the police force and reliable men who meet the requirements of the civil service rules may find work of that sort if they will go to the city hall and fill out the required blanks.

Men are wanted in the city engineer's office, and there are many jobs at $2 a day for laborers.

It is indicative of the humming industry of Portland that so many positions remain vacant. Usually city officials are worried out of temper by applicants for political positions. But so busy is Portland growing and expanding, and so high are wages, that the city is 125 men short of its present needs.

In addition to the regular positions, many men could obtain work as special policemen.

"We found some time ago," said Mayor Lane, "that about 250 men had been commissioned as special policemen heretofore and carried the baton of municipal authority. These men have been dismissed, and hereafter all special policemen must report to the chief of police and be under close observation."

So there is a demand for men to fill their places. It is said that the discharge of these special policemen was the hardest blow struck by the new executive at the political schemers. These specials were expected—many of them—to collect campaign contributions, and it is said that they did their work well. Well-informed citizens assert that the most of the money formerly used in campaigns by the machine was gathered by the special policemen. Their dismissal means the cutting off of the revenues of the political cabal that once ruled the city.

The civil service commission may raise the maximum age limit from 35 years to 40; it is believed that if 40 be made the rule better men will be found.

Another change has been made at the suggestion of the mayor. Hereafter moral character will be considered.

PULPIT LACKS ENTHUSIASM, HAVING NO MESSAGE

Dr. Josiah Strong of New York Speaks Eloquently at First Presbyterian Church.

"The Social Teachings of Jesus" was the subject of the sermon by Dr. Josiah Strong of New York in the First Presbyterian church yesterday morning. Dr. Strong came to Portland to preach in the Auditorium at the exposition, but refused to fill the engagement because the Trail was permited to open on Sunday. He declared that the social aspect of Christianity had been neglected and that a large portion of the teachings of Jesus were social.

"The only genuine love to God," he said, "is that which longs and labors that all men may know the blessedness of sharing it. The ministry of today lacks enthusiasm because it lacks a message. During the present period of transition the pulpit has been placed on the defensive. Many a preacher speaks, not because he has something to say, but because he has to say something. If they should accept the social teachings of Jesus a large proportion of them would make the startling discovery that they have not been preaching Christ's gospel.

"The attempt to serve God without serving man is the explanation of ritualism which serves neither and is hateful to one and hurtful to the other. Failing to see that sacrifice is a social law, men have tried to sacrifice to God without sacrificing for men. Men have sacrificed everything dear in this life in the hope of gaining the divine favor and the life to come. This is investment, not sacrifice; it is commercialism, not Christianity."

Grave Trouble Foreseen.

It needs but little foresight to tell that when your stomach and liver are badly affected, grave trouble is ahead, unless you take the proper medicine for your disease, as Mrs. John A. Young of Clay, N. Y., did. She says: "I had neuralgia of the liver and stomach, my heart was weakened, and I could not eat. I was very bad for a long time, but in Electric Bitters I found just what I needed, for they quickly relieved and cured me." Best medicine for weak women. Sold under guarantee by Skidmore Drug Co., 161 Third street, at 50c a bottle.

NATURE KIND TO LANE COUNTY

Splendid Resources of a District Rich in Timber, Fruits, Cereals and Minerals.

BIG DAILY INCOME FROM THE LUMBER OUTPUT

Her Cherries Bring the Highest Prices in London, and Everything That May Be Grown Out of the Tropics Flourishes Here.

Giant firs, indicating the generosity of nature, rear their heads high into the dim recesses of the Forestry building and are the best exponents of the wealth of lumber which distinguishes Lane county. It is stated by the head of the department of the interior of the United States government in the reports of 1902 that Lane county has more standing timber than any other county in the United States and that is saying a great deal.

Out of a total area of 4,330 square miles, 2,956 are covered with a dense growth of merchantable timber. If all this timber were to be sold at say $15 a thousand feet, there would come to the people of Lane county the enormous sum of $500,000,000. At the present rate of timber cutting it is estimated that the sum of $15,000 changes hands every day between the owners and these dealers.

And when all these trees shall have been cut down there will spring up another forest of gold and without the aid of man. Thirty years after the first cutting of timber in Lane county, and this is also true of the entire state of Oregon, the second growth is marketable, and is used for telegraph poles and ships' masts. There is practically no end to these forests.

Lumbering, farming and mining are the greatest industries of Lane county. Of the second a splendid display is made in the Agricultural building at the exposition. Hops, wheat, oats, barley, clover, timothy, vetch, peas, fruits and vegetables are displayed to the greatest possible advantage. Of the wonderful productivity of Lane county soil it is said that as much as 40 tons of carrots have been raised on one acre in the county.

But it is in fruits, and particularly in cherries, that the growers of the county look for the dollars—and get them, too. Probably no other section in the country has a greater trade with London and all England than has Lane county, with its Royal Ann cherries. These are sent fresh in airtight oak barrels direct to London and there are eagerly bought by the far-seeing London tradesmen. Last year 120 tons of these luscious cherries were shipped to the metropolis of the world and the sum of $130,000 was shipped back to Lane county orchardists. Anything not of tropical growth, it is proudly stated by Lane county growers, can be grown in the county, and, as they say, just a little bit better than anywhere else.

Nature has also been made to disgorge her innermost treasures by the miners of Lane county. In the Mines building at the exposition there are specimens of gold, silver, copper, quicksilver and other minerals. What are called the richest deposits of sienna paint in the world are found in this county.

Stock raising and dairying are other great industries which fill the pockets of Lane county people. If every man, woman and child in Lane county were to have his or her share of the great wealth of the county, each would receive $2,423 and a visit to the county's exhibit at the Lewis and Clark exposition will show why this is true.

ARTISTIC BOOST IS GIVEN TO ELKS' DAY

The Elks' number of the Oregon Booster, which has just been issued, is a marvel of typographical beauty. The first page contains a humorous invitation, the joint composition of Major Charles E. McDonell, Dr. Harry F. McKay and Jay H. Upton, members of the committee of arrangements for Elks' day at the exposition, to be in Portland on August 16 to take part in the celebration and attend the clambake, and also a warning to the visitors to keep off the streets between the hours of 10 and 12 in the morning next week. Excellent pictures of all the officers of Portland lodge and of many other prominent Elks and a panoramic view of the exposition are given, together with a descriptive article bearing on the invasion of the Elks. Two brief articles tell of the Trail and its attractions and the cost of "hitting it." "Booster" articles, as usual, are numerous and are written in a manner both entertaining and instructive.

No Grass on Range.

Ione, Or., Aug. 14.—The weather of the past week has been slightly warmer than the week before. Heading is drawing to a close and threshers are in operation. Potatoes are ripening and will make a fair crop. The acreage in potatoes is considerably greater than last year. Fruit of all kinds is scarce and high. There is no grass on the range. Corn is doing better this year than for many years.
