

RECORD CROWDS SEE THE CIRCUS

What Seed Saw at the Circus.

By Race Whitney. Say, uncle, in those good old boyhood days, when the circus was the ecstatic event of the year—the ambition of your life, the sublimest prospect of your existence—maybe they told you about "the greatest show on earth." They may have called it Barnum & Bailey's, "Inc. 1874, Ltd."

comers are plodding to their seats. The circus, by the by, begins promptly on the hours announced—2 o'clock and 8 o'clock. Next comes the ring horse-ship, just as in the good old days, and then the most remarkable exhibition by elephants that the show business has yet produced. A group of the clumsy beasts actually give an imitation of a battle of artillery, and as their trainer falls dead carry him from the field with their trunks. That doesn't seem possible, but it is there, at the Barnum & Bailey circus, for your own inspection.

to miss, you certainly have had your money's worth. Four women perform marvelous feats on the aerial trapeze bars. A head-balancer turns himself into a giant while occupying an inverted position on a one-inch bar. You wonder if it will ever cease. Men and women in traps perform with four-horse teams with as much ease as the clowns who are meanwhile jumping on and off burros.

celebrated dip of death, whirling with terrific speed around the outside of a circle in an automobile and leaping a gap while the machine is inverted. She is, of course, strapped into the machine and it is run in a groove. But that doesn't keep your hair from coming uncombed. It is the sensation of the year, and it was an enthusiastic, cheering crowd that poured out of the tent at the conclusion of the act.

It is a marvelous show, conducted on the same gigantic lines that made the name of Barnum a household word, although the creator has long since passed away. It contains 60 thrills and 70 "screams" to the minute.
