

FARMERS BITTERLY OPPOSE PROPOSED LICENSING ORDNANCE

Rather Than Submit to Tax Will Take Their Business to San Francisco.

GRANGERS PREPARE TO FIGHT MARKET MEASURE

Injustice of Suggested Municipal Law Pointed Out by W. H. Addis, Who Says It Favors One Class at Expense of the Other.

Farmers living in Multnomah and Clackamas counties and in Washington within driving distance of Portland are up in arms against the proposed ordinance to tax them $15 a quarter to sell their products within the city limits of Portland.

W. H. Addis of Russellville is working in the interests of the farmers. Mr. Addis is a leading member of the Russellville grange and last Saturday night was appointed chairman of the committee to organize a fight on the ordinance.

"That law, which I saw published in The Journal, is passed by the city council," said Mr. Addis, "the farmers will send an agent to San Francisco to make arrangements for selling their products on the Bay City market. And we will also refuse to purchase groceries, clothing and wares of any sort sold by Portland wholesale houses. We think the proposed ordinance is an outrage and we will not accept it."

"For years the farmers living about Portland have had customers in the city. We have sold our fruit, hay, vegetables and other products to Portland people without paying a license, and we do not propose to do it now. If it had not been for the farmers of Multnomah and Clackamas counties and in nearby Washington communities selling the things grown by them to Portland business men, would there ever have been any canneries or pickle factories established in this city? Where would scores of retail grocers get their berries and small stuff for if not from us?"

Simply an Additional Tax.

"We have to pay state, county and Port of Portland taxes. Now it is proposed that we pay a city tax as well. We will not do it."

"Some products are sent by train or interurban cars direct to merchants or citizens, and the shipper cannot be charged a license. Why should we who happen to live close enough in to haul our stuff to town instead of shipping it in be required to pay a license?"

"Many farmers residing about Russellville sell a few loads of hay each year to people living in Portland's outlying suburbs; should these farmers be required to pay license for this? And then we would not receive any benefit from the city after paying the tax. We would just simply haul our stuff to town, deliver it to our customers, buy goods from Portland merchants and drive home again—in the same way farmers have been doing ever since Portland was a village."

The members of the following Multnomah county granges will fight the proposed ordinance: Russellville, Latta, Evening Star, Woodlawn, Columbia and Rockwood. Clackamas county grangers state they are with their brethren in Multnomah in the fight on the ordinance, of which the following is a copy:

"Section 1. All farmers or gardeners are hereby prohibited from delivering, selling or offering for sale from wagons, carts or other vehicles upon any of the public streets of the city of Portland, after September 1, 1905, any grain, hay, vegetables, fruit, meat, poultry or other articles of produce of their own raising."

"Provided that each and every person desiring such privilege shall first procure a license therefor in accordance with the provisions of section 17 of ordinance No. 14,423 of the city of Portland."

"Provided further, that in lieu of such license, such farmers or gardeners may be permitted to dispose of their said products on the streets of said city after the hours of 9 o'clock a. m. of each day by first procuring from the market master of the city of Portland a certificate of their having been on said market block said day and there offering their said products for sale."

"Section 2. Any person who shall violate any of the provisions of section 1 of this ordinance shall upon conviction thereof before the municipal court of the city of Portland be punished by a fine not exceeding $100, or by imprisonment in the city jail not exceeding 10 days, or both such fine and imprisonment."

The ordinance will also affect the class of farmers who peddle from door to door.

THE GRAND JURY IS AT WORK

Nineteen Men Examine Witnesses as to Operations of W. N. Jones and Others.

FORMER COUNCILMAN IS MADE FOREMAN

"Jones' Brigade" and Many From Prineville and Albany Will Tell Inquirers What They Know of the Accused Men.

Nineteen men, impaneled this morning in the United States court as a federal grand jury, are probing anew into the land frauds. Behind the guarded doors of the jury room they are conducting their investigations with the aid and under the direction of the district attorney, F. J. Heney. Dozens of witnesses crowd the corridors outside, waiting their turn to go before the inquirers.

This afternoon the grand jury began investigating the operations of W. N. Jones, Thaddeus E. Porter and others in the Siletts reserve.

Ex-Councilman H. Russell Albee is foreman of the jury. The full list of jurors is as follows: H. Russell Albee, insurance, Portland; J. W. Bailey, druggist, Hillsboro; A. C. Alexander, farmer, Forest Grove; Jackson A. Bilyeu, farmer, Seaside; George Bridwell, warehouseman, Astoria; F. W. Durbin, hosiery, Salem; Theodore H. Pearey, merchant, Portland; G. E. Hargrave, capitalist, Oregon City; W. A. Jolly, farmer, Philomath; Charles A. Jordan, printer, Portland; John Murray, farmer, Aurora; J. W. Partlow, farmer, Oregon City; John R. Pearl, merchant, Brownsville; William Schmeer, merchant, Portland; John Shannon, farmer, Beaver Creek; C. B. Starnes, merchant, Brownsville; Walter K. Taylor, dairyman, Corvallis; Albert P. Vall, farmer, South Mount Tabor; M. H. Wilds, farmer, Albany.

The panel from which the jury was taken comprised 30 citizens, but there were many who asked to be excused. Among those whom Judge Gilbert permitted to go were F. L. Fuller, manager of the Portland street railway system, and W. F. Olds of Olds, Wortman & King.

Judge Gilbert's charge to the grand jury was brief. He informed them that the district attorney would advise them fully as to the matters to be investigated and he cautioned them to observe strict secrecy. A few minutes before 11 o'clock the jury retired.

Among the witnesses who have been subpoenaed there are a score or more from Prineville, most of whom testified on the former trials of Congressman Williamson, Dr. Gesner and Marion R. Biggs. It is the general expectation that these three defendants are to be reindicted.

Another batch of witnesses hail from Portland and from Albany, and they will be examined concerning the operations of W. N. Jones, Thaddeus E. Porter and others in the Siletts Indian reserve. It is expected that the grand jury will be called before the grand jury.

Californian Invents Aeroplans That May Revolutionize Modern Warfare.

AIRSHIP CONTROLLED BY ADJUSTABLE PROPELLER

No Rudders or Moving Weights Required—One Man Can Discharge Explosives Through Six Tubes Over Ships, Forts or City.

(Journal Special Service.)
Vallejo, Cal., Aug. 22.—If all that is claimed for it proves true, Vallejo is destined to revolutionize modern warfare. Peter Levitt, of this place, in a letter to Admiral McCalla, has asked that permission be granted him to show a model aeroplane with the view of the government accepting the same for use during war. Admiral McCalla referred the matter to the Navy Department. Evans to examine into the merits of the new airship. It is called a self-balancing aeroplane, equipped with six adjustable tubes for the discharge of dynamite. Several aeronauts who have examined the model commend the inventor. The inventor says:

"My aeroplans will have a fixed point of gravity, which will enable it to maintain its equilibrium under all conditions when in the air. It can be raised from the earth by its own contained power, and will lift more weight relatively and fly farther and faster than any aeroplane yet recorded, and will return to its place of starting with complete safety and certainty as the ordinary automobile."

"All motions, up or down, port or starboard, are instantly controlled by an adjustable propeller. No rudders or moving weights are required. One man can go in the aeroplane and with the adjustable tubes discharge the dynamite over a ship, fort or city with deadly effect."

SMELTER MANAGER IS CONFIDENT

Eastern Oregon Mines Continue to Increase Their Ore Tonnage.

NEW PROPERTIES ENTER LIST WITH BIG PROMISE

Manager Fuller Says That Deal for Oregon King in Crook County Has Not Been Made, but That It is a Good Mine.

Manager Fred D. Fuller of the Oregon Smelting & Refining company, operating at Sumpter, is here on business. Dispatches from Astwood, Crook county, recently contained the information that Mr. Fuller had examined the big Oregon King mine, owned by C. M. Cartwright and others. Mr. Fuller stated this morning that such an examination had been made, but that the property had not been transferred. He did not care to discuss the matter further, as it was of a private business nature, but did say that the Oregon King appealed to him as a great property.

Mr. Fuller is very confident regarding the smelting situation in the Blue mountain district. He says the progress made is gratifying and that a larger tonnage of ore is being offered the smelter. With gradual growth and all conditions favoring no doubt is felt regarding the future of the industry, when the Sumpter smelter will handle a large tonnage from mine of the adjacent district. This year finds several

MINING NOTES.

Drilling for oil in the Nehalem district has commenced under the direction of the Portland Development company. A standard rig drill has been secured and is said by the management to have commenced boring. It will drill to a depth of 2,500 feet, if necessary, to prove the formation. This work will command greater attention than any other oil boring begun in the state, because of the proved coal deposits near the site of present work and the favorable oil formation found in Nehalem.

Eugene, Or., Aug. 22.—The Great Northern Development company, operating in the Great Northern mine in the Blue river district, has elected the following officers: W. B. Staudish, president; J. H. Glass, secretary; W. B. Staudish, treasurer; directors, W. B. Staudish, C. L. Inman, Dr. Moran, Salem; Dr. Hodges, Albany, and J. B. Mahon.

Phoenix, B. C., Aug. 22.—Six of the Granby furnaces have been blown in and the two new furnaces will go into commission immediately. The entire plant would be running now but for the fact that the new five chamber was hardly complete when connections were made with the two large furnaces just completed.

Juneau, Alaska, Aug. 22.—No doubt remains that the production of the Klondike this season will fall below that of last year. The water proved shorter than usual and most of the important claims have stopped work.

Alaska's road fund, under the act of congress appropriating license revenues outside the incorporated towns, aggregates $28,000. The total receipts from this source are $48,000 to date, of which 25 per cent is for schools outside the towns and 5 per cent to care for the insane. Arrangements are being made to commence important road construction at such points as show the greatest need.
