ent yesterday and broke the compactthat existed among 11 members of the council for the purpose of defeating any veto of the mayor, or any measure he might favor to eliminate boxes from the saloons and restaurants of the city.
Belding cast his ballot to support the mayor's veto to the box ordinance railroaded through the council two weeks ago because his colleagues would not support his measure permitting professional musicians, actors and actresses to give performances in concert halls.
Councilman Dunning, who had heretofore favored the box ordinance, cast his vote with Belding Councilman Shepherd also refused to remain with the mayor's opponents, and the veto was sustained by a vote of 8 to 7.

When Councilman Belding's ordinance came before the body without recommendation from the license committee Councilman Shepherd moved that it be referred back to the license committee for further investigation. This motion was defeated and Belding moved that it lie on the table, knowing that if it came up for final consideration it would be defeated. This was also defeated and the ordinance was killed by unanimous vote.

Councilman Kellaher severely crit-TELEPHONE

JOSEPH TEAL'S COFFIN

Old Friends Pay Last Tribute of Respect to Lamented Pioneer Buried Today.

The funeral of Joseph Teal took place rom the family residence, 622 Everett treet, this morning at 10 o'clock. The ervice was private, to which about 100 f the pioneer's old friends had bees for which there was no room inside.

The ceremony was very simple and impressive. Dr. Edgar P. Hill of the First Presbyterian church officiated and read a chapter from the New Testament. Realising the close relationship those present had had with the pioneer he said nothing of the life and character, but embodied an appreciation of him in an eloquent prayer.

The body was taken to Riverview cemetery for interment in the family lot, and a large number of old friends followed the hearse. The hallbearers were: W. Minor, Mayor Harry Lane Governor George E. Chamberiain, C. F. Adums, F. D. Dodge, Will Page, W. F. Burrell and G. M. Wells.

Rountree & Diamond state that on May 23, 1905, they made a contract with Peterson to sell the quarter block for $100,000, he agreeing to pay them a commission of 5 per cent if the sale was made within a period of eight days. This was not done, and the real state firm alleges that the contract was renewed and that they agreed to accept a smaller commission—namely, $3,333.33 ited in order that he real estate men told him that if the sale were made they would have to pay an outside party, whose name was unknown to him, $2,500. It is alleged by Peterson that the real estate firm did not have any such agreement.

Peterson states that the reason he allowed the plaintiffs an extension of time on the contract was because they made certain representations that he has since learned were false.
