

ARTILLERY AT FAIR WILL FIRE

man old. For that matter, each head of a division purchased $30 worth and each head of a department $10 worth. The newspaper men employed on the grounds got up a purse of $40 and detained a member to turn the attic until all the tickets were in the box.

That's the way things are moving at the fair today, and that is the method that is going to make Portland day all it started out to be—the method by which Portland will proudly point to her popularity.

Inside the grounds each person were an indelible smile. It wouldn't come off. Henry Reed cocked his feet up on a desk and blew cigar smoke through a window overlooking the main entrance and forgot to give the press bureau its morning orders.

"By George, that's great!" he said. Wakefield and Huber forgot all about that little dispute over the Twenty-eighth street gate and after seeing a score of dirtroads dumped on muddy portions of the plaza, paraded the grounds, arm in arm, wondering what they could do for the further comfort of the throng.

In all parts of the grounds there was something doing. Great crowds surged over the boulevards, trod the terraces, elbowed their way good-naturedly through the buildings, sought lunching places and stormed the Trail. There wasn't a show on the great white way, by the by, that did not hang a breathing room only sign out for the afternoon.

When the train bearing the president and his party arrived police and secret service men formed a double line and the president passed between the lines in the entrance, where the whole party took carriage. The appearance of the president was the signal for deafening cheers and waving of hands and handkerchiefs. The president met with the same enthusiastic ovations all along the route to the White House and was kept busy bowing. His carriage was driven down Pennsylvania avenue between two troops of cavalry acting as the president's escort. The White House grounds were surrounded by an enormous multitude, and the police had great difficulty in keeping the roadway clear for the president's carriage. Everything had been carefully planned and arranged and there was nothing to mar the day.

All the villagers and the enthusiasts from the surrounding country were gathered at the Oyster Bay station this morning to bid farewell to the Roosevelts. Ex-Sheriff Johnson, at the head of 20 young ladies, wished them Godspeed, until the handshaking was ended by the conductor's warning a chorus of 300 school children drilled for the occasion sang national airs. Decorations at the station were typical of the achievement of peace, consisting of Russian and Japanese flags.

The president took the steamer Nacoma at Long Island City and reached Jersey City on schedule time. En route across Manhattan, the president learned that the path for fight promoter James W. Coffey. Nolan last night attacked the receipts of Mechanic's pavilion in an effort to secure $5,000 which he claims is due as Nelson's third interest in the moving pictures of the Brit-Nelson fight. Today a bond was given and the case will be brought to trial, Nolan said today.

"I am going to Sacramento Monday to appear before the grand jury. I intend to tell all I know about the corruption fund raised at the last session of the legislature to beat the Ralston anti fight bill. I have heard that two legislators have confessed that the fund was raised. There is no doubt in my mind but that Harry Corbett is the man who handled the money. I have a receipt that will clinch the whole proposition. I believe the grand jury will return indictments on my testimony, and a confession of at least one of the assemblymen is certain to be a bomb shell in the ranks of the fake promoters." Nolan called Coffey a coward and said he would fight him on sight.

FATALLY SHOT BECAUSE HE REFUSED AFFIDAVIT
Wagner, Mont., Sept. 30.—Because he would not make an affidavit as he was wanted in a horse-stealing case, Frank Pierce was shot and probably fatally wounded at this place yesterday by George Cunningham. Both are cowboys. Cunningham was arrested for the theft of some horses several days ago and placed under guard bonds. Cunningham declared that he would compel Pierce to make an affidavit which would clear him of the charge. Pierce refused and Cunningham drew his six-shooter and before bystanders could interfere, shot Pierce through the stomach.

Had blood had existed between the two cowboys for some time. Cunningham distinguished himself as the ringleader of the Great Northern hold-up at Warner, when Kid Curry and his gang of outlaws secured $40,000. Cunningham so closely pressed the fleeing outlaws that in the exchange of shots his horse was killed from under him.

Carter Rigdly Examined.
(Journal Special Service.)
Chicago, Sept. 30.—Captain Oberlin M. Carter was rigidly cross-examined this morning in regard to the disbursement of government funds. The inquiry is likely to last several weeks.

booming of cannon at 1 o'clock this morning, when a municipal salute of 55 guns, indicative of the fifty-fifth year of Portland's incorporation, was fired by the Oregon National Guard artillery. The usual band concerts furnished entertainment for a certain class in the forenoon and at noon a state salute was fired.

Ten thousand people watched Lincoln Beachey in the airship "City of Portland" sail over the exposition grounds. It was a very successful report, notwithstanding weather conditions were not of the best for aeronautic purposes. Acting on the advice of Captain Baldwin, who had received word from the weather bureau a wind was likely at any minute to blow up, Beachey did not leave the fair grounds. He sailed over the Government building and then circled up and down the Trail, in full view of the throngs who cheered wildly. The ship was in the air for 27 minutes and returned to the exact starting point.

Beachey in His Airship.
At 1 o'clock Beachey repeated his performance. The long-distance flight to Vancouver was abandoned because of the danger in the weather.

Another splendid feature was the parade and drill on the government peninsula at noon by the troops from Vancouver barracks. The maneuvers were watched by several thousands of visitors and loudly applauded. At 2 o'clock this afternoon an Australian expert, imported for the occasion, gave a remarkable exhibition of boomerang throwing, which proved a distinct novelty. With perfect ease he threw the unique weapon at objects and returned it, sometimes catching the instrument with his hands as it came down.

There was a parade of vehicles at 2 o'clock, in which many of the important cities of the Pacific coast were represented. The big features of the day are yet to come, however. Chief among them will be the shadow battle, a reproduction of the battle of Manila Bay, which is to commence promptly at 5:30 o'clock tonight on the west shore of Guild's lake. This feature alone should draw 15,000 people after 5:30 o'clock.

AFTER THE SCALP OF PROMOTER

Billy Nolan, Manager of Battling Nelson, Attaches Coffroth's Receipts.

TO TELL GRAND JURY OF CORRUPTION FUND
Says Harry Corbett Handled Money Raised to Head Off Anti-Fight Bill From Passing California Legislature.

(Journal Special Service.)
San Francisco, Sept. 30.—Billy Nolan, manager of "Battling" Nelson, is on the warpath for fight promoter James W. Coffey. Nolan last night attacked the receipts of Mechanic's pavilion in an effort to secure $5,000 which he claims is due as Nelson's third interest in the moving pictures of the Brit-Nelson fight. Today a bond was given and the case will be brought to trial, Nolan said today.

WOMAN IS MURDERED—HER REMAINS BURNED

(Journal Special Service.)
Redding, Cal., Sept. 30.—The charred body of Mrs. Ida Bowen of Scott Valley was found in the ruins of her home, four miles from Etna, yesterday. Indications are that the woman was murdered in the yard then dragged to the house and the building set on fire to hide the crime. Her former husband, A. Bowen of Meror, Oregon, who was seen near her home a few days ago, is now missing.

FOUR ARE INDICTED

Three days ago Mr. Henry received a second anonymous letter, in a different handwriting, and enclosed in a Portland hotel envelope. "If you desire to get to the bottom of the Tillamook cases you can receive some valuable information by subpoenaing C. D. Dannaber, who is now stopping at the Hotel Portland, this city." This letter was signed "One interested."
Investigation led to the conclusion that the writer of this second letter was W. F. Hays, a Seattle lawyer and a brother of C. E. Hays. He had been staying at the Hotel Portland for a few days but left last night for Seattle, just in time to escape a subpoena to appear before the grand jury.
The suggestion in his letter was acted upon by the district attorney and Dannaber was called before the grand jury. It is said that he was the purchaser of the lands secured by Claud Thayer and he will probably put an important figure in the trial.
The trial of W. N. Jones, Thaddeus S. Potter and Ira Wade, charged with frauds in the Siletz reserve, has been postponed from Monday until Tuesday of next week, in order to permit the court to hear arguments on Monday on the demurrer filed by defendants' counsel. Judge Pipes insists that the indictment is defective and he briefly outlined this morning the grounds on which he bases the contention.
The report of the grand jury presented this morning recites that the jury has been in session at intervals since August 21 and in that time 15 witnesses were examined, 15 bills were returned and in three cases the jury refused to indict. These last were not land fraud cases. Five of the ten indictments were for land frauds or for offenses connected with the land fraud trials. The other 16 were for violations of the postal laws and for crimes by Indians.

STORK IS HOVERING OVER CROWN PRINCESS

Germany Looking Forward to Happy Event Expected by Cecilia.

(Journal Special Service.)
Berlin, Sept. 30.—Princess Cecilia, the wife of the crown prince, has crowned her popularity with the people by the news long rumored in court circles but only publicly announced now, that the stork is expected next April.
Never has a young couple in such exalted position, started out on the world's way with such a fund of popularity as the crown prince and his young wife. Of her it can be said that she is the most popular member of the imperial family. Her cheerfulness and her happy looks alone act as a magnet upon the people. Her tact in the difficult and none too kindly center known as the court has already endeared her to that rather stiff and stilted set of mortals.
"Whatever she does is nice," said a lady of the court the other day in speaking of the princess. "She is dignified, but kind and simple in manner and goes out of her way to be nice with the poor. And, what is a great thing in her, she brought into the heavy German court a note of lightness, brightness and Parisian chic in her costumes, which has affected the ladies of the court like an invigorating tonic."

KILLS BABY BROTHER PLAYING HOLDUP MAN

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Chicago, Sept. 30.—While playing holdup man with his brother, Philip Egan, 4 years old, was shot in the head and instantly killed by his 8-year-old brother Willie today. The boys were alone, playing together all morning. Finally the older boy discovered his father's revolver under the pillow, and during the excitement in the subsequent game of "holdup" discharged the gun. The bullet struck the little fellow in the head, killing him instantly. Both mother and father were away at the time.

MAY RAISE QUARANTINE ON OCTOBER FIFTEENTH

(Journal Special Service.)
New Orleans, Sept. 30.—It is suggested that on the fifteenth of October the quarantine against yellow fever be raised and October 14 with probably be general cleaning and fumigating day. The reason for this is that it has caused the highest water in many years.

CHAMPAGNE SPRINKLED ON THE MISSISSIPPI

(Journal Special Service.)
Philadelphia, Sept. 30.—The battleship Mississippi was launched here this afternoon. Senator Money's daughter christened the vessel with champagne. Her father, acting in place of Governor Vardaman, Senator Money said that champagne was good enough for the Mississippi, and that he would not raise the cold water question.

Manila Arrives Safely.
Manila, Sept. 30.—The British steamer Chancha, which it was feared had been lost in the typhoon which a number of American passengers aboard, has arrived at this port, 36 hours overdue.

At the courthouse the situation was similar. One or two stray bridegrooms who just could not wait searched the town over for the assistance of a county clerk in order that a permit to wed might be purchased. Aside from incidents of a like nature, there was a stillness about the courthouse that was Sunday-like. Officials and dignitaries of that building celebrated Portland day along with the 100,000.

Boats Laid By.
With one exception all excursion boats on the river remained at their docks. Employees were given a holiday and visited the fair. Launches did a thriving business in conveying passengers from the city to the river entrance to the fair.

"It is by far the biggest crowd that the railroads have handled in connection with the Lewis and Clark fair," said A. D. Charlton, assistant passenger agent of the Northern Pacific. "Yesterday the trains coming into Portland were packed and this morning there were more than have come to the exposition at any one time."
Other railroad officials made similar statements. On the Southern Pacific, O. R. & N., and other roads entering Portland the crowds were enormous.

An Odd Parade.
One of the features of the street crowds was a procession of two dozen men with banners announcing the 100,000th anniversary of the fair management. They were old men and each carried a tin horn with which he added to the noise and clamor of the streets. They paraded the city during the forenoon.

Every available man in the service of the street car company worked during the day. On the four lines of the company leading to the exposition grounds cars were run at intervals of every two minutes. Practically every car in the shops was pressed into service. It was one of the largest crowds ever handled by the Consolidated Car company.

In the vast number of persons that were handled by the street cars and in the great crowds that surrounded the gates at the exposition there were no accidents. Police officers were stationed at frequent intervals along the principal streets where the crowds were heaviest, and many mishaps averted. Police officers were forced to work overtime in order that a sufficient number might be on duty during the day to look after the crowds.

Busy Day for Police.
This is a busy day for the police force and the officers of the first and second reliefs are being required to do extra duty on account of the large crowds which have to be handled. Chief of Police Grimmacher issued an order last night governing the disposition of patrolmen; instructions were also issued to the detective, who will be on duty practically all day and for a good part of the night.

Half the patrolmen of the first night relief were called on to report at headquarters at 9 o'clock this morning and worked until noon under Sergeant Hoegboom; at noon the remainder took their places under Captain Moore. The patrolmen of the second night relief, Captain Bailey, have been instructed to report at 5 o'clock tonight, instead of 11:30, the regular hour, and will work through until 7:30 tomorrow morning.
By this method, though the men have to lose needed sleep, the town will be kept thoroughly policed under unusual conditions. None of the men grumbled over being called on to do extra duty, all seeming to feel that in a measure they were contributing to the welfare of the city on Portland day.

PEEPING TOM CAUGHT AT THE CORSET SHOW

(Journal Special Service.)
St. Louis, Sept. 30.—A "peeping Tom" was escorted to the doors of the dress-makers convention hall, the intruder having had the audacity to gaze upon Madame Baker's model during her demonstration. The peeper's name is given as Thomas Bridewell. He was caught in a room to the side of the lecture platform, where he concealed himself in the portieres to take in the human form divine which was being displayed by Madame Baker in varicolored suits of union underwear.

The intruder's desire to get as close as possible to the articles of exhibition caused his downfall, for while craning his neck to catch sight of a particularly asymmetrical figure he fell through the doorway, exposed to the view of several hundred women.
An officer was summoned and Bridewell promised to go peacefully. Madame Baker consented and the discomfited peeper, suffused with blushes, started for the street door while the audience cried "for shame."

GENTLEMEN'S AGREEMENT

state Commerce commission power to fix freight rates, will be a death blow to the commerce of the Pacific coast by the establishment of a graded distance freight rate, which is the only kind of freight, the government under the present law can enforce.
"Such an act, he declares, would stop all railroad development in the northwest as shipping could only be done from where the raw product is grown or secured, and the place of manufacture from local raw products. There would be no more trade developed by hauling material across the continent. Manufacturers would have to cease operations, except where they could secure the finished material for their products."

The main object of Hill's visit to the coast is to strengthen the backbone of the Northern Securities capitalists in his anti-Harriman fight by showing the wonderful possibilities of the country tapped by the Hill lines. The party goes to Portland, at present the most
