

BIRDS OF EVERY BREED FROM MANY STATES ON SHOW AT FAIR

Exhibition of Poultry Attracts Many Visitors at Exposition.

WASHINGTON HAS THE MOST ENTRIES

Total of Twelve Hundred Birds Competing for Prizes Which Aggregate Two Thousand Dollars—Judging Is Now On.

Vain as peacocks because of their selection to compete for prizes in the poultry show at the fair, about 1,200 birds of all breeds, sizes and colors have assumed drawing-room airs and in every way possible are trying to attract attention to themselves, with an excellent degree of success. Persons who fail to see these gallinaceous lords and ladies strutting up and down their cages, clucking, scratching around in the sawdust and thrusting their heads inquisitively between the bars in order to see what is going on outside will miss a treat.

Chicken fanciers say that undoubtedly this is the best show of the kind ever afforded west of the Rockies. And it is not confined to chickens by any means. Included in the show are some of the best specimens of pigeons, ducks and geese to be seen anywhere. That the exhibition is of unusual merit is attested by the number of people who yesterday and today visited two of the large barns on the peninsula erected for the livestock show, which are now filled with poultry entries. All the walls are lined with cages and two rows extend up and down the center of the structure.

Two thousand dollars in cash awards is to be distributed as prizes, of which $1,500 was set apart by the exposition management, the remainder being contributed in special awards offered by companies and individuals. There are seven classes of awards and the amounts range from 50 cents to $10.

In addition to the cash prizes three beautiful silver trophies are now on exhibition and will be awarded. One is a cup, which will be presented by the Oregon State Poultry association for the largest and best exhibit offered by a member of that body; the second is a punch bowl offered by the Northwest Poultry Journal for the best individual exhibit, one variety; the third is a cup placed up by the Ivory Soap company for the best white fowl of either sex, washed with its product. These three exhibits are now in possession of Charley Minton, editor of the Northwest Poultry Journal.

While the Pacific coast is best represented, many other states have exhibits. Washington has the most entries, a total of 374; Oregon comes next, with 336; California has 125. The states represented are Utah, Idaho, Missouri, Kansas, Kentucky, Nebraska, Wisconsin and Connecticut. The three coast states are exhibitors of almost all the ducks, geese and pigeons. American, Mediterranean, Polish, Hamburg, English and Asiatic chickens are present in almost every variety. The collection of Barred and White Plymouth Rocks is the best ever cooped on the coast. About 200 each of these breeds are on exhibition. There is an excellent display of Brown and White Leghorns, the same being true of the Buff Orpington class. In quality, it is said, the latter has never been excelled anywhere. The exhibit of Hamburg and Polish chickens is also attracting a large amount of attention.

G. T. Hunt, Secretary Poultry Division, Lewis and Clark Exposition.

Five incubator displays are made. Something seldom seen at shows of this kind is a machine to crush crockery, glassware and other materials into grit for the chickens. The birds are all looked after by a retinue of attendants. One huge Plymouth Rock rooster is inclined to be combative and the feathers on his neck spread out like the quills on a porcupine when he is teased. Others are very tame and like to be stroked. One huge specimen enjoys nothing better than being taken out of his cage once or twice daily and allowed to strut up and down on top of the cages. His crowing on these occasions sets every rooster in the barn to tooting his own horn and bedlam results.

The judges did not begin their work until this morning. They expect to be through by tomorrow night or Monday. The competition is principally between Oregon, Washington and California exhibitors.

L. Patterson, Richard Scott and A. B. Steinbach. Portland must have a deep channel to the sea. It is absolutely imperative that we have the facilities to handle the largest ships that float the high seas. This port must be opened under the most favorable conditions to the commerce of the world," declared A. B. Steinbach. "The board of trade will take up this matter and work in harmony with other Portland commercial bodies. It is probable we will ask for a joint committee, representing the board and other organizations, and the campaign will be pressed in a systematic and effective manner. Our committee will meet and decide upon the method it will pursue for the board. Our organization is working constantly to further Portland's interests. We are doing some good."

The board of trade will memorialize congress in addition to other work it may do. The government at Washington will receive from it a strong resolution, setting forth conditions here, and obstacles that must be overcome to place the port of Portland on an equal footing with the great harbors of the world.

To Keep Down Tax Levy. To offset the raising of valuations on city property by Assessor Sigler an effort will be made by the taxpayers' league to keep the tax levy down to the lowest possible point. A meeting was held at the office of L. J. Goldsmith yesterday afternoon at which a committee was appointed, composed of J. N. Teal, F. W. Mulkey, A. L. Mills, Henry Hahn and L. J. Goldsmith, to confer with the various city departments.

SUNSET MAGAZINE TO HELP IN CAMPAIGN

Staff of Photographers and Writers Is Now Visiting Every Part of the State to Secure Pictures and Data on Resources and Scenery.

A heavy advertising campaign for its Oregon territory has been commenced by the Southern Pacific company. The company has sent a staff of photographers and writers into the state, who are taking pictures and securing data concerning industrial affairs and resources of all kinds, to be used in railroad and steamship folders, and in the Sunset magazine.

The photographers are centering their efforts in securing pictures and data of the dried fruits, packing-houses and orchards of Salem, Dundee, Dallas and Albany; the apples, orchards and packing-houses of Medford and Central Point; the hop industry at Salem, Independence and Eugene; fish at Astoria; woolen mills at Oregon City; Salem and Brownsville; flouring mills of Portland, Oregon City and Salem; paper mills at Lebanon and Oregon City; dairies and condensed milk factories at Hillaboro, Forest Grove, Independence, Albany, North Yamhill, Hazel Fern farm and Crystal Springs farm, near Portland; lumber mills of the Inman-Poulsen company, Portland Lumber company and Eastern & Western Lumber company, and mills at Salem, Grants Pass and Springfield; excelsior factory at Eugene; chair factory at Albany; fruit canneries at Eugene, Salem, Springbrook and Portland; scenery on the Columbia, Willamette, Rogue and Umpqua rivers, and state institutions at Salem, Chemawa, Corvallis and Eugene. Photographs of Oregon forests will be taken at various points.

It is the company's intention to feature Oregon along with California, in all its immigration literature, and in Sunset, from this time forth, and a special effort will be made to publish to the world the splendid resources of the Willamette, Umpqua and Rogue river valley.

Southern Oregon is also to receive special attention this month from the advertising department of the Harriman lines in Oregon. E. M. Hill, head of the advertising bureau, will leave for the south as soon as the exposition closes. He will devote some time to gathering statistics and photographs of the fruit and agricultural industries and manufacturing enterprises. It is said that from this date A. L. Craig's department will push the publicity of southern Oregon's resources with the same vigor heretofore his men applied to the advertising of the Hood river valley.

UNREQUITED LOVE CAUSE OF ATTEMPTED SUICIDE

Miss Mabel Hawthorne, who lives at 375 Seventh street, bears scars and burns on her face as the result of an attempt at suicide yesterday by the carbolic acid route. Her friends who also live at 375 Seventh street declare that she committed the deed because of dependency. "It is said to have become infatuated with a young man who refused to return her affections, and desperate because of his actions, she decided to end her life. She swallowed the drug yesterday afternoon and the services of two physicians were necessary to save her life. "It's nobody's business if she did try to kill herself because she loved that fellow," said a young woman who lives at 375 Seventh street. "She was in love, but she is my friend and I don't want anybody to know that I told on her."

Action of the Cecilian.

The latest triumph in piano player construction is the new metal action adopted by the Cecilian. In this as in all other matters of development it remained for the Cecilian to secure it first. It is by all odds the greatest improvement in the manufacture of piano players. It is absolutely impervious to any change in climate, does not swell with moisture or warp when dry, it is light, responsive, accurate and always reliable.

You do not know the real joys of a piano player if you have never seen and heard the Cecilian. You can get the effect of the greatest artists in your own home at your own pleasure if you have the Cecilian. It is the premier player of the world. So simple, so easy to operate that a child without musical education can control it perfectly. We want you to see it, try it for yourself and learn how easy it is. The masterpiece of the world at your own command. Come in at any hour of the business day and we will take pleasure in demonstrating its features to your own satisfaction. D'Urbano Wins Case.

In Justice Reid's court yesterday the case against Lewis D'Urbano, bandmaster, was dismissed. He was the defendant in a suit brought by Nicola Casciato and Donato Bognone, saloon-keepers in the south end, who claimed to have provided money for the members of the band of which D'Urbano is leader. Judgment was sought in the sum of $25.54 for board, $31.35 for a suit of clothes, and $65 for sheet music. Judge Reid found that the bandmaster was not indebted to the plaintiffs.

Go to Penitentiary.

HARBORMASTER SAYS THEY LAUGH AT HIM

Harbormaster Ben Biglin declares that the present ordinance requiring motor-boats and launches on the river to carry live preservers and life buoys cannot be enforced; that the owners of small craft laugh at him and he is of the opinion that another ordinance, which can be enforced, should be passed by the city council.

He has as a champion Councilman Shepherd, who introduced an ordinance modifying the Rushlight ordinance now in effect, in many particulars. Councilman Shepherd stated that he and Mr. Biglin had conferred on the subject and
