WILL CONTEST WILL OF LATE P. G. MARTIN

The first legal skirmish in the contesting of the will of the late Peter G. Martin, who died in this city October 10, was witnessed this morning before County-Judge Lionel R. Webster. The will was admitted to probate and Attorneys T. B. McDevitt and J. F. Booth gave notice that a contest would be

Martin willed that the majority of his property be given his daughter, Mrs. Delia Hall. Three other daughters—Mrs. Mary Keller, Mrs. Cassie Donahue and Mrs. Elizabeth Hall—aver that undue influence was used upon him. The estate is said to be valued at $6,000.

Father Black testified that he drew up the will for Martin last April, according to a request made by the old man. Through the Portland chamber of commerce men interested in the live-stock industry on the Pacific slope have proposed the establishment of a permanent institution to be known as the annual Pacific Coast Livestock show. They say Portland is the center of the livestock industry on this coast, and is the best place for holding an annual show, and it is suggested that some of the buildings at the exposition grounds be donated for the undertaking.

John L. Smith, president of the Interstate Livestock Breeders' association, is said to have started the movement. He talked the matter over with leading breeders at the exposition, who received the proposition favorably.

is said to have started the movement. He talked the matter over with leading breeders at the exposition, who received the proposition favorably.

M. D. Wisdom, superintendent of live-stock exhibits at the Lawis and Clark exposition, has written a letter to the chamber of commerce, asking that it see if something cannot be done to provide a home for the first show. He points out that such an institution would bring a large number of livestock men to this city at least once every year, spread Portland's prestige and trade to distant ranges and be a good thing in every way for the city. He believes the business men should take up the enterprise and push it along.

At the next meeting of the board of trustees of the chamber the question will be considered. A letter from Mr. Smith has been submitted in which it is stated that he discussed the project with a member of the Washington state commission of the exposition, who suggested that Washington might donate the state building now on the exposition grounds as one of the pseded structures for a permanent livestock show, if grounds conveniently located were secured upon which the building might be moved. It is said California and Oregon and possibly Idaho will be enlisted in the undertaking, and their buildings would be enough to insure a large and successful show from the beginning.

At a recent meeting of the Inland Registered Stock Breeders' association, held at Spokane, the annual show proposition was heartly indorsed and Portland was favored as the best location for it.

Next Sunday morning Dr. John Baptist will speak at the Hassalo Street Congregational church. Dr. Baptist has made for himself a reputation as a strong and eloquent lecturer. He tells his personal experiences at the capital of the Ottoman empire. Dr. Baptist has been here in America for a number of years and this is his first visit to Portland.
