

SLAVE TRAFFIC IN WHY HUNT FAILED

Revenue Cutter Bear Reports Shocking Conditions Among Indians of Alaska.

GIRLS SOLD TO WHALERS FOR GUNS AND WEAPONS

Mere Child Is Kidnaped by Captain Newth of the Whaler Jeanette Who Escapes Arrest by Flight into Polar Waters—Many Indicted.

(Journal Special Service.)
 San Francisco, Nov. 4.—Under a special commission of the department of justice the United States revenue cutter Bear has returned from a long cruise in Arctic waters, where for months the vessel was employed in breaking up illicit traffic in liquor and in raids upon the natives which have been the scandal of the Alaskan coast for years.

The cruise uncovered shocking conditions among Indians and revealed a state of affairs fully sustained in reports sent authorities at Washington of immorality in traffic in human flesh and whiskey, which caused the department of justice to commission the Bear's officers.

Particular attention was given to trafficking in native girls. A number of young victims of whalers were taken in charge and sent to Nome as witnesses. Among them was a mere child who, it was charged, was kidnaped by Captain Newth of the whaler Jeanette. One of the purposes of the cruise was to arrest Newth, for whom a warrant was issued. The captain is charged with having lured young native girls aboard his vessel and carried them off. Newth escaped the Bear because of open weather in the Arctic.

So flagrant was the case of Jerome, a shore whaler at Wainwright inlet, above Point Hope, that he was given a hearing before Captain Hamlet, aboard the cutter and bound over to the grand jury at Nome. Jerome is accused of having bought native girls trading for them with their parents' guns and ammunition. He and girl witnesses were taken to Nome on the Bear.

BELIEVED FULTON WILL NOT SUBMIT LONGER

proved unsatisfactory to Hitchcock. It seems now to be Fulton's intention to insist upon the appointment of Hearst unless some sound objection is brought forward by the secretary of the interior.

Fulton Is Cautious.

But though it is plain that a crisis is near at hand, Senator Fulton will not admit that there is danger of a breach between himself and the president.

"I have no reason to suppose," said he, "that the president will accord to me any different treatment from that which he accorded to senators from other states. I do not doubt for a moment that the president is disposed to act in the spirit of perfect fairness. I realize that exceptional conditions prevail here in Oregon, but I am not ready to concede that this justifies the assumption that no man in the state is honest. And yet it is not surprising that these conditions lead the president to move more cautiously in matters pertaining to Oregon than he otherwise would."

But in spite of the conciliatory tone which Senator Fulton adopts it is plain that he is preparing for a possible crisis. He will go east November 15, arriving in Washington about the 20th, and he expects to take up with the president immediately on his arrival, the matter of federal patronage in Oregon. He has already promised that at that time he will make the long deferred appointment of United States district judge, and the Roseburg appointment will also be settled.

McBride Fulton's Choice.

The judicial appointment is not likely to be productive of any friction. Judge McBride is Fulton's first choice, but he would not offer any objection either to Justice Bean or Justice Wolcott, and it is generally supposed that some one of the three will receive the appointment. All were on the list of eligibles submitted to the president by Senator Fulton.

The Roseburg appointment will not be so easily settled, and Fulton is undoubtedly will insist on a specific statement of Hitchcock's objections to Hearst. That will raise the direct issue between the senator and the secretary.

"I do not know the ground of Secretary Hitchcock's objections," said Senator Fulton. "I believe Mr. Hearst is thoroughly qualified for the place. In any event, he is a man of high character, and the appointment will be a man of my selection and not of Secretary Hitchcock's."

May Be Clash Over Reed.

Still another source of possible conflict in the United States marshalship. Only a month remains before congress meets and the president must then send in to the senate some nomination for the office. C. J. Reed being only an interim appointee. If Roosevelt should seek to make Reed's appointment permanent there will be a clash, for it is no longer a secret that Fulton will not under any circumstances consent to a confirmation. Reed's tenure of the office therefore cannot be long protracted, for in pursuance of its invariable cus-

WHY HUNT FAILED TO GET DUCKS

Former Chief of Police Marooned on Deer Island Because He Has No License to Shoot.

CONSTABLE KEEPS GUARD OVER HIM

Frantic Appeal to County Authorities From Barricaded Hunter Results at Last in Sending of Coveted Permit to Kill.

The next time ex-Chief of Police Charles H. Hunt goes hunting, about the first thing he will do is to store away in a crevice of the same bag a license to shoot. For which precaution there seems to be an excellent excuse.

The ex-chief took it into his head last Wednesday to go down the river to Deer Island and get some ducks. He arrived there in the pink of condition, fully supplied with the physical necessities of the trip, and sat up the latter half of the night waiting for a chance to draw a bead on the flock which he was confident would rise to breathe the early morning air. At last the opportunity was at hand. The favorite shotgun was pointed skyward at a beautiful quarry as ever an Oregonian beheld. At that critical moment a constable appeared.

"What's your license, stranger?"

"The ex-chief's forehead trembled on the trigger.

"By Jove, I forgot it!"

"Well, there ain't no shooting done here without no license."

"But I am Chief Hunt of Portland, sir, and it was just an oversight."

"Don't care if you're Grover Cleveland—you can't shoot here or I'll run you in."

There was nothing to do but submit to the inevitable, and because the telephone line was out of order the corpulent figure of local politics has been lingering in the wilds of Deer Island for a full day waiting for a license.

This morning he established communication with the county clerk's office. There was more indignation at the exacting queries of the license clerk as to age, weight, height, etc., but the license was finally issued and will start late this afternoon. It is assumed that by tomorrow noon the chief will get a shot at a duck.

DYING NEGRO IS CARRIED TO SCAFFOLD AND HANGED

(Journal Special Service.)
 South McAlester, Okla., Nov. 4.—Grant Williams, a negro murderer, was hanged yesterday in the federal jail. He was so weak that he was strapped to two boards and carried to the scaffold by guards. Williams has been critically ill for several days, waiting for a license, that he was in a dying condition from consumption when taken to the scaffold. An effort was made to have the execution deferred a few days as it was believed he would have died of natural causes within 48 hours, but the effort failed. Williams' neck was broken by the fall.

GIRL RIDES A HUNDRED MILES CLINGING TO CAR

(Journal Special Service.)
 Chicago, Nov. 4.—Smarting under harsh words from her mother who upbraided her at her home in Peru, Illinois, for breaking dishes while washing them, Marie Petraski, 11 years old, rode for five hours over 100 miles of prairie lands, hanging by an iron ladder leading to the top of a freight car. The train had nearly reached Joliet, Illinois, before she was discovered in her perilous position, and taken to the caboose by the trainmen, where she finished the journey to Joliet. She was on her way to Chicago, where she is expected to find shelter with her cousin.

RAILROADS TO CHANGE BAGGAGE REGULATIONS

(Journal Special Service.)
 Chicago, Nov. 4.—The Western Passenger association is considering the advisability of making important changes in rules governing transportation of baggage. General agents have recommended the adoption of restrictions as to liability for lost or damaged baggage. The new regulations are sought to limit the liability to $100, but this provision, inserted in the railroad ticket, has been held invalid.

It is now proposed to retain the limit but to legislate it by giving the passenger the privilege of declaring more value at the time of checking the trunk. In that event it is likely that a sliding scale of rates will be provided, in effect to make the railroad company insurer of the property.

tom the senate will refuse to confirm him if Fulton objects.

Oddly enough, the job-chasers do not seem to realize that the office may soon become vacant. So far as can be discovered not one of them has begun wirepulling to get the appointment. It goes without saying, of course, that Jack Matthews would eagerly jump at any chance to get back into the office, but his record is such that it is unlikely that he will be considered for the position. No one else seems to have realized that the office may soon be seeking an occupant.

W. BOLTON KEEPS FELLOW GUEST UNDER CLOUD

Man Reported Missing a Week Ago Now Said to Be Embezzler by His Employer.

AMOUNT OF SUPPOSED DEFALCATION UNKNOWN

Absent Agent Was in Employ of Pacific Coast Biscuit Company and to the Time of His Departure Stood Well.

Rather than face the consequences of his alleged embezzlement from the Pacific Coast Biscuit company, William C. Bolton has gone to parts unknown, leaving his wife and children to mourn his absence. He was reported to the police as missing a week ago, but it was not known until yesterday that he is an embezzler, as alleged. On making this discovery, a member of the company reported the affair to the police and an attempt will be made to locate him.

Bolton was employed as traveling salesman by the company and was looked on as not only energetic, but conscientious and honest in the discharge of his duties. When he disappeared, Henry Wittenberg, manager of the company, made a report to the police. The missing salesman lived at 321 Russell street.

After the lapse of several days, nothing being heard from Bolton, the anxiety of his wife increased to alarm and she became almost sick from worry. The discovery of her husband's alleged pecuniary profligacy has prostrated her.

An examination of the books of the firm, it is said, has resulted in the discovery up to date of the embezzlement of about $100. Circumstances are said to have convinced the officials of the company that time will show the shortage to be a much larger figure.

The father-in-law of Bolton called at police headquarters this morning and inquired whether anything had been heard of the whereabouts of his son-in-law. He admitted that Bolton was a defaulter, but did not think the amount will prove so large as expected by company officials.

The alleged defaulter is about 5 feet 10 inches tall, slender of build and dark complexioned. He is 30 years old. Previous to entering the employ of the Pacific Coast Biscuit company he conducted a drug store at Albina.

The mob is pillaging Jewish shops in the main streets, burning factories and sacking stores. All were found at several stations have been burned and many of the largest establishments in the city have gone up in flames.

At Kishineff, Kishineff states that the streets are red with blood and Jews are being slaughtered by hundreds, homes pillaged and women despoiled. Kishineff is reported in flames and the greater part destroyed. It proclaimed that at Nikolaioff the bandits have control of the situation and are devastating homes and shops without hindrance.

At Kieff the Jewish quarter has been given up to plunder and murder. The dead number several hundred.

JAILS ARE EMPTIED.

Political Prisoners Freed and Other Convicts Have Sentences Reduced.

(Journal Special Service.)
 St. Petersburg, Nov. 4.—The ukase of the czar granting amnesty was made public this morning and it proclaimed that a free pardon is extended by the emperor to all political prisoners and to all participants in strikes and persons responsible for breaking contracts. The pardon extends to those who have not yet been tried or sentenced. Those convicted of crimes more than 10 years ago will be released or transferred as colonists to Siberia. Those now serving as convicts will be sentenced to three years to choose a residence, but not to live in St. Petersburg or Moscow for three years. The sentences of convicts of other classes will be reduced one half and life sentences cut down to 15 years.

The ukase abolishes the press censorship and all regulations issued for the observance of the press are withdrawn. The chief of administration of the printing bureau is prohibited from issuing new rules.

Prince Alexis Obolensky is appointed successor to Pobedonostoff as chief procurator of the holy synod of the Russian church.

STRIKE IS ENDED.

General Resumption of Work in St. Petersburg—Nation Quietly Down.

(Journal Special Service.)
 St. Petersburg, Nov. 4.—There was a general resumption of work today and rioting has practically ended. Streets are still patrolled by Cossack and street barricades are being demolished and business taking on its normal appearance. Fearful rioting is in progress in Southern Russian cities and Finland is in control of the revolutionists, but in other parts of the empire the strike is breaking up and the nation calming down.

The newspapers appeared today and the electric light plant is again in operation. Anti-Jewish demonstrations continue in Odessa, Rostoff, Mariopol, Romny, Smolensk and other towns though the persecution is dying down.

Revolutionary sentiment is making remarkable headway among the troops stationed in Poland. Revolutionary meetings are largely attended by both people and troops, but the city continues quiet and the crisis is past, although the revolutionists are constantly gaining in strength.

At Moscow the situation is peaceful. The British consulate at Kieff is reported to have been riddled with bullets. An attack on the British consul was stopped by the soldiers.

Pastor Asked to Resign Calls for Vote of Members and Wins Contention.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
 Grants Pass, Or., Nov. 4.—At a called meeting of the members of Bethany Presbyterian church of this city yesterday it was decided by a vote of 86 to 24, that Rev. Harry Brown be retained as minister of the church. A few days ago Rev. Mr. Brown received notice from the church session of elders and deacons that he should hand in his resignation at once, the brief reason given being that he was not fulfilling his contract with the church. Rev. Mr. Brown refused to resign merely at the request of the elders and begged for a vote of the membership. The meeting was one of lively interest. One member stated during the meeting that things have become so badly stirred up in Bethany church that it would be impossible to find a man that would give satisfaction to all. When the question was brought to a vote, only 34 voted for the minister's ejection; 66 were in favor of retaining him.

Rev. Mr. Brown was not present at the meeting, as he is away holding a revival in Klamath county, but he was informed by telephone of the result. He will possibly return in time to be in Bethany again next Sunday. He is a native of Oregon and has been in the ministry for many years.

MURDER OF FRIEND ENDS JOKE BETWEEN ITALIANS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
 Butte, Mont., Nov. 4.—Peter Coello, an Italian, was assassinated early this morning by Antonio Masseno, a country-bred man who has been his friend. They began joking and finally ended quarreling. Masseno on leaving vowed he would come back and get Coello.

Coello had occasion to leave his saloon a few minutes later and as he was standing on the rear porch Masseno crept up and fired, killing Coello with the first shot. He then fled and was captured shortly afterwards at his home. Masseno begged to be locked up at once, fearing the wrath of the victim's friends. He acknowledged shooting Coello, declaring that the latter had cut him during the quarrel and had threatened to kill him.

EX-GOVERNOR GEER UNABLE TO DECIDE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
 Pendleton, Or., Nov. 4.—"Everywhere I have stopped recently I have been asked if I am to become a candidate for governor or a seat in the United States senate," said ex-Governor T. T. Geer last night, who is stopping at the Hotel Hamilton in New York. "and I will answer your similar query by saying that I have not made up my mind on the question yet. I prefer to wait until the people are through talking before I make a decision."

000, Hearst in the neighborhood of 120,000 and Tilden in the vicinity of 100,000. The Hearst people claim 200,000, but at least 100,000 of these are "zephyrs."

War Against Bosses.

The secret of Hearst's strength, as of Jerome's, is the hostility of the people to machine rule and to the combination of politics and franchise grafters. The independent candidacy of Mr. Hearst was conceived as a mere protest. He is now leading what many persons conceive is a revolution in both parties.

Mr. Hearst's campaign has been an extraordinary one. He has never had a reputation as a public speaker, and it must be admitted that his meetings have been distinctly genuine and popular. He is cheered more vigorously than either of the other candidates for mayor, and he has undoubtedly had of him today a larger personal following in New York City than any man, excepting Jerome himself.

McClellan's Foot Campaign.

Back of the Hearst movement is the Bryan following, but in addition are larger numbers who are disgusted with the domination of the rich classes, and who look to municipal ownership for relief.

Mayor McClellan has presented to the people a singularly colorless campaign. He has manifestly dodged any reference to the bosses. He has talked studiously about greater supply of the school tax on mortgages, and similar topics, while the people have been howling themselves hoarse with indignation against the boss rule of Murphy and Odell. If McClellan had from the outset asserted his independence and convinced the people that his administration was entirely free from the domination of Murphy and Tammany hall, the Hearst movement would not have had a ghost of a show.

Last night Hearst spoke to tremendous mass meetings at Staten Island, while McClellan made nine speeches to hall filled houses in Brooklyn, where Hearst has had to have overflow meetings.

Mrs. Brennan, upon being questioned, replied at first simply by nodding her head, but under the influence of stimulants administered by attending physicians she revived sufficiently to tell a rambling story of suddenly awakening in the night and seeing a man peering through a window that had been opened. The stranger immediately fired several shots in rapid succession, the last one striking her and the murderer then ran away.

DOCTOR IS ARRESTED FOR SUIT-CASE CRIME

(Journal Special Service.)
 Boston, Nov. 4.—Dr. Percy D. McLeod was arraigned in court today following his arrest yesterday on a charge of performing an operation that resulted in the death of Susanne Geary, the victim of the Withrop baby-suitcase mystery. It is alleged that McLeod was called after an operation had been performed in a Tremont street house and in an effort to save the girl's life performed another operation. The girl died and the doctor, it is charged, dismembered the body to conceal the crime.

Police and witnesses from the city have identified Crawford and Howard, the two men arrested in New York, as has the pawnbroker that sold the suitcases.
