

THE OREGON DAILY JOURNAL

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

Published every evening (except Sunday) and every Sunday morning at The Journal Building, 7th and Yamhill streets, Portland, Oregon.

OREGON ON THE BLACKLIST.

IT APPEARS that Oregon is blacklisted in Washington, D. C. in regard to irrigation projects. The Klamath reclamation project is apparently going through, but that is really a California rather than an Oregon enterprise...

treaty violation, of which we should be ashamed, and that should be righted.

In the second place, China thinks the exempt classes should be extended to include bankers, lawyers, journalists, clergymen, physicians, dentists, insurance agents, brokers and traveling commercial agents...

THE PRACTICAL CONFESSION OF TAMMANY.

THE POSITION taken by Tammany, that the returns of last week's election as counted are conclusive, and will be considered so by the courts, is at once, in the face of the evidence already in sight, an affront and an insult to every honest voter in New York city...

NEW CURE FOR APPENDICITIS.

GERMAN PHYSICIANS are curing appendicitis without using the knife. This unorthodox and revolutionary procedure has been so far advanced that it will probably become common practice ultimately.

Appendicitis, a new name in medical science, has been made the scapegoat for a multitude of afflictions. Troubles within the abdominal cavity which in the past proved fatal or but temporary afflictions, and were too frequently given a generic term of broad significance...

Collagol, a silver solution, is the specific heralded from the land of many scientific triumphs. Dr. Moosbrugger of Leutkirch had experimented with 72 cases when reports were made of his work, and in all save two, which were far advanced, recovery was complete.

LOOK OUT FOR LEGISLATIVE CANDIDATES.

VOTERS of Multnomah county cannot begin too soon to consider whom they will nominate next spring for the legislature. Thirteen representatives and two senators must be chosen. Where so many are to be selected it is easy for unfit men to secure nomination.

It is unsafe to leave the consideration of candidates until the eve of the primaries. As a general rule, the least desirable candidates for office are those who are most anxious for election. Such candidates are always early in the field and unremitting in their efforts.

THE CHINESE MINISTER'S SPEECH.

THE SPEECH of the Chinese minister Saturday evening at Chicago was temperate, sensible and diplomatic. In this it was in pleasing contrast to the public utterances of his predecessor, Wu Ting Fang. What China wants for one thing is better treatment, such as is accorded other foreigners in like positions...

Astor Says He Is English.

From the New York American. William Waldorf Astor, Jr., attired in crumpled hat, monocle, waistcoat or scientific-looking hues, arrayed in long dark overcoat and brown shoes, arrived in New York on the Cedric yesterday from his home in England. Two years ago he declared himself an American to the customs officials, but yesterday, when they asked him his nationality, he replied, laughing: "Oh, I'm English, don't you know?"

SMALL CHANGE

Nobody ought to grumble if it rains six weeks running now. Swell the Jews' relief fund. America will show Russia how this country treats Jews.

A WELL-PAID METHODIST MINISTER

Northern Budget of Troy, N. Y. Rev. Robert McIntyre, D. D., is said to be the highest salaried Methodist preacher in the world. Last spring when the Troy conference was in session at Saratoga Springs, Bishop Warren himself and occasionally refer to Dr. McIntyre, speaking of him as the "Brick-layer Preacher."

OREGON SIDELIGHTS

An Albany man has bought in Portland six German coach horses, which will be the finest animals in that vicinity. Among them is one valued at $8,000. A Medford man, who went back to Michigan a few weeks ago intending to remain has reappeared at Medford, wiser and thinner in purse and person, and will stay there.

WANTED TO BE KICKED.

From the Hood River Glacier. Robert Rand, while returning from Portland on the train, and it was made full into conversation with a couple of Dalles citizens. Mr. Rand's name was overheard by a stranger in the next seat. The stranger asked: "Is this Mr. Rand of Hood River?" Mr. Rand acknowledged from Hood River.

WANTED TO BE KICKED.

From the Hood River Glacier. Robert Rand, while returning from Portland on the train, and it was made full into conversation with a couple of Dalles citizens. Mr. Rand's name was overheard by a stranger in the next seat. The stranger asked: "Is this Mr. Rand of Hood River?" Mr. Rand acknowledged from Hood River.

WANTED TO BE KICKED.

From the Hood River Glacier. Robert Rand, while returning from Portland on the train, and it was made full into conversation with a couple of Dalles citizens. Mr. Rand's name was overheard by a stranger in the next seat. The stranger asked: "Is this Mr. Rand of Hood River?" Mr. Rand acknowledged from Hood River.

WANTED TO BE KICKED.

From the Hood River Glacier. Robert Rand, while returning from Portland on the train, and it was made full into conversation with a couple of Dalles citizens. Mr. Rand's name was overheard by a stranger in the next seat. The stranger asked: "Is this Mr. Rand of Hood River?" Mr. Rand acknowledged from Hood River.

WANTED TO BE KICKED.

From the Hood River Glacier. Robert Rand, while returning from Portland on the train, and it was made full into conversation with a couple of Dalles citizens. Mr. Rand's name was overheard by a stranger in the next seat. The stranger asked: "Is this Mr. Rand of Hood River?" Mr. Rand acknowledged from Hood River.

JUDGE A. D. HAMILTON IN EXILE

From the New York American. "Judge" Andrew D. Hamilton, the legislative agent of the New York Life Insurance company, to whom John A. McCall gave nearly $1,000,000 of the policy-holders' money, not one dollar of which has ever been accounted for...

THE PLAY

The Utopian burlesques will delight as many people this week as any of the organizations that have preceded it in the season of burlesque at the Baker. The performances, as what is popularly known as "the Utopians," are of the highest quality.

LEWIS AND CLARK

Still at Point Ellice. Nov. 13.—During the night we had short intervals of fair weather, but it began to rain in the morning and continued through the day. In order to obtain a view of the coast below, Captain Clark followed up the bank and, with much fatigue, after walking three miles, ascended the first spur of the mountains.

WANTED TO BE KICKED.

From the Hood River Glacier. Robert Rand, while returning from Portland on the train, and it was made full into conversation with a couple of Dalles citizens. Mr. Rand's name was overheard by a stranger in the next seat. The stranger asked: "Is this Mr. Rand of Hood River?" Mr. Rand acknowledged from Hood River.

WANTED TO BE KICKED.

From the Hood River Glacier. Robert Rand, while returning from Portland on the train, and it was made full into conversation with a couple of Dalles citizens. Mr. Rand's name was overheard by a stranger in the next seat. The stranger asked: "Is this Mr. Rand of Hood River?" Mr. Rand acknowledged from Hood River.

WANTED TO BE KICKED.

From the Hood River Glacier. Robert Rand, while returning from Portland on the train, and it was made full into conversation with a couple of Dalles citizens. Mr. Rand's name was overheard by a stranger in the next seat. The stranger asked: "Is this Mr. Rand of Hood River?" Mr. Rand acknowledged from Hood River.

WANTED TO BE KICKED.

From the Hood River Glacier. Robert Rand, while returning from Portland on the train, and it was made full into conversation with a couple of Dalles citizens. Mr. Rand's name was overheard by a stranger in the next seat. The stranger asked: "Is this Mr. Rand of Hood River?" Mr. Rand acknowledged from Hood River.

WANTED TO BE KICKED.

From the Hood River Glacier. Robert Rand, while returning from Portland on the train, and it was made full into conversation with a couple of Dalles citizens. Mr. Rand's name was overheard by a stranger in the next seat. The stranger asked: "Is this Mr. Rand of Hood River?" Mr. Rand acknowledged from Hood River.

WANTED TO BE KICKED.

From the Hood River Glacier. Robert Rand, while returning from Portland on the train, and it was made full into conversation with a couple of Dalles citizens. Mr. Rand's name was overheard by a stranger in the next seat. The stranger asked: "Is this Mr. Rand of Hood River?" Mr. Rand acknowledged from Hood River.

WANTED TO BE KICKED.