

BRAZIL BOASTS AN AMBASSADOR

First Diplomat From South America Distinguished by New Rank Opens Embassy.

DEBUTANTES MISSING FROM CAPITAL SOCIETY

Miss Roosevelt Drops in the Back ground—Keep Commission Has Hard Time Finding Ages of Female Clerks Who Grow Younger.

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.) Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—Senator Nubaco, the newly made ambassador from Brazil, the first diplomat in his country to be distinguished by the rank of ambassador, has opened his new embassy in Washington with promises of some interesting entertainments. There are two very talented and attractive women with this embassy—Madame Nubaco and Madame de Pederniras, wife of the military attaché. The embassy occupies the home of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Ludlow. It is filled with splendid trophies of land and sea brought home by the admiral. Mrs. Ludlow is the sister of John R. McLean, controller of the Washington Post, and of Mrs. Dewey. One of the features of the winter will be that the debutantes class is so small that the usual entertainments of December will be totally missing. From the official families the first band of the season will be Miss Helen Chaffee, youngest daughter of the lieutenant-general of the army, who has already had some experience in society during the past summer, when she accompanied her parents on their official visit to Paris and London.

Miss Alice All Back.
All of the Roosevelts are back except the one at Harvard, and he is not even quarantined, to revive an old joke, because he plays at and. And coincidentally all came home by way of the water—Miss Alice across the great Pacific, the President through Atlantic waters and Mrs. Roosevelt, with the younger children, up the raging Potomac.

Miss Alice has been in town some time, has appeared at the theatre, yet has been somewhat in the background since the transcontinental time race was stopped when about half way finished, the main gossip concerning her being connected with the arrival of her gifts at the Georgetown custom-house for appraisal.

Back Old Maid's Ages.

The Keep commission appointed by the president to investigate graft in the various state departments, better known as the Keep-Mum commission, are having a real time getting the honest ages of the female clerks. It is not tabulated in a manner that every one in the wide world can see. They speak of the approach of the "impertinent things" with fear and trembling, and all well understand that if they do about it and are caught there is a terrible punishment to be meted out to them.

Explains Age Records.

On comparing notes of one department with another it was found, according to the record, that a mother in the post-office was only 10 years older than her daughter in the treasury department. When called upon to explain the short disparity the mother said that the clerk must have made a mistake in entering her name when she first came into the office.

MILTON-FREEWATER SEASON IS CLOSING

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Milton, Or., Nov. 17.—The fruit season in the Milton and Freewater district is about at an end. There were shipped this year 15,000 crates of more than 5,000 crates of cherries, 5,000 crates of dewberries, blackberries and raspberries, and hundreds of boxes of asparagus, new potatoes, peas, beans and other early vegetables. Ten carloads of mixed fruits were shipped later in the season, 35 carloads of prunes and 30 carloads of apples.

FARMER INSTALLS ELECTRIC SYSTEM

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Weston, Or., Nov. 17.—C. W. Steen, a farmer residing on Day creek, four miles from Weston, has installed an electric lighting system consisting of a four-horsepower gasoline engine and a small dynamo. With this his residence, cellar and barn are brilliantly lighted at a cost of only $2 a month. Mr. Steen is the first in the county to do this, and he makes this improvement and others who have looked over his plant intend to follow his example.

LIFESAVING STATIONS TO BE IMPROVED

Six in Oregon and Three in Washington to Be Put in First Class Condition.

Thousands of dollars will be expended by the federal government in the next few months in repairing and improving the life saving stations along the coast of Oregon and Washington. There are six life saving stations scattered along the Oregon coast and three in Washington, between the mouth of the Coquille river and the entrance to Puget sound.

This morning, Captain D. F. Tozier, local inspector for the Thirteenth life saving district, received a telegram from Washington, D. C., ordering him to proceed as soon as possible on an inspection tour along the northwest coast. He had hardly finished reading the message from the east when another was received from Major T. J. Blankny, department inspector at San Francisco, ordering all the stations put in the best condition possible. Captain Tozier expects to leave on his tour November 23, going first to Bandon, Oregon, at the mouth of the Coquille river. He will then work up the coast.

(Continued from Page One.) H. M. Calk, president of the Portland Commercial club, and Tom Richardson also spoke briefly. They both paid great tribute to Eugene as being the finest city in western Oregon outside of Portland. Their remarks were happily received.

TRIED FOR CRIME HE ACCUSED ANOTHER OF

(Journal Special Service.) Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 17.—The trial of Gustav Holthorn at Edmondton, charged with murdering William Leslie, the storekeeper at Fort Saskatchewan, where Holthorn was postmaster, has taken a sensational turn: The accused has been acquitted and Ludwig Lilgic, the chief witness against him, is now charged with the crime.

TO ABANDON PERSONALLY CONDUCTED EXCURSIONS

(Journal Special Service.) Chicago, Nov. 17.—The railroads of the west have decided to abandon the personally conducted tourist business to the coast and other distant points of interest. Hereafter none of the roads will handle cars which have personal conductors.

GRESHAM PLANNING TO HAVE FIRE PROTECTION

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Gresham, Or., Nov. 17.—The Gresham town council at its last meeting decided that it must have fire protection and has appointed a committee to look into the matter and report at the next meeting. The committee is contemplating recommending a city hall of two stories that will have room on the ground floor for the town hall and the engine house. The second story will be used for council chamber and offices for the town officers. It is likely that a room will be provided in the town hall for the boys' club. The council has ordered the grading of Hood and other streets. The committee has under consideration the matter of lighting and at the next meeting will either make recommendations or submit several plans.

WELVE WATCHMEN GUARD SLEEPING FAIR

No One Will Bid on Exposition Buildings Which Cost Thousands of Dollars.

The Centennial Guards—the body of National Guardsmen which rendered invaluable service at the exposition—have disbanded and in their place have come 12 regular watchmen to protect the property until the centennial commission finds people willing to bid for the purchase of the buildings. The watchmen sleep in the rooms formerly occupied by the department of admissions. It is doubtful if there is in Portland a more quiet spot than the fair grounds.

FIGURING ON COST OF A GARBAGE CREMATORY City Engineer Taylor will file with the city executive board late this afternoon an estimate of the cost of wagons and horses necessary for the installation of a municipal garbage crematory.

After consultation with Superintendent Donaldson of the street cleaning department the cost of horses has been estimated at $160 to $175 each. The price of wagons varies with the make. All steel, sanitary dump wagons can be purchased for $200 to $300, according to the size and the style. Mayor Lane, the members of the executive board and the city health board are in favor of installing a municipal garbage department as soon as possible. A full quart of the well-known A. D. G. Rye will be a great contribution to the joys of the season. Note owner of brand, D. Germaus, 224 Morrison st.
