BANNER MONTH AT CITY LIBRARY

November was Largest in Attendance, Circulation and New Membership. FIVE HUNDRED NINETY SEVEN NEW MEMBERS.

Percentage of Fiction Reading Falls to Sixty—New Books Displayed in Children's Room to Give Mothers Ideas for Christmas Purchases.

The Portland Library association directors last night listened to the most flattering report of growth that has been given since the birth of the organization. Miss Mary Loom, librarian, reported that the month of November was the largest yet in attendance, circulation and new membership. Thirty more books were taken out on an average every day than in October and the largest day numbered a circulation of 725. The total attendance for the month was 13,914, and circulation 13,148.

During the month, 597 new members filed cards, so that the entire number is now almost 14,000. The percentage of fiction reading, too, has fallen again to 60 per cent. The attendance in the reference-room was larger than in October by 200, making it 6,818. The children's room has been receiving many new members and its attendance the past month was 4,803, with a circulation of 4,302. The fiction percentage is only 45.

Preparations are being made for the approaching holidays. A large collection of new books is to be put on display tomorrow afternoon and will remain for a week to give suggestions to mothers for their Christmas purchases. The collection represent all classes of books and will be marked with the price and the local stores where they may be bought. The travel stories will be abandoned for the rest of this month, and for the next three Fridays Christmas stories will be told by Miss Hessler to imbue the children with the Christmas spirit. A Yule log is talked about as a possibility for Christmas treat.

New books added to the library last month numbered 502 and 625 were catalogued. In the periodical-room there was an attendance of 6,008. The school collections have all been sent out. There are 60 schools to which they are sent, making 117 collections in use since the class-room library has been adopted. The books numbered 2,300, and 1,400 have been sent out in the 20 collections for adult reading at as many stations.

A list of books has been arranged and published for reading on the subjects given by the sons of the Revolution for their competitive essay contest. These have been sent to the principals of the schools for posting. The changes among the assistants include the transference of Miss Hogan from the periodical to the cataloguing department, Miss Goetman succeeds her, Miss Miriam MacRae of Toronto has joined the staff.

The library is to be closed to the public Wednesday, December 10, and the morning of Thursday, December 11, for purposes of inventory.

TWO PAGE CHARGE OF MURDER

Kinta Kasaoka and John A. Hogan Arraigned in Presiding Judges' Court.

JAPANESE ASSERTS HE STRUCK IN SELF DEFENSE

Hogan Says He Threw Up Umbrella to Ward Off Blow From Woman and Did Not Know He Had Killed Her.

Two accused murderers sat in the courtroom of the presiding judge of the circuit court this morning. They were Kinta Kasaoka and John A. Hogan, the former accused of murdering a countryman and the latter of killing Mrs. Louise Jenkins. Both of the alleged crimes occurred last October in the north end; both of the fatal assaults were made near midnight, and both victims died within a short time after the attack had taken place.

This was the third and last day of the Japanese trial and the beginning of Hogan's. The former was tried before a jury in Judge Chelan's court, Hogan faces a jury before Judge Sears.

In closing his argument before the jury this morning in favor of the accused Japanese, Henry E. McGinn decried that the blow which caused the death of Matsui Sasaki was struck in self-defense. The attorney said that the dead man was a bully, a leading member of a gang that terrorized the local Japanese colony; that the bully had been angered because the victim, Kasaoka, had taken the part of a waitress whom the gang were bullying; had assaulted the lad, and in the fight that ensued had been stabbed to his death.

Tells of a Grudge. Deputy District Attorney Harry Adams closed the argument for the state. He declared that the accused man had a grudge against his victim, and that the circumstances tended to show that he had followed Sasaki and, when the chance arrived, killed him.

While Henry E. McGinn, who pleading on behalf of his client, and during the argument by Mr. Adams, John A. Hogan sat calmly and listened to the questions propounded to his peers, who were to pass on the facts presented to the death of Mrs. Jenkins. The jury was selected in a short time. Hogan is charged with murder in the second degree. He is defended by S. H. Gruber, while Deputy District Attorney Gus C. Moser appears for the state.

The crime of which Hogan is accused was committed in a hallway leading to rooms above the Acme Reception saloon, corner of Fourth and Davis streets, on the night of October 21. It is alleged that Mrs. Louise Jenkins was serving drinks to inmates of the place, when Hogan approached her and offered a watch for sale. She is said to have become offended and to have raised a heavy tray she was carrying if to strike him. Hogan claims that he threw up an umbrella to ward off the blow. The point of the umbrella entered the eye of the woman and pierced the brain.

Hogan Gave Self Up. Although detectives and policemen searched the city in search of the alleged murderer, no clue was obtained until October 10, when Hogan walked into the police station, informed Chief of Police Gritzmacher that he had read in The Journal of the man having been killed by an umbrella thrust and that he might be the man wanted.

"After he had visited the saloon in question, had thrown up his umbrella to ward off the blow without any harm," said Attorney Gruber in his opening remarks before the jury, "the same room he had been occupying while in the city. He stayed about the town for three days, without any attempt to conceal himself, and then when he read in a newspaper of the death of the woman he went to the police station and informed the chief that he might be the man they were looking for. Do these appear to be the acts of a murderer?"

The following are the jurymen selected to pass upon the guilt or innocence of Hogan: J. B. Kollig, J. E. Rathbun, C. C. Erickson, D. D. McBride, E. P. Waite, Alexander Muir, Charles J. Allen, J. C. Scott, John A. Bell, Charles Cleveland and D. O. Fisher.

The first witness called was C. F. Erby, a barber who is said to have shaved off Hogan's mustache on the night of October 7. On the witness stand this morning Erby testified that he was not sure that Hogan was the man whom he had shaved.

THE COMPLAINT CAME A LITTLE TOO LATE

Little Egypt, of Seely Dinner Fame, Too Expensive for Baker Show, Anyway.

Some one who signs himself "The Watch and Ward Society" has objected to allowing the London Gaiety Girls burlesque show to enter the city on the grounds that it is corrupt and iniquitous. But alas! like the pardon, the protest came too late. It reached the city council yesterday afternoon through the mail. The show left town last Saturday afternoon at the close of a prosperous week's engagement at the Baker.

The author of the objection may be perfectly sincere, but his letter sounds more like the effort of somebody whose request for a pass was turned down by the manager. It reads:

"NOTICE. There is a company of so-called players booked at one of your theatres; the name of the company is the London Gaiety Girls.

"This company should not be allowed to play in your city. It is of a low character. The manager of this company is a low fellow and makes no pretensions of giving a clean performance, but just the reverse.

"He carries with him a company of the notorious Little Egypt, and a cheap lot of vulgar people. His advertising matter is lewd in the extreme. The show should not be allowed to play in your city. We stopped his disgraceful performance twice in Brooklyn, also Boston, Toronto and several other cities. We are determined to drive such people out of theatricals.

"WATCH AND WARD SOCIETY." The city council ordered the communication filed.

Manager Baker was extremely disappointed in not having learned sooner that Little Egypt, a $500 per week topliner, was in the cast. Patrons of the show will regret also that she was not placarded so that they might have satisfied their curiosity concerning the heroine of the Seely dinner.
