DEVLIN'S PUPILS BLUNDERERS

Several Kindergarten Statesmen Show Disposition to Ignore Precepts.

PLANNING NOW TO CUT OFF HEY'S SALARY

They Would Do This by Repealing Ordinance Which Fixes Wage—Hey Must Go Because He Was Appointed by Mayor Lane.

City Auditor Devlin's class for beginners in practical politics has been making many blunders of late. Two or three of the pupils on whom he built his highest hopes have made conspicuously bad breaks and have shown a disposition to ignore the precepts of their instructor. And the worst feature of the situation is that some of the kindergarten statesmen seem to think that the auditor knows no more of the game of politics than they do themselves.

Two or three of the councilmen who, only a few short weeks ago, were seated humbly at the auditor's feet are now unkindly hinting that if it hadn't been for him they would never have made any mistakes.

The auditor, on the other hand, declares that his advice has been ignored and that the latest and most colossal blunder of the many which have been recorded against the present city council was made in direct defiance of his most earnest warnings. He insists that he charged the councilmen to refrain from interfering with the plumbing inspector and from holding up his salary, but the advice fell on unheeding ears. Councilman Masters, says the auditor, was bent on having the plumbing inspector's scalp.

Fresh Plot Now.

And now a fresh plot is under consideration which ought to make Auditor Devlin shed bitter tears over the obtuseness of the pupils whom he hoped to train. In pursuance of the vendetta declared against William Hey, plumbing inspector by grace of Mayor Lane, the civil service commission and the courts, the councilmen are planning to repeal the ordinance which fixes the inspector's salary. The effect of such action would be to deprive him of all compensation from the city.

It is true that Hey has proved himself a most efficient man in the office to which he was appointed; it is true that he secured the appointment by civil service examination, standing head and shoulders above his competitors; it is true that the public health is largely dependent upon the manner in which the duties of the plumbing inspector are performed.

But these considerations are of little weight with the kindergarten statesmen who aspire to control the city government. Hey must go, for the reason that he was appointed by Mayor Lane. It isn't a bit politic, as Auditor Devlin would doubtless warn them, to tell the reason right out in school, but some of the councilmen persist in doing it just the same.

Devlin Gets From Under.

As a preliminary to the scheme for hamstringing the plumbing inspector, the ways and means committee refused to approve his estimate for the expenses of his office for the current month. Councilman Masters was asked why this was done.

"Why, the ways and means committee hasn't had a meeting yet to consider it," responded the statesman.

"But Auditor Devlin says you told him that it was no use to present that estimate with those of other officials, as the committee would not approve it."

"Well, maybe I did tell him that," was the answer, given rather defiantly.

"When does your committee report to the council?"

"At the next meeting on January 17."

"And in the meantime if the plumbing inspector incurs any of the usual expenses necessary for the maintenance of his office and the performance of his duties, he will do so at his own risk?"

"Yes, I suppose he has got to take his chances," said Councilman Masters.

Auditor Devlin declines to assume any further responsibility for the acts of his former disciples.

PLANNING MUNICIPAL CONGRESS FOR WORLD

(Journal Special Service.)

London, Jan. 6.—Sir Edwin Cornwall, chairman of the London county council, has issued to the press for publication a proposal for an international congress of representatives of capitals having a population of more than 500,000, to meet annually for the discussion of municipal methods. Sir Edwin says he is encouraged to make this suggestion by the good results following the recent exchange of amenities between the London county council and the Paris municipal council. He also proposes an exchange of pupils between the schools controlled by the municipalities holding membership in congress. Several leading Americans, to whom the proposition was submitted, expressed themselves strongly in favor of the plan and declared themselves convinced that the great municipalities of the United States would not be slow in recognizing the value and importance of such congresses. A circular letter has been prepared, which will be sent to the mayors of all cities of more than 500,000 inhabitants in Europe as well as in the United States and Canada.
