election was as follows: President, Bichard R. Hoge, of Hoge & Swift, representatives of the United States Steel corporation in the Pacific northwest; vice-president, Edward Newbegin, of R. M. Wade & Co.; secretary, Edmond C. Giltner, of Columbia & Nehalem Railway company; treasurer, Ledd & Tilton hank; trustees, Philip Bushner, Edward Cookingham, A. Feldenheimer, J. Couch Flanders, Fletcher Linn, Jay Smith.

The secretary's report showed a small balance in the treasury at the beginning of the new year. A. H. Devers, chairman of the irrigation committee, reported results of its work in inducing the secretary of the interior to indorse the Umatilia project, and said that the Malheur project had not been abandoned by the government, but was still underconsideration. Mr. Devers also reported for the committee on permanent exhibit of Oregon products at the rooms of the ent kinds of nuts grown in the state, and 500 jars of preserved fruits. He said 2,000 visitors had registered in the book since the union depot exhibit was consolidated with the chamber exhibit, and that thousands of pieces of Oregon literature had been sent out.

W. R. Mackansie, accountant, reported that the year's receipts had been $15,667.92, and expenditures $14,512.73, leaving a balance in the treasury of $1,154.16. The chamber's civic improvement work cost $1,052, the banquet to railroad men $856, the portage road excursion $716, the new Portland bookiet $1,055, and a special write-up of Portland, in a magazine known as World's Work, $2,025.

W. A. Mears, secretary of the transportation committee of the chamber, made his annual report, telling of the committee's work for the opening of the portage road, for betterment of conficuous related to the Panama canal, for establishing steamer lines on the upper Columbia, for a desper channel at the bar, and in the interest of proper legislation affecting railroad rates. He said that of the various bills now before words:

"Instead of regarding with mere complaisance the riches of our land, of our waters, our mines and a climate where energy is unrestricted by winter's blast or summer's heat and where the flowers make but short pause in their bloom and fragrance, let us join our voices to the sons of the birds in hallelujahs God and proclaiming to man that is to be found all that makes for see best in life—comfort, health, wealth, ace. Let there be no grinding of the see, no knocking of hammers, save to ser our pathway to the see and to the arkets of the world."

Edward Newbegin, Vice-President.

BAKER GRAND JURY

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Baker City, Or., Jan. 11.—The Baker county grand fury, which has been in secusion here for the past two weeks and from which startling developments had been looked for in reference to gambling indictments, has adjourned without indictments, has adjourned without making an investigation, only disposing of minor business. It found the county offices and books in good shape and its report advocates the building of a new courthouse. It holds that an emergency existed and that Baker county should proceed at once to build a new temple of justice, and also establish a new poor farm. During the session it found five true bills of indictment and one not true.

Wounded Animal Rushes Furiously at Editor Whose Nerve

(Journal Special Service.) San Antonio, Tez. Jan. 11.—Willie Ban Antonio, Tex. Jan. II.—William R. Hearst of New York and a party friends now at Chihuahua. Mexico, yesterday went for a day's shooting in the hills. Hearst is hunting in the mountains about his mother's ranch near Chihuahua. At dusk last night dogs treed a large mountain lion, which showed fight immediately. Hearst, riding shead of the party, caught sight of the animal and fired. The shot wounded the big cat, which sprang from the tree in which he had taken refuge and rushed furiously at Hearst. It was a moment of real peril, but the New Yorker's nerve did not fail. Taking another quick shot, when the animal was only a few feet away, Hearst stretched the lion dead at his feet.
