

STOP GOVERNMENT BY INJUNCTION

Typographical Union Organizes National League Against Interference by Courts.

FREE SPEECH AND TRIAL BY JURY IS THE SLOGAN

Planned to Place All Candidates on Record and Those Most Favorable to Labor Will Be Voted for Regardless of Politics.

(Journal Special Service.)

Chicago, Feb. 26.—One of the most important and far-reaching movements undertaken by organized labor for years was started today by printers of Chicago Typographical Union No. 16. It is reported to form a national league against the issuance of injunctions by courts, in cases of labor disputes. The slogan of the league is to be "Free speech and trial by jury."

Tentative plans are that there shall be a league made of every labor union, and that there shall be a central branch in each city. There are also to be state leagues and a national body, the whole to be organized along the lines of the American Federation of Labor.

One of the features is the placing on record of all candidates for city, state, national and judicial offices. To each candidate, a request will be made for a statement of his sentiments and position on the question of injunctions in labor disputes. He will be asked to pledge himself for "free speech and trial by jury," and if he fails all organized labor will be asked to publicly oppose him at the polls.

The league is to be constructed on nonpartisan lines, and union labor will be asked to disregard party lines in voting for candidates, the one most friendly to labor being played as a favorite.

by the Iber Land company, which owned a piece of property over which he wanted to run his mine, and which he attempted to force him to buy the land. He intimated that Colonel Hawkins, whom he declared was interested in the Iber Land company, had had a hand in the action of destroying his mine through the park because of his connection with the land company and its attitude toward the sluicing project.

"I will admit that I did not ask for a permit to build the mine," said Mr. Pence, "because I knew, or had reason to believe, the board would not grant it. I thought it would be better to go ahead and demonstrate what I could do and take the consequences. I beg the pardon of the board for doing this, but I believe of the great benefits to be derived from the sluicing work I believe this offense on my part should be forgiven and that the board should grant the permit which I now ask. All I want is permission to use the sluice through the park and the water of the canyon during the rainy season. I am willing to make any contract or give any bond you may see fit to protect the city's interests in the water and the ground covered by my sluice."

Will Make Concessions.
"I am willing that this contract should be limited to this season only, because I am sure that at the end of the season I will be able to show you such results that you will be glad to give me a permit to continue the work. I ask you, gentlemen, to come out with me this afternoon and look over the sluice and see what I am doing before you take any action."

Mr. Pence protested in the name of the new Portland and the people of the city against being stopped in his work, and declared that if he could not show satisfactory results by the end of this season he would tear out the whole thing himself without being asked. Colonel Hawkins took the floor, and said:

"I feel highly insulted. This man has insulted your honor, the park board and the people by ignoring their laws. He has tried to bribe this board ever since the first. I say he has stolen water and is conveying this stolen water across public property for his own gain. He takes partial facts and distorts them to gain his own end. He has referred to me twice as being interested in the Iber Land company. I want to say that I own just one share in that company and have no interest whatever in the piece of property near Macleay park referred to by Mr. Pence."

Colonel Hawkins declared that when Mr. Pence first broached his scheme to the park board he attempted to bribe the members by taking them to the scene and feeding them a dinner. The mayor explained to Mr. Pence and the board that he thought the work being done by Mr. Pence was good and should be encouraged. He believed he should be given a permit, but he thought Mr. Pence should be censured for ignoring the board and its rules, and that no permit should be issued without satisfactory provisions being made to protect the city's interests and keep Pence from acquiring any rights in the sluice, the construction and operation of his sluice.

After being urged by Mr. Pence, the board decided to go out and look over the work before taking any action on the case.

THE MESS MISS LOOT

WORTH $1,500

Diamonds and Money Concealed in Closet Not Discovered in Burglar's Search.

ARTICLES OF SMALL VALUE UNDISTURBED

Housebreakers Take Several Hundred Dollars' Worth of Loot From Residence of J. Baikie, However, Including Diamond Sunburst.

Burglars broke into the house occupied by J. Baikie, book-keeper for Sal-four, Guthrie & Co., 363 Twelfth street, last night and carried away property worth several hundred dollars. The crime was one of the boldest reported to the police in months. Diamonds and money aggregated $1,500 in value were overlooked by the burglars, though they systematically ransacked the dwelling and were final about what they took, leaving several gold ornaments of comparatively small value lying on a bed. Entrance was effected first through a basement door, the lock of which was pried off. The door leading into the kitchen was then forced, a bolt being broken. The contents of drawers and trunks were thrown onto the floor and a part of the plunder dumped onto a bed. The crime was committed between 7:30 and 9 o'clock in the evening.

The most valuable article secured was a diamond sunburst, worth about $250. It contained two central diamonds, surrounded by smaller stones. Four gold pins, two set with moonstones, a gold ring set with garnets and pearls, a ring set with three pearls, a gold bracelet to which was attached a gold chain, a long and a short gold watch chain and other articles were secured.

In a handbag concealed in a closet was a large amount of money, kept by Mrs. Baikie as treasurer of a fraternal organization. A tin box containing several diamonds and other costly gems was also hidden in the closet.

When Mrs. Baikie and her husband returned home and saw the evidence of the visit of the burglars, before calling the police and notifying them they looked in the closet and found the jewelry and diamonds had not been taken.

PAID $3,000 TO ASSASSIN

Innocent of crime. Orchard's condition is much improved. He left the hospital and returned to his cell this morning.

TOOK LIGHTS OUT.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Grand jury in session of electric bills in Steunenberg case. Caldwell, grand juror, is devoting today to the hearing of witnesses in other cases and will not take up the Steunenberg investigation until these are disposed of, probably tomorrow. All prisoners in the penitentiary held for the Steunenberg assassination were left there today, none going to Caldwell. Orchard has so far improved that morning that he was taken from the hospital and returned to his cell.

Attorney Miller saw Moyer, Haywood, Pettibone and St. John yesterday, conferring with them. He said he had formed him that prison officials had removed electric lights from their cells, substituting tallow candles. Petitioners said:

"This was done to prevent our committing suicide."

Moyer asked:

"How could you do that?"

"By swallowing the bulbs and turning on the current," replied Pettibone. Miller related this as an instance of how the prisoners were "worrying" over their arrest and imprisonment. Former Under-Sheriff Thompson of Cripple Creek, now secretary of the Colorado Mine Owners' association, is here today and will appear as a witness before the grand jury with important testimony.

SEATTLE ELOPERS

Catholic church and one of the largest contributors to the fund that built the new cathedral in Seattle, and he enlisted the aid of the church to prevent the marriage. The priests refused to perform the ceremony, it is said, when the young couple attempted to get married secretly in Seattle. An elopement was decided upon but Mr. Ford got an inkling of it, and immediately employed detectives to prevent his daughter leaving town. Mr. Welch quietly slipped over to Portland a few days ago. This fact was discovered by Mr. Ford, and he engaged Pinkerton men here to frustrate the plans of the couple. Deputy Sheriff T. R. Mulligan of Seattle was enlisted in the aid of the elopers, and dropped into Portland Friday with a letter from Seattle detectives to one of the local sleuths. Together they engineered matters and secured a license at the courthouse Friday afternoon.

To put the Pinkerton men on the track, Mr. Mulligan, registered at the Perkins from Everett, Washington, late Saturday night Miss Ford, who managed to elude the detectives, arrived in Portland in company with Mrs. Mulligan and joined Mr. Mulligan at the hotel. Through the aid of the local detective, Justice Reid was led to the courthouse at midnight, and the party, accompanied by the local detective and constable, went there in a hack.

While the Pinkerton men were scouring the town, the ceremony was performed. The young couple took a closed hack, rushed to the depot and caught a late train for parts unknown. The members of the party who helped bring the romance to a happy culmination repaired to a local cafe and celebrated the victory with a dinner.

What the objection of Mr. Ford to the wedding was could not be learned here. The attorney in the case said that the ceremony was in legal form. Mr. Ford is general manager of the Pacific Coast company, and his daughter was one of belles of Seattle society.

Some questions, therefore, was not finally determinative as to future conditions.

"For instance, take the election of the president. The constitution provides that presidential electors shall be chosen who, meeting in Washington, shall elect the chief executive. The intention of the constitution makers was that this electoral college should have the right to elect whomever it pleased, and each member thereof was to exercise his choice.

the celebration, the only royal personages participating being those who rank among the intimate friends of the emperor and empress. In all the churches there will be special services of thanksgiving, while numerous hospitals and charitable institutions throughout the empire will be dedicated, most of them bearing the name of the emperor or that of his wife.

Many costly gifts are being received from the various courts of Europe. The municipalities of Germany are also sending presents and other gifts and messages of congratulations from societies are pouring in, as also many from other sources.

Gifts for Hospitals.
The ceremonies for the wedding of Prince Eitel will almost be a replica of that of the crown prince and crown princess last June.

According to the resolutions announced months ago the emperor and his wife will receive no presents from their subjects except the money for charitable uses. It is estimated that the money donated for hospital extension will reach $10,000,000.

The emperor received a deputation from the United German veteran societies in North America consisting of soldiers who fought in the war with Denmark, Austria and France and who presented the imperial couple a huge bowl resting on an onyx column with bronze base and portraits and designs symbolical of German and American relations.

Americans Invited.
Few prouder or happier men are to be found in Berlin than Stephen Haase of Wichita, Kansas, and William H. Dunning, whose home is in Richmond, Indiana. After a pleasant voyage across the Atlantic in the giant steamship America the two men have arrived and sound in the German capital to attend the celebration at the invitation of Emperor William. The two men were present at the emperor's wedding service 25 years ago as members of the First Bodyguard Regiment of Grenadiers. They acted as escort of the bride-to-be, the Princess of Schleswig-Holstein, from the garrison at Potsdam to the castle.

Warrior in his heart for the regiment, of which he was the commander at the time of his marriage. Hence it was that he decided to invite as many of the members as were still alive to attend the celebration.

truth that is so familiar that it sounds trite. Indeed, when expressed.

"Yet, remember that the constitution provided just that sort of an arrangement. What changed the practice? Simply, the people found that they would better elect their president directly, and they took the matter out of the hands of the electoral college, which is now merely a lot of messengers who are paid exorbitant fees to convey to the national capital the election returns of the several states.

"To be frank, then, the movement for the direct election of United States senators involves a radical alteration in method. But, the conditions warrant such a radical change, just as they did in the case of the choice of the nation's chief executive.
