WOMAN BECOMES OIL MAGNATE

Rides Over Mountains of Texas Astride in Successful Search for Petroleum.

NOW OWNS THOUSANDS OF ACRES OF OIL LAND

Romantic Career of Stenographer Who Eloped to Brazil With Business Man Twice Her Age and Returned Penniless.

(Journal Special Service.)

Chicago, March 22.—Three years ago a pretty little woman astonished the natives of the mountain regions of Texas by riding over a long distance astride a little black mare, sniffing the air for oil. Today word came to her friends here that her latest strike is a well producing several hundred barrels of oil daily. But this is only one incident in her unusually adventurous life.

In 1893 Mrs. May Ora Hood Russell, then a girl of 17, came to Chicago from Bloomington, Illinois, to work her way through the Chicago university. Her first work was as stenographer for Rev. John Henry Barrows. While thus engaged she met William L. Russell, a business man of twice her age. After a brief courtship she elopth with him, going to Venezuela, where he had extensive mining interests.

Eventually their fortune went the way of many South American enterprises. In addition Mrs. Russell suffered a long siege of sickness and finally a physician told her to get into another climate.

Scraping together a few dollars she ventured into the Texas oil lands, rode, prospected, studied, asked questions, and finally, backed by some of her former townsmen, she leased a tract of 500 acres. She now owns or leases 6,000 acres.

ELOPES FROM PHILADELPHIA HAVING WOOED IN CRETE

Professor's Romantic Finish to Courtship With Smith College Instructor.

(Journal Special Service.)

Philadelphia, March 22.—As though to put the final touch upon the romance of their courtship in the buried cities of Crete, Miss Harriet Ann Boyd of Haverford, who holds the chair of archaeology at Smith college, and Professor Charles E. Hawes of Cambridge, England, eloped from this city two weeks ago. They went to New York, married, and took the first ocean liner for England.

Not half a dozen of their friends knew anything about it. No announcement of the marriage has been made, although Mrs. Boyd, sister-in-law of the bride, said today there was no further cause for concealment.

The couple intend to make their home at Cambridge, near the university, in which Professor Hawes holds a chair. In the near future they will return to Crete, the scene of their archaeological wooing, where they will resume their quest for buried knowledge.

NEW BANK IS OPENED AT WHITE SALMON

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

White Salmon, Wash., March 22.—A bank was opened here Tuesday with a capital of $25,000. Several Portland men are interested in it, including W. H. Moore of the Oregon Savings bank. The officers of the new institution are: President, Carleton Lewis of Portland; vice-president, C. M. Woolford; cashier, J. A. Byrne; directors, W. H. Moore, C. M. Wolfard, A. H. Jewett, Carleton Lewis and J. A. Byrne. The bank at Goldendale had about made arrangements to open a branch of its establishment at White Salmon, but the Portland men forstalled them by slipping in before them with $15,000 in cash and organizing the White Salmon Valley bank. The country tributary to White Salmon is prosperous and the people heretofore done their banking at Hood River.

PEST OF FARMERS SUCCUMBS TO COLD

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Enterprise, Or., March 22.—From the continued cold weather the farmers in Wallowa valley expect some very beneficial results in the way of freezing and otherwise destroying the ground squirrels, which are considered a great pest in this section. The heretofore warm weather has been the means of causing the squirrels to come out of the ground, and the heavy snow and extreme cold weather prevented them from securing food. The evil effects of these pests consist in eating the sprouts of the cereals as quickly as they come through the ground. One squirrel has been known to destroy one quarter of an acre of wheat. Although large numbers are poisoned each year, it has thus far been impossible to exterminate them.

SCOTT'S EMULSION is more than a fat food. There is no animal fat that compares with it in nourishing and building up the wasted, emaciated body. That is why children and anæmic girls thrive and grow fat upon it. That is why persons with consumptive tendencies gain flesh and strength enough to check the progress of the disease.

ROSE COLORED COSTUME

Gown of Rose Chiffon Cloth.

A pretty afternoon dress may be made in this fashion: The material is rose chiffon cloth. The waist is made in a deep shirred girdle with bias folds crossing in surplice fashion and forming a bolero. Large buttons of velvet trim them.

A chemisette of fine lace is introduced, and a ruffle of the same lace finishes the sleeves.

The folds on the skirt form a design in squares and are also trimmed with buttons.

Below and underneath the folds are rows of tiny tucks around the hem.

The hat is large, with a big puff crown of rose silk and brim of black straw, trimmed with a wreath of roses and little bowknots of black velvet ribbon.

The REALM FEMININE

ABOUT WOMEN.

"We try to impress our pupils with the fact that they must look the part when they are applying for situations," said a teacher of stenography yesterday, in speaking of his business. "It's a lesson we find hard to teach, especially to the pretty ones, who insist on looking their best, but we had a case the other day which we will be able to use as an argument and illustration in the future. A girl who, when she left us, was a first-class stenographer, came back to complain that she couldn't get a place. She wore a picture hat and jewels and looked more like a duchess than a working girl, and said she had been chasing a job three days without success. We told her we would guarantee her a place at the end of a day's search if she would dress as we told her to. She agreed to this, and we removed the jewels, replaced the picture hat with a modest and unpretentious one, and told her to put on neat white cuffs. She did this, and got work upon the second application."—Philadelphia Record.

An American girl who had a good knowledge of the German language, entered a well-filled streetcar in Boston. Two young men who had seats noticed her as she came in, and one said to the other in German, "Shall we give her a seat?" To which the other replied, "I guess not; she isn't pretty enough." Shortly after another young woman entered the car, who passed a more satisfactory inspection owing to comeliness of features, and immediately one of the young men gave her his seat. When she left the car, he turned to the first young lady, who was still standing, and said, "Won't you have a seat?" but as she had nearly reached her destination she shook her head and left the car, merely saying to him in German: "I am still homely."—Waterbury American.

There is rarely a tragedy without its dash of humor. A few nights ago a young man and a young woman went driving. The horse ran away, the carriage was upset and the young man was killed. In her fright the young woman hurried away into the crowd without learning her companion's fate. Next day the reporters found her at her place of employment in a restaurant. She told them her story and asked, "How is he?" The reporters are schooled in brevity and directness. "He's dead," they answered. The young woman screamed and fainted. Then out from the kitchen rushed an older woman, who gathered the stricken girl in motherly arms and crooned softly to her. Looking up from her unconscious charge she saw the conscience-stricken informer standing by. "You miserable, contemptible little reporter," she cried; "you ought to be ashamed of yourself to tell this girl such a thing right in our busiest hour."—Waterbury American.

A bachelor girl, Miss Grace Stephenson, has become editor of the Lindsborg (Kansas) News, which used to have this line over wedding announcements: "They Are Happy Now." The new editor has changed it to "They Are Happy—Now."

The report from Sweden that a league has been formed there for the purpose of restraining extravagance in woman's dress has a good rich Elizabethan ring about it. In 1650 "the principal citizens of London were become so extravagant in their dress that it was thought necessary to restrain the same"; and the result was a proclamation issued by her majesty "against excess of apparel, gold chains, and cloaks, the latter of which were made so long that they reached down to the heels." Where is that proclamation now? Still more arbitrary was a proclamation of 1465, announcing that "a ridiculous custom having long prevailed of wearing shoes with toes of enormous length, for the future the beaks or toes of shoes should not exceed two inches in length, on the penalty of the wearer being excommunicated and paying a fine of 20 shillings, to be equally divided between the king, the chamberlain, and the Company of Cordwainers." If ridiculous fashions were fined now, somebody would be rich.—London Chronicle.

The Editor Edits.

I.

The editor sat in his high-backed chair,
And his words were few but strong.
For his pipe was out and his love was false,
And his last mince pie went wrong.

So with pencil blue he worked havoc dire,
As he frowned, in contempt irate—
"Ere I use such blame fool stuff," quoth he,
"I will fill up my page with plate!"

II.

But the sun shone out and his pipe drew clear,
And love set all doubts at rest,
While a grain of pepsin moved the weight
Which had settled on his—chest.

"After all, 'tis a brave, good world," quoth he,
"I have hopes for my fellow-men!"
Then a criss-cross he marked on my humble MS.'
Which I later cashed in for ten.

What Grandmother Used to Say.

If before your door a rooster crows,
Whether it rains or whether it snows,
Somebody's coming that very day,
That is what grandmother used to say.
"Shad-scale" and "mare-tail" clouds in the sky,
When the weather has been a long time dry,
Sure signs of a rain the very next day—
That is what grandmother used to say.
If ever the salt you chance to spill,
Just guard your temper with a will;
You're in for a fight ere close of day—
That is what grandmother used to say.
If you, while reposing in your bed,
Should by any chance dream of the dead,
You'll get a letter from far away—
That is what grandmother used to say.
If you drop the dishrag on the floor,
Pull down the blinds and bolt the door;
An untidy person calls that day—
That is what grandmother used to say.
If in the sky, the while rain falls,
There's blue enough to make overalls,
That's a sign you can soon go out to play—
That is what grandmother used to say.

ADDICKS' FARM IS PUT UP AT AUCTION

(Journal Special Service.)

Wilmington, Del., March 22.—The Carrcroft farm of J. Edward Addicks was put up for sale by the sheriff today to satisfy a mortgage held by Mrs. Ida Shaw of Newcastle. When settlement was made of the suit against Mr. Addicks and the Bay State Gas company a year ago Mr. Addicks gave, among other securities, a mortgage for $33,000 on the Carrcroft farm to George Wharton Pepper, receiver of the Bay State Gas company. The mortgage later was assigned to Mrs. Shaw, who now is foreclosing on the mortgage to try to get her money. The farm is located at Carrcroft, five miles above Wilmington, and comprises more than 300 acres of high land commanding a fine view of the Delaware river.

Charged With Wife-Beating.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Freewater, Or., March 22.—Julius Rabe, a well-known Pine creek rancher, who was arrested on a warrant sworn to by Herman Noyemer, charging Rabe with wifebeating, was brought before Justice Miller of Milton, waived preliminary examination and was bound over to appear before the circuit court, which meets next May. His bonds were placed at $200, which was furnished.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL.

Few People Know How Useful It Is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician in speaking of the benefits of charcoal says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

Habit-forming Medicines.

Whatever may be the fact as to many of the so-called patent medicines containing injurious ingredients as broadly published in some journals of more or less influence, this publicity has certainly been of great benefit in arousing needed attention to this subject. It has, in a considerable measure, resulted in the most intelligent people avoiding such foods and medicines as may be fairly suspected of containing the injurious ingredients complained of. Recognizing this fact some time ago, Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., "took time by the forelock," as it were, and published broadcast all the ingredients of which his popular medicines are composed. Thus he has completely forestalled all harping critics and all opposition that might otherwise be urged against his medicines, because they are now OF KNOWN COMPOSITION. Furthermore, from the formula printed on every bottle wrapper, it will be seen that these medicines contain no alcohol or other habit-forming drugs. Neither do they contain any narcotics or injurious agents, their ingredients being purely vegetable, extracted from the roots of medicinal plants found growing in the depths of our American forests and of well recognized curative virtues.

Instead of alcohol, which even in small portions long continued, as in obstinate cases of diseases, becomes highly objectionable from its tendency to produce a craving for stimulants, Dr. Pierce employs chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine, which of itself is a valuable remedy in many cases of chronic diseases, being a superior demulcent, antiseptic, antiferment and supporting nutritive. It enhances the curative action of the Golden Seal root, Stone root, Black Cherrybark and Bloodroot, contained in "Golden Medical Discovery," in all bronchial, throat and lung affections attended with severe coughs. As will be seen from the writings of the eminent Drs. Grover Coe, of New York; Bartholow, of Jefferson Medical College, Phila.; Scudder, of Cincinnati; Ellingwood, of Chicago; Hale, of Chicago, and others, who stand as leaders in their several schools of practice, the foregoing agents are the very best ingredients that Dr. Pierce could have chosen to make up his famous "Discovery" for the cure of not only bronchial, throat and lung affections, but also of chronic catarrh in all its various forms wherever located.

BIGAMY ADMITTED BY MILLIONAIRE

Thomas W. Kiley, President of Brooklyn Bank, Admits Having Two Wives.

THOUGHT FIRST SPOUSE WAS ON HER DEATHBED

Number One Fooled Her Husband by Getting Well After He Had Wedded Number Two, Whom He Still Loves the Best.

(Journal Special Service.)

New York, March 22.—Admitting that he has two wives, Thomas W. Kiley, millionaire president of the North Side bank of Brooklyn, told the strange story of how he came to be involved in such a predicament. He explained that he married a second wife at a time when he thought his first wife to be dying. She did not die, however, and he has since necessarily maintained two homes. Kiley's first wife lives at her home on Jefferson avenue. His second wife lives a short distance away in a palatial home on Brooklyn avenue and uses the name of Mrs. Flora A. Colt.

Kiley is a regular visitor at the home of his Brooklyn avenue wife. He admits he loves her more than his legal wife. His love has not been weakened by the fact that wife No. 2 sued him last year for $250,000, as the outgrowth of his bigamous marriage.

Kiley 12 years ago married the widow of his brother. He married again in October, 1903. He says his second wife knew he was a married man, but consented to the ceremony. The marriage occurred at Hammond, Indiana, while Kiley was on his way to attend a bankers' convention at San Francisco.

"I thought my wife would be dead before we got back," said Kiley. "She was very ill when I started to San Francisco, and I never expected to see her alive again. Of course I wouldn't have married another woman if I had known my wife would live."

BERKELEY STUDENT HAZED BEFORE PROFESSOR

Youth's Beard Is Half Trimmed Off While He Is Tied to Board by Tormentors.

(Journal Special Service.)

Berkeley, Cal., March 22.—One professor at the university is said to have witnessed, while a number of others were cognizant of the hazing of a student yesterday afternoon. The hazing took place in the Mechanics' building of the university about 3 o'clock, when Felix Feibush, a senior in the college of mechanical engineering, was tied to a board while struggling and fighting off his persecutors. The affair was premeditated and the students made no effort to conceal their identity from the faculty or their victim.

Feibush started about two months ago to raise a beard. The students who were associated with him in his classes have spent most of their time "jollying" the man, and recently the idea was conceived that it would be a good joke to shave the beard by force.

A number of students came to the class today armed with the necessary utensils. One had a rope, another a pair of scissors and a third a razor. After the lecture, when the professor had left the room, Feibush was seized, his feet tied together and his arms strapped to a drawing board. In this position, amid curses and threats on his part and hilarious laughter from the hazers, one side of his face was shaved. He was then allowed to go, and immediately shaved the other side himself.

MARION FARMERS MUST GET NEW MAIL BOXES

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Salem, Ore., March 22.—The patrons on the various rural mail routes leading out of Salem are indignant over the order from the postoffice department ordering them to set aside the mail boxes which they had erected in good faith and believing them to be in accord with the postoffice regulations. The delivery and collection of the mails will be stopped unless the farmers comply with the postal regulations. E. C. Clement, an attache of the rural delivery system, has said there were more condemned boxes on the Salem routes than in any other place of the same size.

This is due to the fact that the routes issuing from the local postoffice were established when the system was under an experimental stage. In October, 1902, the government passed regulations governing the rural routes and prescribed what kind of boxes were to be used. The government also sends out lists of approved mail boxes for use on the routes. At any rate, the approved boxes will have to be substituted for the old ones now in use in many places. The prices of the prescribed boxes range from 75 cents to $2.50.

PARNELL RELIC IN ENGLISH PAWNSHOP

(Journal Special Service.)

London, March 22.—The statement that the large silver casket presented to the late Charles Stewart Parnell by the people of Drogheda in 1884 is now located in a pawnshop in Bournemouth and can be redeemed by the payment of $500 has given rise to considerable speculation as to how the precious relic found its way there. John Howard Parnell, brother of the late Irish leader, is unable to throw any light on the subject. When he last heard of its having been sold, two years ago, it was then, according to his information, to be seen in a London pawnbroker's establishment. He says he bought up as much of his late brother's effects as he could, but among the articles he was not able to take over were the Drogheda casket and the famous Kilmainham chair.

SHIP SUBSIDY BILL IN HOUSE COMMITTEE

(Journal Special Service.)

Washington, March 22.—The house committee on merchant marine and fisheries will hold a meeting this afternoon to consider the shipping bill. It is expected that there will be considerable opposition to the bill and its fate is considered very doubtful, particularly as Speaker Cannon is opposed to the bill and will give no encouragement for its consideration, even if it should be reported. Representative Tawney, chairman of the committee on appropriations, is also pronounced in his opposition to the bill.

CURED CONSUMPTION.

Mrs. B. W. Evans, Clearwater, Kan., writes: "My husband lay sick for three months. The doctors said he had quick consumption. We procured a bottle of Ballard's Horehound Syrup and it cured him. That was six years ago and since then we have always kept a bottle in the house. We cannot do without it. For coughs and colds it has no equal." 25c, 50c and $1.00. Woodard, Clarke & Co.

KILLS CATARRHAL GERMS.

Breathe Hyomei a Few Times Daily and Be Cured—Goes Right to the Spot.

In treating catarrhal troubles, the first thing necessary is to kill all catarrhal germs that may be present in the nose, throat and lungs, thus freeing the system from the poison that they produce.

Stomach dosing cannot kill these germs. A direct local treatment is absolutely necessary, and for this purpose nothing else equals Hyomei.

Its base is the famous eucalyptus oil. This is combined with other healing, aromatic gums and balsams, making a germ-killing, health-giving treatment for catarrh, entirely unlike anything else known. When using Hyomei the air you breathe is like that on the mountains, high above sea level, where the pine forests fill the air with fragrant and healing balsams that give health and strength to those suffering from diseases of the respiratory organs.

Breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, Hyomei reaches every tissue of nose, throat and lungs, giving immediate relief, and effecting a permanent cure in the worst cases of catarrh.

The complete outfit, consisting of an inhaler, medicine dropper and one bottle of Hyomei, costs only $1. Extra bottles can be obtained for 50 cents. Woodard, Clarke & Co. give a guarantee with every Hyomei outfit that the treatment will cost nothing unless it cures.

If not convenient to obtain Hyomei of Woodard, Clarke & Co. or some other druggist it will be forwarded from the laboratory by mail on receipt of price. The R. T. Booth Co., Hyomei Building, Ithaca, New York.
