

HOPPE HANDS CASH TO HIS MOTHER

Immediately After Defeating Slosson Young Champion Embraces His Parents.

FOND ONES EXCITED OVER THE CONTEST

Hoppe Said That the Balls Were Chilled and His Father Didn't Like Slosson's Refusal to Have the Cue Balls Wiped Off.

When Willie Hoppe, the billiard marvel, dropped his cue after the five-hundredth point that defeated George Slosson in Grand Central Palace he jumped into the box nearest the table and kissed his mother. The woman wept with joy. The next day he passed over to his mother the $5,000 gate receipts and the bet of $500 that he had made with Slosson. Then followed a happy reunion of the Hoppe family at the home on West Ninety-ninth street.

In speaking of the fact that the balls were chilled young Hoppe said: "The balls were chilled and I couldn't tell where the cue ball would land. I was afraid mother was worrying, because I knew she was aware that the balls were chilled."

"Yes," added Mrs. Hoppe, "and the cushions were very fast. Willie can draw a ball to any given point—that is, he knows just where it will land if the conditions are right, and that is why he may have appeared nervous last night. You weren't nervous, were you, dear?" she asked.

"Not a bit," replied the boy champion. "I know that I'd win, mother. I told you I would."

"While the air downstairs was cold enough to chill the balls, the air upstairs was hot," interjected the younger Hoppe. "That, too, makes a difference."

The young champion's father spoke up at this point. "I have only one complaint," he said, "and that is that George Slosson didn't act sportsmanlike in not permitting the balls to be wiped off. The two white balls were covered with chalk from the cue, and that interfered with Willie's shots. The balls were not true in rolling."

"Before the match I asked that a conference be held so that little points like that might be settled. No," Slosson said, "play according to the rules."

"There is nothing in the rules that touches on wiping the balls. Last spring he said a match with Willie would be a failure, but it has been demonstrated now who was the attraction at the match."

Pabst Malt Is Eight-Day Malt

It Makes Pabst Beer Richest in Nourishment and Physicians Recommend It Because It Is So Strengthening.

Pabst eight-day malt is the secret of the superiority of Pabst beer. The hops are the choicest, the water pure, the process spotlessly clean. These things are never neglected, but it is the exclusive Pabst eight-day malt that gives Pabst Beer its rich nutrition. It is the Pabst eight-day malt and the exclusive Pabst brewing that gives the Pabst beer the rich mellow flavor found in no other and that makes it perfect beer.

Perfect malt is only made by the exclusive Pabst eight-day method. This process doubles the expense of the old four-day process of making malt, used by many brewers. Four-day malt cannot make perfect beer such as Pabst Beer, because it is the product of a forced and unnatural process of development. Beer made from four-day malt lacks the nutritious food elements which distinguish Pabst Beer.

Physicians say there is nothing better than Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer as a vitalizing tonic, because they know how it is made. They know the Pabst process and understand the importance of its perfect purity and cleanliness. They know the healthful mess of the beer produced by the Pabst process.

People, and especially doctors, demand that everything they eat and drink be absolutely clean. Pabst Beer is always clean and wholesome. The brewery is cleaner than the cleanest kitchen. In the long process of brewing, Pabst Beer never comes in contact with anything unclean. The tubes through which it is run, from the time the grain is made to when the beer is bottled or kegged, are sterilized, to prevent any impurity or uncleanliness. It is not fermented in open vats, as is usual in breweries, but in special Pabst hermetically sealed tanks, into which no air except pure, filtered air ever enters. It is stored in hermetically sealed, glass-lined storage tanks until strength and the test of time pronounce it perfect beer in age, purity and strength.

DALLAS COLLEGIANS TO HAVE CRACK TEAM

Young Men Expect to Have a Winning Combination on the Diamond This Year.

Dallas, Or., April 4.—The Dallas college baseball players are in active practice now. The field has been fixed up and they have an excellent diamond. The college promises to have a fast aggregation in the field this year and it will be one of the best college teams in the state. The team is composed of seven of last year's players, a new first baseman and a new catcher, which the team lacked last year. Myers, last year's twirler, will officiate in the box again this year. The outfield will be fast and accurate.

They will open the season next Saturday, playing Salem High school on the local grounds. The schedule comprises: Willamette university, Salem High school, McMinnville college, McMinnville High school, Pacific university and Pacific college, Albany college, Oregon university. Manager Morton has several other games in view, and is also trying to arrange several games with the Portland ball teams. Dr. H. L. Tony will coach the team this year. He is a fine coach, and from all appearances will have a team hard to defeat.

The line-up will be as follows: Boydston, catcher; Myers and Shaw, pitchers; Reynolds, shortstop; Shaw (captain), first base; Craven, second base; Morton (manager), third base; Fenton, left field; Sibley, right field; Teas, center field.

SPORTING GOSSIP.

In the field games held at Berkeley yesterday afternoon California defeated the all-star team of southern California by the score of 72 to 59. Channing Hall of Berkeley jumped 28 1/2 inches in the high jump, beating his former record. The southern team broke the relay record, making the time 3:22.

The stadium in which the Olympic games will be run off at Athens this month was built in 1854, at the expense of George Averoff, a rich Greek. The inclosure seats 30,000 people, and is said to be the largest athletic structure in the world. It is a vast amphitheater of a "U" shape built into the side of a hill, and on the site of a similar structure, built about 250 B. C. for the Pan-Hellenic games. This building lasted 470 years, then was replaced by a white marble structure, which was destroyed during the dark ages.

Justice Fitzgerald of the New York supreme court has handed down a decision denying Arthur Duffey's suit for an injunction against the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States. Duffey sought to join the athletic union from expunging from its records his name and performances, which were wiped off the books by a resolution adopted at the last annual meeting of the parent body. The action was taken on the ground that Duffey had received compensation in 1899.

BIG EARNINGS OF BOXER NELSON

From Poverty to Wealth in a Brief Time, the Career of Battling Dane.

LARGER INCOME THAN PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

Nelson Tells of the Many Trials That Beset Him in the Days When He Was a Struggling Tramp Fighter—How Persistence Won.

While it might not be advisable for the youth of America to adopt the profession of Battling Nelson, there is, nevertheless, much to be learned by them from the career of this famous fighter. From a boy who seldom knew where his next meal was to come from to a young man who is earning as much money or more than is paid the president of the United States, is the wonderful jump made by Nelson. Hard work and confidence in his own ability brought Nelson to the front, and pluck, application to his business and a good manager have contributed to keep him at the top of his class and to make his bank account swell like a bull in the spring.

Nelson is today the greatest money-maker in the pugilistic profession. He already owns so much real estate at Hegewisch, Illinois, that he is in danger of becoming land poor, and yet four years ago Battling had difficulty in finding a place to lay his head at night and to feed the inner man.

It was while he was training at Eslington for his match with McGovern that Nelson said to a reporter for the Philadelphia Press: "Next week I'm going to fight in Philadelphia for a sum of money double that ever received before by a fighter for six rounds."

Then turning to his trainer, Hughey McMahon, Battling remarked: "That's pretty good, eh, Hughey? And do you remember the hard times we used to have when we were 'bumming' around out west and trying to get to the front? It's just four years ago," continued Nelson, "since Hughey and I went out one night to fight in Chicago. Each of us was billed to go on, but there wasn't enough money in the house and they called the show off."

Bay of Goin. "Neither of us had any coin, so I pawned my light overcoat for a dollar. With that we got a meal apiece and then put up at cheap lodging-houses. In the morning had had just enough left to get a cup of coffee and a roll. If any one was to go around Chicago and investigate, he would find my name scribbled all over the registers of the cheap lodging-houses. But it's different now. I can tell you, but I'm on deck now with both feet."

For nearly two years now Nelson has been taking in the money fast, and 1906 promises to not only be his banner year, but also to eclipse any 12 months of earnings by any pugilist that ever lived. John L. Sullivan alone excepted. This is a list of Nelson's earnings this year:

Six weeks with a show, at $1,000 per week	$6,000
Received for making match with Herrera	4,000
Total for first 12 weeks, 1906	$10,000

At nearly two years now Nelson has been taking in the money fast, and 1906 promises to not only be his banner year, but also to eclipse any 12 months of earnings by any pugilist that ever lived. John L. Sullivan alone excepted. This is a list of Nelson's earnings this year:

A Great Fighter. Nelson is a fighter pure and simple. Unlike certain other pugilists and boxers, the footlights have no glamour for him. He likes to have the light shine from overhead, rather than to have them at his feet, and he prefers to pummel a real rival rather than to make a bluff at it with a sparring partner.

Last week he turned down many theatrical offers for several weeks of consecutive engagements in order to take on the match with Herrera at Los Angeles. He has already received $4,000 for making this match, which leaves $16,000 for him and the Mexican to battle for, the winner to receive $9,000 and the loser $5,000. As this bout will take place early in May, and Nelson has many other bouts in view, it will be seen that his earning capacity is in no danger of receiving a sudden check.

Nelson and his manager left New York Sunday for Los Angeles, where he will at once go into training. His corps of trainers were left behind. Kid Abell, Hughey McMahon and Eddie Kelly, who helped to put Nelson into condition to meet McGovern, will at once get into real boxing, a number of matches having been made for them in Philadelphia and New York.

TAYLOR AND BRADSHAW TO JUDGE THE DOGS

San Francisco Expert Selected to Look After Collies and Terriers in Show.

The local dog fanciers are a busy lot of men these days. Although the annual bench show is nearly two months away, not coming until May 30 to June 2, the promoters of the exhibition are working systematically, perfecting every detail that will add to the success of the affair.

It will be good news to the Portland dog men to know that the judging will be done by such splendid judges as Major Taylor of Rutherford, New Jersey, and John Bradshaw of San Francisco. Mr. Bradshaw will judge all of the terriers and collies, while Major Taylor will pass on all other classes.

G. H. Fleming will once more superintend the bench show. The benching this year will be done by the Spratts Patent (Limited) company of England, and its western representative, Thomas Banks, of San Francisco, will have direct supervision of the work. The features of the show will be the modern form of disinfecting that will be installed by Mr. Banks.

Work on the Exposition building will be started as soon as the skate concern moves out on May 25.

The fact that Mr. Bradshaw will be one of the judges means that a large number of San Francisco dogs will be entered in the show.

HIGH PRICES FOR LUMBER STOPS NEW BUILDING

Common Rough Increases Four Dollars Per Thousand in the Palouse Country.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Colfax, Wash., April 4.—Lumber prices have gone skyward in the past week throughout the Palouse country where building operations are being curtailed in consequence. The price of common rough lumber has advanced $4 per 1,000 feet, while the better grades of lumber have advanced from 25 to 35 per cent. Common lumber, which retailed at from $11 to $15 per 1,000 feet, is now selling at from $15 to $17. The highest grades of finishing lumber has jumped from $25 to $52 per 1,000 feet and there is a proportionate advance in all grades.

As a result, many who planned to erect buildings this year are abandoning the plans and contractors here predict that building operations will be reduced from 35 to 50 per cent this season. Several Colfax citizens who had plans drawn for buildings have abandoned the idea and will wait until next year or later, in hopes that the price will be lower.

The lumber trade of this section is completely controlled by the Pullatch Lumber company, which has mills at Colfax, Palouse and Poljacks, Idaho, and is a branch of the Weyerhaeuser syndicate, which is also said to control the mills at Bridal Veil, Oregon, from which a portion of the supply for this country has been secured for several years. The rise in the price of lumber is regarded as a serious handicap to building.
