

BURGLARS ROUTED BY YOUNG GIRL

Diminutive Swiss Maid With an Unloaded Gun Forces Two Robbers to Flee.

PRETENDS TO GET CASH BUT SECURES A WEAPON

Is Seized by Burly Ruffians Who Are Robbing Her Father's Store—Forces Assaultants to Run Away by Bold Bluff.

(Journal Special Service.)
Omaha, April 11.—Two burly holdup men, armed with guns and knives, fled precipitately last night when confronted with a dangerous looking but harmless empty revolver in the hands of Miss Marie Miller, a diminutive Swiss girl, whom the robbers found alone in her father's grocery.

When the men entered the store they called for a cigar, and as Miss Miller started behind the counter, one of them pinned her arms behind her and held a knife to her throat, warning her to make no outcry. Meanwhile the other man ransacked the store. Finding no money they demanded of the girl to be shown where the cash was kept.

"Release me and I will find it for you," was her reply.

"If you make a false move I will cut your head off," said the man with the knife.

Followed closely by the highwaymen, Miss Miller went into a rear room and rummaged through a dresser, finally handing the bandits a long red pocket-book which contained no money. While the gaze of the two robbers was fastened on the purse, Miss Miller drew a revolver from a drawer and demanded "hands up." Instead of complying the men turned and fled.

"The revolver was empty or I would have shot them," said Miss Miller.

NO ENGLISH GRANT FOR KING ALFONSO'S BRIDE

(Journal Special Service.)
London, April 11.—The reason that there is to be no application to parliament for a state grant to Princess Ena of Battenberg on her marriage to the king of Spain is due, it is said, to the personal intervention of King Edward, who is greatly opposed to any member of the royal family going in hand to parliament for money upon every occasion. In this respect the king differs from his late mother, who was much given to encouraging these applications. Princess Beatrice, the mother of the bride-to-be, has drawn $30,000 a year from the country for a very long time. The view is held that this sum should suffice for her daughter's marriage, especially when it is remembered that practically the whole of Queen Victoria's vast private fortune was left to her youngest daughter.

The REALM FEMININE

ARE YOU YOU?

Are you a trailer or are you a trolley?
Are you tagged to a leader through wisdom and folly?
Are you Somebody Else or You?
Do you vote by the symbol and swallow it "straight"?
Do you pray by the book, do you pay by the rate?
Do you tie your cravat by the calendar's date?
Do you follow a cue?
Are you a writer or that which is worded?
Are you a shepherd, or one of the herded?
Which are you—a What or a Who?
It sounds well to call yourself "one of the flock."
But a sheep is a sheep, after all. At the block
You're nothing but mutton, or possibly stock:
Would you flavor a stew?
Are you a being and boss of your soul?
Or are you a mummy to carry a scroll?
Are you Somebody Else, or You?
When you finally pass to the heavenly quicket,
Where Peter the Scrutinous stands on his picket,
Do you think you will do?

AN AT HOME FOR GIRLS.

At the Y. W. C. A. Friday evening is one of the most interesting and valuable "at homes" of the week, for on that evening foreign girls of the city are invited to gather and get acquainted and join the English class.

If any ladies have foreign girls employed in their homes, who are homesick and lonely and wish to learn our language, it would be well to introduce them to the secretaries of the Y. W. C. A. at this time, either in person or by telephone, so that they may be welcomed and made to feel that they have a sort of proprietary right in the pleasant, pleasant times at the association room.

Please do not forget that Friday evening is especially for the stranger girl far away from the dear familiar scenes and faces among which she has lived, and any woman that is the means of bringing one of these lone wanderers into the cordial circle of the Y. W. C. A., where she will find friends and learn this puzzling, difficult English language, has done a good thing.

Don't forget, Friday evening for the girls with such very long distance homes.

I once knew a lovely Swedish woman who lived in the country with her dear young girl. She is now the wife of a well-to-do countryman of hers and the mistress of a beautiful home.

She told me a sad story of the mischief wrought by the agents of the various steamship companies in Continental Europe.

They go about among the people until they find those who have sufficient means to pay their passage money to the states, and then proceed to inoculate them with a discontent that makes the simple, wholesome lives they live in their native land seem bare and commonplace.

They draw largely upon their own imaginations, and give the most striking variety to the winds while they picture the fortunes that are lying about loose to be picked up by these simple, honest folk—just as soon as they will turn over their small fortunes for passage money and leave all the dear associations of a lifetime, the life that is simple, honest, comparatively free from care and comparatively full of comfort—for that strange land of which they know nothing.

THE ORIGINAL.

Foley & Co., Chicago, originated Honey and Tar as a throat and lung remedy, and on account of the great merit and popularity of Foley's Honey and Tar many imitations are offered for the genuine. These worthless imitations have similar sounding names. Beware of them. The genuine Foley's Honey and Tar is in a yellow package. Ask for it and refuse any substitute. It is the best remedy for coughs and colds.

SOLD AND RECOMMENDED BY
Woodard, Clarke & Co. and E. C. Skidmore & Co.

A week by those who are cordially disposed to them.

There are so many ways of serving them but perhaps the easiest and best is to boil them until they are tender, in just enough water to cover them. When nearly done add a half teaspoonful of sugar. When quite done, pour off the water and add cream with butter to taste. Let this combine a hour and the onions are ready for the table.

A simple salad is made by cutting a Spanish onion into very thin slices, sprinkling with sugar and covering with lemon juice. It should stand a few minutes before it is eaten.

One of the old-time uses for onions was to make "drafts" for the feet or chest in case of cold or sore throat. Just a little remedy for a severe cold was onion sliced in molasses and simmered slowly until it was well blended with the syrup, and a very effective remedy it was.

To Restore Colors.
Alum water will restore almost all faded colors. Brush the faded article thoroughly to free it from dust, cover it with a layer of castile soap, rinse with clear water and then alum water, and the color will be usually much brighter than before.

THE VALUE OF OLIVE OIL.

The following from the St. Louis Globe-Democrat is too good to be lost and is especially valuable at this season of the year:

Olive oil is one of nature's helps to keep the system in good order—a help, remember, and not a cure-all. Where the liver is torpid, as in tropical climates, it will be found that a continuous use of the oil of the olive keeps down the bile and incites the torpid organ to do its work properly.

Just a little consideration of the question by an intelligent woman should convince her that all fruits and vegetables have a certain curative power for ills that are common where each product comes to us in its greatest perfection.

In keeping the liver active and preventing a too great secretion of a too small one, as the case may be, of the bile, oil, in so far, helps to clear the complexion and revives the system generally. Frequently, however, it creates constipation, and its action must be aided by some simple aperient. Any saline water is good, but the great trouble lies in the system, and dependent upon anything taken regularly, and then conditions are worse.

It is far better to bring about the wishes for result by judicious use of various foods. Stewed fruits, all the green vegetables, like cress, spinach, lettuce and onions, are just as much helps. Things to be avoided are pastries, cereals, heavy meats, rich gravies, high seasonings, too much sweets and starchy foods. These are sure to clog the system in time and must be eliminated in some way.

Fruits that grow in tropical climates, like figs, dates and the like, are among remedial agents to help keep the system in proper condition while taking the oil of the olive. Where the olive oil is really expressed from the system itself it is generally genuine, although there is great difference in the first and second grades, one coming freely from the full, rich, ripe fruit, and after, others expressed from the depleted, which means that it is not nearly so good. In buying the best plan is to go to a high-class grocer and note the different brands, with unmistakable evidence of genuineness.

There are oils made from many things—peanuts, for example, and pignuts; but anyone that has ever known the real, rich and delicious flavor of the finest olive oil can never be deceived. The best has a slightly greenish tinge, as it must have come from the olive itself. It is not cheap; but, as the quantity I recommend is small, a quart bottle lasts a long while and its cost is not to be compared to the expense of special liver trouble under a doctor. One teaspoonful half an hour before breakfast every morning and an hour after the latest meal, whether that be dinner or supper, if taken regularly for months, will in time help the most obstinate case of torpid liver, and incidentally help to clear the skin, relieve the eyes of their yellow streaks and give life a different outlook. If the taste is unpleasant use the 5-grain capsules, costing a few cents the hundred, and take it that way; or mix it with a little orange juice.

TO A CORRESPONDENT.

The editor of this column is in receipt of a very well-written, thoughtful letter signed "A Daughter," but with no name and address accompanying.

It is contrary to newspaper rules to publish communications without the name and address of the writer, and these are kept in confidence if desired.

Will "A Daughter," therefore, kindly send her name and address, so that her letter may be published?

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

To Tell if Milk Has Been Watered.
A simple method of testing whether milk has been watered is to take a well-polished knitting needle and dip it into a deep vessel of milk and withdraw it immediately.

If the milk is unwatered some of the fluid will adhere to the needle, but if it has been watered in the least degree the needle will come out quite free of the milky fluid.

That Onion Cure.

Did you read in Sunday's Journal about that New Jersey doctor who is routing tuberculosis with just plain, everyday onions?

It is fair to suppose that if onions will cure tuberculosis their use will tend to render one immune against it.

Some enemy of the pungent bulb may aver that the remedy would be worse than the disease, but those who "love onions" will not agree with him.

They ought to be eaten at least once.

PROGRESS MADE IN FIFTY YEARS

Woodard, Clarke & Co. Say One of the Most Noted Examples is in Medicine.

"While electricity has supplanted the old-fashioned tallow candle for lighting purposes, almost turning night into day; while it has opened up our great country by a network of electric railways, while all kinds of machinery have been invented to do the work of hosts of people, we have just as noted an example in the field of medicine," said a member of the above firm.

"Fifty years ago every one knew of the latent medicinal properties contained in cod liver oil; physicians everywhere prescribed it, but thousands could not take it on account of the oil and grease which enveloped the curative, strengthening properties it contained, and in many cases where they could take it it would upset the stomach so it could do no good."

"Now all this is changed," continued he. "Science has shown us a way to separate the curative medicinal elements which exist in the cod's liver from the oil or useless part and given us Vinol. It contains every one of these medicinal elements, actually taken from fresh cod's livers, but without a drop of oil or grease to nauseate and upset the stomach and retard its work. Vinol contains no sickening drugs, everything in it is printed on every bottle.

"We have never sold in our store a medicine equal to Vinol to give strength and renewed vitality to the aged, build up the run-down, tired and debilitated, make the weak strong, cure coughs, colds and build up the convalescent."

"It is because we know so well the medicinal power of this new cod liver oil preparation that we freely offer to return the money in every case where it fails to give satisfaction." — Woodard, Clarke & Co., Druggists.

COTTON SCANDALS AGAIN AIRED

Leak in Department of Agriculture Concerning Reports Causes New Arrests.

MOSES HAAS IS AGAIN TAKEN INTO CUSTODY

Peckham is Also Held at Saratoga—Accused of Having Made Fortunes Through Advance Crop Information.

(Journal Special Service.)
New York, April 11.—That the federal authorities were not satisfied with the outcome of the action instituted against Moses Haas and Frederick Peckham last year for having conspired with Edward S. Holmes, Jr., assistant statistician, to obtain advance information as to the government official cotton crop report, and which resulted in the discharge of Haas and Peckham, is shown by the arrest today of Moses Haas. He further developed at the arraignment of Haas before United States District Court Judge Adams that Peckham was also held upon the same charge by the federal authorities in Saratoga under a bond of $13,500 several months ago. Haas was ordered released upon bail of $1,500, which he furnished.

At the time of the arrest of Haas and Peckham last year it was asserted that Holmes had supplied Haas and Peckham with advance information as to the government cotton crop report, and had even arranged the figures for the bull market. That Haas and Peckham, together with Louis Van Ryppe, who provided the capital, bought thousands of bales of cotton on information and realized profits extending into hundreds of thousands of dollars is also alleged.

It was shown that Holmes got a portion of these profits, and his resignation was ordered by the department of agriculture after an investigation which involved other officials.
