

RULE OF AMOS ATHLETES HIT TO END BY WAVE

State Prohibition Party Meets and Outlines Program That Includes Retirement of Old Leader.

MORE LIBERAL POLICY GENERALLY FAVORED

Stronger Plan to Be Made to Every Class of Voters and No Matter What One May Have Registered as He Will Be Welcomed—New Era Not Well Received by Old Leaders.

If plans to nominate only a partial ticket that were discussed in caucus meetings this morning before the opening of the state convention of the Prohibition party in the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A. are carried out at this afternoon's session, the party will cast aside its old customs and adopt a policy of assisting other political parties in electing certain candidates. The plan discussed involves the retirement of L. H. Amos, who for years has held the most conspicuous position in his party in Oregon. Mr. Amos, representing the orthodox element of the party, has always advocated the nomination of a full ticket.

Registration Out a Figure. The convention began at 10 o'clock this morning. The question of nominating a ticket did not arise, though the plan was given by the president of the party.

It was a small gathering that attended the opening session this morning. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Amos and C. J. Bright of Wasco was elected chairman. F. R. Rutherford of Portland was made secretary. The following members of the nominating committee were present: Yamhill county, H. J. Nott; Multnomah, B. Lee Page; Marion, C. W. Fugate; Beaverton, Professor Henry Sleak; Morrow, M. D. L. French; Lane, W. P. Elmore; Wasco, C. J. Bright; Coos, W. W. Rosebrough; Clackamas, F. P. Pettit. Committees were appointed as follows: Credentials, E. M. Smith, Portland; Professor Henry Sleak, Philomath, and W. W. Rosebrough, Coos county. Finance—E. T. Johnson, H. W. Stone, Portland, and H. Gould, Newberg. Resolutions—L. H. Amos, Portland; Oliver Jory, Salem, and W. P. Elmore, Albany.

Debate as to Policy. Immediately after the appointment of the committee Dr. E. L. Lane precipitated the discussion by introducing a resolution to the effect that no one should have a seat in the convention except those who have registered as Prohibitionists. The convention should recognize no one, he said, who claimed to be a Prohibitionist but who had registered as a Democrat or as a Republican. The resolution was instantly opposed by H. W. Stone of the Y. M. C. A. and the discussion became general. It finally threatened to result in a wrangle which was avoided, delaying action on the motion.

Instead of excluding any one we ought to extend a welcome to all who are working for the movement and who are in sympathy with us, Mr. Stone said. "What we need is votes if we are to accomplish anything, and we will certainly not get votes by excluding persons rather than welcoming them." The afternoon session began at 2 o'clock. Nominations were begun at once and also a general discussion as to which office it was advisable to include in the list for which nominations were made.

Wed at Kelso. Kelso, Wash., April 13.—Otto Elwell and Miss Edith Page were married here at the home of the bride's mother, the Rev. J. C. Abels officiating. Mr. Elwell is a young business man of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Elwell left for Portland on the afternoon train.

Bert Kerrigan and Five Other Members of the American Olympic Team Injured by Smash From Sea.

MAY NOT BE ABLE TO COMPETE IN CONTEST

Mountain of Water Sweeps Champions Against Deck of Barbarossa and Nearly Washes Them Overboard—Sheridan, Mitchell, Borneman, Cohn and Hillman Hurt.

(Journal Special Service.) Gibraltar, April 12.—A big wave struck the steamer Barbarossa, carrying the American Olympic team to Athens, while en route to this port. Six members of the team barely escaped being washed overboard. One of them was injured quite seriously.

Among those injured and probably incapacitated from participating in the contest at Athens is Bert Kerrigan of the Multnomah Amateur Athletic club of Portland, Oregon, champion high jumper, who was to represent America in this event. Kerrigan is not seriously hurt, though bruised and scratched badly. The wave swept members of the ship's crew, as well as the famous athletes, off their feet and smashed them against the sides of the cabin. H. L. Hillman, sustained a lacerated knee and is probably the most seriously injured. Among the athletes J. S. Mitchell, the weight thrower, sustained a dislocated shoulder. Harvey Cohn, the long distance runner, and F. A. Borneman, the champion swimmer, sustaining severe scratches and bruises. Four other members of the team sustained lesser bruises. The six may be unable to compete in the contest at Athens on account of the injuries. It is almost certain that both Mitchell and Cohn have been too seriously hurt to take part in the contest.

Bert Kerrigan, Portland's representative among the athletes, is one of the best-known jumpers in the country. He lives in this city at 349 Stark street, and for years has been identified with the Multnomah club. He was selected to represent America, principally in the running high jump, and was also to be entered in several other events. Last year Mr. Kerrigan was director-general of athletics at the Lewis and Clark exposition, and also competed in the games. At that meet he won the championship of the United States in the running high jump, clearing the bar at 6 feet 1 1/2 inches. Although this mark did not equal his record of 6 feet 2 inches, he nevertheless defeated all comers. As for that reason, was selected to represent America at Athens in the high jump. Mr. Kerrigan is an all-around athlete and holds several notable records, including the world's records for the running high dive of 6 feet 3 inches.

FAMOUS WRESTLER TRIMMED BY A HELLO GIRL

William M. Murphy, Former Champion, Attacks Chicago Operator and Is Worsted.

(Journal Special Service.) Chicago, April 12.—William M. Murphy, former American champion wrestler, attacked an athletic Chicago girl last night on Washington boulevard. A moment after the first advance he went down before a rain of blows from the girl's fists. In another minute he had given up resistance and sought safety without success in flight. At the end of the first round of three minutes Murphy was a prisoner on his way to the police station in a patrol wagon. Then Miss Lillian Houck, the telephone operator, who had "trimmed" Murphy, smiled and continued on her way home. Murphy shamefacedly stood in the prisoner's dock in Justice Dooley's court this morning. He had nothing to say. Blackened eyes and swollen lips told of the force of Miss Houck's blows. Murphy was fined $50 and costs and goes to the workhouse for three months.

GOULD TO BUILD LINE TO JACKSON HOLE MINES

(Journal Special Service.) Ogden, Utah, April 12.—It is announced this morning that the Rio Grande Western, Gould's road, has taken options on valuable property in Ogden canyon, the only remaining piece through the Wasatch range, and will construct a line to this city through northern Utah, and a branch into Wyoming. It is the intention of the Goulds to tap the rich coal region of the Jackson Hole country, which has as yet been untouched. The new line will be 200 miles long.

ACCUSED OF SELLING LIQUOR TO A MINOR

(Journal Special Service.) Pendleton, Or., April 12.—J. D. Shipp, proprietor of the Brewery saloon, has been arrested on a charge of selling liquor to a minor. Walter Arnold, the boy accused of relieving a stranger of a purse containing $25 in the Brewery saloon Tuesday night. Shipp will be arraigned before Judge Ellis this afternoon.

ROOSEVELT QUILTS HUNTING TRIPS

Teddy Annoyed Because People Make Fun of His Gunning Expeditions.

BENEATH THE DIGNITY OF OFFICE HE HOLDS

Good News for Cougars, Bobcats and Prairie Wolves Sent in Reply to Invitation to Take Part in a Big Hunt in Oklahoma.

(Journal Special Service.) San Antonio, Tex., April 12.—Because the people do not consider it dignified, and make more or less adverse comment, President Roosevelt will not again go hunting during his term of office. This is the substance of a letter received this week by Cecil Lyon, a Texas member of the Republican national committee. Lyon arranged a wolf hunt last spring in a big pasture of Kowa county, where the president discovered John Abernethy, the wolf killer, who is now United States marshal of Oklahoma. At that time an arrangement was made to repeat the hunt this spring. The letter to Colonel Lyon expresses regret of the president that he is not able to go hunting any more until he ceases to be president, because the office he holds is held to be of too great dignity to permit of having any more outings. The president says the people make fun of his hunts to such an extent as to be annoying to him.

SAYS THE LORD TOLD HIM TO BURN BUILDING

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Aberdeen, Wash., April 12.—J. Beaudin, a fruit dealer, who was arrested Monday morning on a charge of being drunk and disorderly, has been acting strangely for some time from religious mania. He arranged to give a lecture on religious subjects last Sunday. He got out bills and tickets, and sold tickets at $1 and then gave most of them away. He was kept in jail a few days, improved, and was released, when the man returned. He said that God told him to burn the store building he was in and to kill several people. The store is one of the few wooden business blocks remaining. He has been arrested again and held pending an investigation as to his sanity.

PEACE CONFERENCE IS ADJOURNED TO AUTUMN

(Journal Special Service.) St. Petersburg, April 12.—It is officially announced that the second Hague peace conference has adjourned until September.

The Easter Sunday Journal Excels All

The Easter Sunday Journal will be a revelation. It will be magnificently illustrated in colors and will be filled with all kinds of good reading. A special story illustrated in colors of Easter morning in the City of the Resurrection is an article that will surely please you. In England women are not allowed to be in view of the parliament while it is in session. They are compelled to occupy a sort of birdcage near the roof. If you want to learn of this quaint thing read The Sunday Journal. Never are the children forgotten in The Sunday Journal. Last week Billy, the elk in the City Park, talked to the little ones. Every child wants to learn of its friends in the City Park zoo, so read these interesting animal stories to them. You will also profit from the reading for the animals tell lots of things that will interest you. In addition to the animal story for the children there are also the colored comic pictures for the little ones and you will enjoy laughing with them over Happy Hooligan, Maud the mule and the others. The Sunday Journal will be a good Easter morning present for you. Full of features designed for each class. The business man, the matron, the maid and the children all have their pages.

Do Not Fail to Get the Easter Sunday Journal

Above Vesuvius in Eruption, Below a View of the Crater.

DEATH AND DESTRUCTION IN CYCLONE'S PATH

Six Reported Killed and Much Damage Done to Property in Texas Town.

(Journal Special Service.) Dallas, Texas, April 12.—It is reported today that six persons were killed and 30 injured in a cyclone which struck Briggs, Texas, yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock and almost entirely destroyed the town. The dead are Mrs. R. Hickman and daughter, Arnett Haber and wife, and R. A. Patterson and wife. Practically every person in the town is more or less injured. Reports from other points in northern Texas show that the tornado wrought much damage in many localities. Wires are down and but little information can be obtained. The storm came from the southwest, and ruined farm houses and scattered debris mark its trail.

UNION COFFIN FACTORY TO BURY UNION WORKERS

(Journal Special Service.) Chicago, April 12.—A union coffin factory, together with the direction of funerals of union men at $50 apiece, may be the next step of the Chicago Federation of Labor in consummating plans broached at a meeting of the central labor body. A movement for such a factory was launched some time ago for the purpose of putting a labor rival of the so-called undertakers' trust in the field. Several propositions for the erection of a plant have been considered by the executive board. The one which met with the most favor provided for the building of a factory at a cost of $50,000 in one of the suburbs.

RUSSIA ON VERGE OF BANKRUPTCY

Loan Negotiations Declared to Be at a Deadlock and Grave Crisis Approaching.

ONLY A FEW MILLIONS LEFT IN TREASURY

Hitch in Proceedings That Delays Signatures to Contract at Paris Tomorrow—Liberals So Far in Elections Have Gained Big Victory.

(Journal Special Service.) Glasgow, Scotland, April 12.—The Herald correspondent at St. Petersburg says that complete bankruptcy in Russia is approaching. Loan negotiations are declared to be at a deadlock with only a few million left in the treasury. The contract for the new national loan was reported to be ready for signature at Paris next Saturday, but there is a hitch in the present negotiations and it seems probable now that the efforts will result in failure. The elections so far as they have progressed have resulted in an overwhelming victory for the Liberals of the various parties. The constitutional Democrats have won here for the first time. The czar will come to St. Petersburg to open the duma, but the representatives will be summoned either to the czar's palace, where they will be presented to the emperor and listen to his speech from the throne. Some fear of an attack upon the Jews at Easter has been caused by the spread of rumors among the population of continued decrease of the eruption and a cooling of the interior. The scientist today ascended the mountain far above the observatory.

TO AID SUFFERERS. Portland Committee Appointed to Raise Funds for Stricken People.

ROOSEVELT NOW AFTER LARGE CATTLE OWNERS

(Journal Special Service.) Washington, April 12.—The president, after repeated conferences with the cabinet has determined to inaugurate a vigorous campaign to reclaim government land now fully fenced by cattle owners. So far these men have escaped through a technicality.

INSANE SOLDIER STABS HIMSELF TWENTY TIMES

(Journal Special Service.) Ogden, Utah, April 12.—T. Cole, one of a party of 15 insane soldiers and sailors en route from Mars Island to Washington, last night stabbed himself 20 times with a pocketknife, and will die. His companion leaped through a car window and escaped to the hills and was only captured after a desperate fight.

RAIN OF ASHES CEASES

Clear Skies and Sunshine Greet People of Stricken Vesuvius District—Normal Conditions Resumed.

NUMBER OF VICTIMS IS CONSTANTLY INCREASING

Animals Dying by Thousands and Decaying Carcasses Add to Horror of the Situation—Relief Work Rapidly Progressing Under Personal Direction of the King.

(Journal Special Service.) Naples, April 12.—Clear skies and perfect sunshine greeted the people of this stricken region this morning. The fall of ash has ceased for the time at least, while the flaming lava no longer pours from the many craters. The air is clear and invigorating and the population is taking hold of the relief work with energy and vim under the personal direction of King Humbert. The blue waters of the bay never looked calmer or more beautiful than they are this morning, with only a column of smoke ascending from the volcano. Order is being rapidly restored. The government has rushed to the aid of the stricken district with every facility of military organization. Troops are being poured into the district and rescue work is being carried on systematically. Clothing and food are being hurried to the stricken district. The number of bodies found is constantly increasing. Scarcely a hamlet but what offers up its victims. Animals in the stricken district are dying by thousands and the stench from thousands of decaying carcasses is adding to the horror of the condition. Fully 6,000 men are engaged in clearing away the debris in the varied districts. More than 5,000 houses have been destroyed or rendered untenable. It is expected that the dead will probably reach 2,500. At Ottaviano alone more than 400 bodies have been extricated from the ruins. The detonations of Mount Vesuvius have ceased and the lava is cooling on all sides. The masses and umbrellas which have been worn here for the last week were discarded for the first time today. Shops were reopened, colors were worn on the streets and the city is resuming its normal life. Dozens of narrow escapes are constantly coming to light, while from the buried cities come ghastly tales of death and disaster. There is hardly a living thing in the Vesuvius district, birds, animals and people having descended the region or lie buried underneath the deep fall of ashes. Chief Observer Mattucci, who has steadfastly guarded his post in the wrecked observatory on Mount Vesuvius, telegraphs more assurances today. He states that observations based upon his experience lead to the belief that the eruption will be over, although he is unable to predict with certainty on account of the limited knowledge of volcanic forces. All signs point, however, to a continued decrease of the eruption and a cooling of the interior. The scientist today ascended the mountain far above the observatory.

RAIN OF ASHES CEASES

Edwin Caswell Rescued Just as He is Going Down in Willamette River For the Third Time.

POUNDED SENSELESS BEFORE DRAGGED OUT

Crowd on Bridge Sees Drowning Boy Struggling to Clutch His Father Until the Latter Knocks Him Out by Blows on the Head and Tows Him Ashore.

(Journal Special Service.) Portland, April 12.—Richard Caswell, a veteran trainer at the Portland Rowing clubhouse on the east bank of the Willamette, nearly lost his life yesterday in an effort to save that of his son, Edwin, 19 years of age, who was drowning. The old man, seeing his son sink the third and last time, dived for the boy, who immediately clasped him about the neck, and a desperate struggle ensued, in which the father, as a last resort, struck the boy two heavy blows on the jaw and rendered him limp. The father was half dead when he at length succeeded in dragging himself and the younger man from the water. There was no one near to aid the life saver. "Dick" Caswell is one of the oldest athletic trainers on the coast. He is engaged in training Captain Ed Gloss of the Portland Rowing club, who is soon to meet Alex. Pope, the San Francisco oarsman. The younger Caswell is a caretaker at the clubhouse, and although a fair oarsman, he has never learned to swim. He was stooping from a wharf at the wharf when the boat shot from under him and he dropped into the water at a point where the depth is 50 feet and the current is quite swift. The elder Caswell, searching for a locker key in the clubhouse, came out upon the wharf and his attention was attracted by a woman standing on the Morrison street bridge and violently gesticulating toward the water. The old man saw the form of his son just in time. Without an instant's hesitation, and fully clothed, he struck the diving attitude of the experienced swimmer and leaped after the sinking man. An eye witness said: "He dived deep and came under Edwin, and had no difficulty in bringing him to the surface, but here the trouble reached the most critical stage. The struggle that followed was witnessed from the bridge by a number of persons, who were powerless to give help. With the spasmodic strength of a drowning person, the younger man locked his arms around his father's neck. The old man tried to push him away. Both sank several times, then came a desperate fight on the surface, when the old man succeeded in getting his son's head above the law of his powerful son. After that it was just a question of the old man's strength holding out until he could reach the dock with his limp burden. It was a heart-breaking struggle, but he succeeded."

MURDER PLOT DISCOVERED THROUGH WOUNDED DOG

Faithful Animal Shot in Defending Master Recognizes Assailant in Friend.

(Journal Special Service.) Margueriteville, N. Y., April 12.—Horace S. Burnside of Maryland, a little village 30 miles from here, was wounded while leaving his barn on Saturday evening by a man who stood in a dark corner of the fence and discharged a shotgun at him. Burnside's dog ran toward the assailant, who shot the animal but did not kill it. When Stephen Craft went to Burnside's house yesterday the dog, which before had been always friendly to Craft, went frantic with rage. This aroused suspicion and Craft was arrested on a charge of having shot Burnside. Craft confessed and told of a plot to kill the entire Burnside family. Craft said that Gilbert Crouse, Charles Newberry and John Kray made definite and careful plans to exterminate the family. Craft was to have killed Horace Burnside and the others charged were to have killed Burnside's brother and son. Craft said he was assured that he would be bailed out if caught after doing his part of the job and while the case was pending the other Burnside would be taken care of. The three other men have been arrested on Craft's charges.

OLD UMATILLA LODGE TO REORGANIZE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Umatilla, Or., April 12.—The old Umatilla lodge, A. F. & A. M., which is to be reorganized at this place at once, was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000 people. For some years the lodge continued to exist, but was usually divided with the town, which about five years ago had been killed and burned. The lodge was reorganized by the Rev. J. C. Abels, who was the first lodge of that order in eastern Oregon. It was formed in 1860, in the days when Umatilla Landing was a city of 2,000