

He Was Almost Blind Scrofula Spread Into His Eyes—Head and Neck a Mass of Corruption

Nothing Did Any Good Until He Took Hood's Sarsaparilla.

In 3 Weeks He Improved and Was Soon Cured.

Murfreesboro, Tenn., Jan. 17, 1906.
C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass.

"Gentlemen:—I send you, herewith, photograph of my son, Clarence, who is now a fine young man of seventeen, and who owes his good health to Hood's Sarsaparilla. When he was a young boy, scrofula appeared upon his head, gradually spreading until it got into his eyes and he became almost blind. His head and neck were one mass of corruption, and we thought he would surely lose his eye-sight. We did everything that could be done for him with the assistance of a skilled physician, but nothing seemed to do him any good. It was then that we began to give him Hood's Sarsaparilla, and in about three weeks his eyes began to improve. The sores took on a healthier appearance, gradually diminished until they entirely disappeared, leaving Clarence a bright, healthy child, with clear, beautiful eyes. How can I say too much in praise of that wonderful medicine, Hood's Sarsaparilla, when I know it cured our boy after we had despaired of his ever getting well? I am satisfied it is the greatest blood purifier in the market. It has done for us all that was claimed for it and more than we expected, and we freely recommend it to suffering humanity." Mr. D. M. CROCKETT.

Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood, creates a good appetite, and restores healthy activity to every part of the human system. It makes people well and keeps them well.

SPECIAL.—To meet the wishes of those who prefer medicine in tablet form, we are now putting up Hood's Sarsaparilla in chocolate-coated tablets as well as in the usual liquid form. By reducing Hood's Sarsaparilla to a solid extract, we have retained in the tablets the curative properties of every medicinal ingredient. Sold by druggists or sent by mail. 100 doses one dollar. C. DOWIE WILL WAGE LEGAL FIGHT Prophet Spurns Offer of Voliva for Appointment of Board of Deacons.

DETERMINED UPON VIGOROUS WARFARE

Will Concede Nothing That Would Deprive Him in Least of Temporal or Spiritual Rights—His Health Is Falling Fast.

(Journal Special Service.)

Chicago, April 12.—Apparently the fight between Alexander Dowie and Overseer Voliva is as far from settlement as ever. Voliva this morning proposed to Dowie that a board of deacons, five of whom should be appointed by Dowie and five by Voliva be named to direct the affairs of Zion. After a conference between the attorneys of the two sides, Dowie's chief counsel, Wetten, announced that the prophet would agree to nothing that would deprive him in any measure of his temporal and spiritual rights.

Dowie is determined upon vigorous legal warfare to gain control of Zion and will soon demand upon the "holy city" and proclaim himself the only first apostle. The restoration of power temporal as well as ecclesiastical and a demand for absolute retraction of the slanderous statements made against Dowie are set forth as the only possible peace plan although negotiations still continue between the respective attorneys.

Edson, Haley and Wetten, for Dowie, are preparing a bill in chancery in order to have the transfer of property at Zion City made between Voliva and Granger revoked and declared void, claiming that Voliva's power of attorney was revoked before the illegal transfer was made.

Despite Dowie's brave efforts to keep

Eugene Council Introduces Ordinances Looking to Action in Near Future.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Eugene, Or., April 12.—At last night's meeting of the city council an ordinance was introduced fixing the annual saloon license at $900 instead of the present $500 license. The ordinance will be voted upon at a meeting tonight and will probably pass, as it is known that five councilmen favor it, while three councilmen and the mayor oppose it.

Another ordinance to do away with slot machines was introduced and it will also probably pass. The recent proposition of the water company to submit the question of a price for the waterworks for its purchase by the city to an arbitration committee of three was rejected and it was agreed that the company should meet with the council and at that time set a price for the plant.

PUNISH GIRLS TOO, THEIR CRY

Disclosures in Chinese Case Horrifying Mrs. Baldwin and Mrs. Trumbull.

BAD GIRLS SHOULD WORK ON ROCKPILE, THEY SAY

Mrs. Baldwin Declares She Had No Idea Women Could Be So Bad—Says Such Cases Show Need for Detention Home and Workshop.

Horrified by disclosures in the police court this morning concerning the relations which white girls are known to have borne to Chinese, Mrs. Lola G. Baldwin, superintendent of the Travelers' Aid society, and Mrs. B. H. Trumbull, probation officer of the juvenile court, personally appealed to Judge Cameron this morning to punish the girls as severely as their yellow consorts.

Chief of Police Gritzmacher accompanied Mrs. Baldwin and Mrs. Trumbull into court and added the weight of his own opinion. He informed the court that mawkish sentiment should not figure in such matters, as girls were not only likely to continue in their evil ways if allowed to go unpunished, but their escape from the consequences of their sin acted as an encouragement to others of their sex.

"I had no idea that women could be so bad," said Mrs. Baldwin. "They should be forced to work on the rock pile. Such cases as this show plainly that a detention home and workshop for abandoned women and girls should be established. This condition of affairs calls for heroic measures on the part of the public really appreciated the situation not a day longer than necessary would be allowed to elapse before a detention home and workshop were established.

Protecting Such Is Folly. "Protecting such and girls guilty of such heinous offenses would be the height of folly. It is a good thing that The Journal, though criticised by interested persons, has had a clear insight into these matters and published the truth about the girls, as well as about their Chinese consorts."

The case on trial was that of a young woman giving the name of Brown, of Stewart street, and Yee Chow, one of the filthiest and most repulsive specimens of his race to be found in Portland. The evidence, given after the courtroom had been cleared of those having no interest in the trial, showed that the girl's brother took his sister to see Yee Chow about ten months ago, telling her that the Chinese had given him money, and might do as well by her. The woman, whose age is 23 years, had bought a piano and needed money to pay installments on her purchase. The boy brazenly testified that he left his sister alone with the Chinese time and again and went after noodles and chop-suey. At that time the Chinese lived in a cellar at Fifth and Oak streets, but has recently had his abode in a basement at 87 North Fifth street. On the third visit the boy witnessed a scene which he says he knew was wrong. By his sister's request, however, he said nothing, and continued to accompany her there. A 16-year-old sister was frequently taken to the place where the Chinese lived.

No Defense Offered. No defense was offered, the girl sitting weeping behind her attorney, Judge Cameron found both guilty, and set tomorrow morning as the time for sentence. Mrs. Baldwin and Mrs. Trumbull affirmed their intention of taking the girl before the juvenile court and charging her with contributory negligence because her 16-year-old sister was taken to the basement occupied by the Chinese. The degeneracy of her younger brother was shown by his taking a subpoena as a witness to a broker after the case had been concluded and endeavoring to cash it. The broker refused to cash the check. HILL ROAD WANTS CHANGES

Port Commission Abandons the Double Deck Proposition and Reinstates Original Status.

MEMBERS THINK THERE SHOULD BE RECOMPENSE

Great Northern's Attorneys Tell the Commissioners That Construction of Provision for General Traffic Is Impossible and Would Cost Much.

A double-track railroad bridge, exclusively for use of standard-gauge steam roads, across the Willamette river at the drydock site, is demanded by the Hill companies, as a final conclusion from the Port of Portland commission. The commission, in an executive session yesterday afternoon, adopted resolutions that reinstate all the points in controversy over the bridge, as proposed by the Portland & Seattle Railway company, although the upper deck proposal will be abandoned.

These points will be threshed out in a meeting this afternoon at 4 o'clock between the commission and attorneys for the Hill lines. "The questions involved are: Location and elevation, towage charges and a remuneration of $10,000 annually to cover all possible expense and hardship that the bridges may work upon navigation interests, character of draw span, and the differential charged against this port by ship owners, which differential the O. & N. Co. is now absorbing and the Hill lines are asked to absorb in a similar manner.

Seeking Compensation. The commission in giving way on the upper deck proposition, feels that it should reconsider all other points that have been raised in the bridge matter, and request the railroad companies to grant concessions that will to some extent compensate for loss of the upper deck.

"So far as the upper deck question is concerned, I am satisfied for some time past that its mechanical difficulties could not be overcome, and that we must concede the claims maintained by the bridge engineers," said a member of the commission, who was president at the attitude taken by Mr. Hill and Mr. Elliott. As business men they have not taken the right stand in attempting to compel the city to give them everything while they concede nothing worthy of mention. Their ultimatum to the effect that they would build their north bank line to tidewater and ignore Portland is disgusting. I have all the time tried to be exceedingly liberal toward the bridge proposition, but now I am pretty much disgusted."

General Meeting Yesterday. Preceding the executive session yesterday afternoon there was a general meeting attended by a score of persons interested in the commission's deliberations. A number of speakers were made. Communications were read from Mayor Lane, urging the commission to insist upon an upper deck for public uses even if it became necessary to build a double-track bridge. The Hon. Levey of the Portland & Seattle, stating in positive terms that the proposed upper deck was impracticable and the commission would not consent to build such a bridge; and the United Railways company, asking that the commission, in arranging for an upper deck, should consider the company as an applicant for the privilege of using such a track for an electric line to the board of directors. A large part of the initiative one hundred were represented by R. W. Montagu, who made a strong argument urging the commission to insist upon construction of a double deck bridge.

Upper Deck Impracticable. The Hill railroad companies were represented by C. H. Carey, J. Couch Flanders and James B. Kerr. Mr. Carey's address to the commission was an ultimatum from the railroad companies, but was strongly rebuffed by the speaker's personal feeling as a citizen. He recited the efforts of the Portland representatives of the Hill interests, including Mr. Levey, to induce Messrs. Hill to consent to undertake construction of a double-track bridge of the size and style asked by the commission, and said they had sent Mr. Flanders to St. Paul to lay the whole situation before the presidents of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific and their consulting engineers.

Mr. Flanders' trip proved futile. The engineers positively refused to hazard reputation on the outcome of such an experiment, declaring that a drawbridge of the design asked had never been built and could not be successfully operated. Ralph Modjeski of Chicago, who has been engaged by the Hill lines as chief consulting engineer for the Columbia river and Willamette bridge, declined to proceed unless the demand for an upper deck were withdrawn. Mr. Carey with much feeling, made the statement that the railroad companies would build the north bank road to the sea without bridging the Columbia and Willamette rivers if the port commission refused to grant a simple railroad bridge crossing the Willamette.

Would Be Costly. Mr. Flanders emphasized the company's refusal by stating that the cost of an upper deck would add $175,000 to the cost of the bridge exclusive of 4,000 feet of approaches. Figures given showed that the total cost of an upper deck and paved wagon road would be upward of $400,000, a large part of which the city and county would have to pay. They would afterward have to keep the wagon road in repair.

After hearing all arguments the commission was divided into two sections and at a late hour in the afternoon reached a vote. It was to the effect that all conclusions arrived at down to the present time be rescinded and that the commission receive a new proposition from the railroad company. The commission's action is framed in the following resolution, adopted just before adjournment:

"Whereas, This commission has on two separate occasions voted to grant to the Portland & Seattle Railroad company a franchise for the construction of a bridge across the Willamette river on terms that it was led to believe would be acceptable to the said railroad company, said terms being modified by the commission at the instance of the railway company of important conditions that this commission deemed it agreeable to make; and whereas, such concession made by this commission has been followed by demands on the part of the Portland & Seattle Railroad company for still further concessions, including the withdrawal of stipulations that the representatives of the railroad company had approved; now, therefore, be it resolved, That this commission hereby rescinds its action and the two

LOOKS LIKE HUSTON, SAYS WILLARD MARKS

Willard Marks, a well-known young Albany attorney, is in the city. He declares that everybody up the valley is talking politics, and that the congressional fight is the hottest of all. Mr. Marks is of the opinion that S. B. Huston of Hillsboro will be the nominee from the first congressional district.

"It looks like Huston to me, although the fight is a hard one between Mr. Huston and W. C. Hawley," said Marks this morning. "When the fight first started Walter L. Toose was the man that was most talked about, but his boom busted long ago; he may carry his own county and he may not. As the Toose light went glimmering, Mr. Hawley announced himself as a candidate for the nomination. His boom was not of the lasting sort, for when Mr. Huston came out into the race he secured many deserters from the Hawley and Toose armies. I think there is no question but that Mr. Huston will carry Linn county by a big majority."
