

PORTLAND TO GET THE TOURISTS

Harvey T. Lott of Omaha, Tourist Association Representative, Figures This Way.

NORTHWEST AND MEXICO WILL GET THE TRAVEL

As Mexican Trip Is Now Expensive, Mr. Lott Says, Majority of People Seeking Sights Will Come to Portland and Sound Country.

Harvey T. Lott of Omaha arrived in Portland this morning from San Francisco, where he passed through the earthquake and fire. He was rooming in a downtown lodging-house and barely escaped with his life. Mr. Lott is representative of a tourist association of Omaha which makes up touring parties for Pacific coast trips.

"The tourist travel which would have gone to San Francisco will be diverted to other places this summer," he said, "and it is only reasonable to assume that Portland and Seattle will benefit because of this. We were arranging to send a party of 140 to San Francisco and from there to other points in California. It was in the city making arrangements for this trip when the earthquake and fire occurred. I immediately telegraphed my firm that it would be impossible to have the party make the trip."

"We were arranging for several Pacific coast trips and the majority of them had San Francisco for the most northern point. Now we will attempt to arrange a tour which will take the central point and side trips to the sound. Our location makes it imperative that our tours go through Portland. While I am in the city I will make arrangements for the entertainment of our parties here."

"Of course my firm sends out less than 500 people every year, but from what I have seen and what I have heard elsewhere, it is reasonable to assume that the tourist travel this summer will be divided between the northwest and Mexican and southwestern points. As the latter tour is more costly, it is safe to say that the majority of tourists who come west of the Rockies will invade Portland and from here take in the beaches and the sound country. I also expect a number to take the Alaska trip. "I can say nothing about the horror I witnessed that has not been said hundreds of times before, except that in my opinion San Francisco and the country around it is damaged for years to come. Of course the native Californians will immediately rebuild, for commerce and business of all kinds demand it, and the railroads, who have expensive investments there, are expected to do their utmost to build up the city again, but the outsiders in general will fight shy of the place. The tourist travel is an important factor, greater than most people perceive, think and are aware of. There are hundreds of other relations between outsiders and San Francisco that will be ruptured for years. All of this will mean a great loss to the city. "It is nothing less than wonderful that any one who has looked upon those ruins has the nerve to invest money again in the city and to live there."

TAKEN WHILE CITY QUAKES.

Views of Damage Done by Shock and Fire in San Francisco.

A most interesting lecture, with over 50 stereoscopic views of the San Francisco ruins, directly after the earthquake and fire, will be given at the city hall, Wednesday evening, May 2, by Mr. Mayer, a photographer of San Francisco.

As Mr. Mayer possessed the only stereoscopic machine after the terrible disaster which returned the beautiful city of San Francisco into ruins, the views to be shown to the Portland public are the only ones made.

In an interesting interview Mr. Mayer described his thrilling experiences in photographing the ruins on the day of the earthquake. Directly after the shock in the morning, Mr. Mayer chartered a tug to take him to San Francisco from Oakland, where the sailing was found him. All cameras and large stereoscopic machines which were in Mr. Mayer's San Francisco office became a prey to the fire and with the only one which he had with him in Oakland, and after buying up all the available negatives in town he started for the doomed city. "Providing himself with a pass from the governor and a fire-limo pass, Mr. Mayer struck out in the early afternoon for the downtown district, photographing everything of importance. His presence in the burning district was connected with many dangers, as military patrols had full charge of the city. By sleeping that night in the ruins of a burned building, and with a slight scratch from a regular's bayonet, Mr. Mayer managed to get a photograph of nearly all the large buildings which by that time were already for the most part in ruins. Mr. Mayer took the only pictures of the city on the first and second days of the disaster, which, in all their horror, show the terrible destruction the great catastrophe left in its wake."

HEALTH BOARD IS MAY 18 WILL BE ENLARGED CLEANING DAY

Chief of Police Takes His Seat as Member of the Body. On That Day Big Roundup of Tin Cans and Weeds Is Planned.

NEW RULES FAIL TO PLEASE THE MAYOR

Thinks Suggestions to Market Men Are Too Vague and Sound Amateurish—Garbage Pickers Worry Inspector.

For the first time since the reorganization of the city board of health under the new charter the chief of police of the city sat as a member of the board. By the city charter, the chief of police is made a member of the city board of health, the other three members to be licensed physicians. The mayor is chairman of the board. Heretofore, and especially under ex-Mayor Williams' regime, the chief of police was never present at the meetings.

Mayor Linn severely criticized the manner in which a number of suggestions to be followed by market men, bakers and grocers if they desire to be placed on the "clean list" of the city market inspector, were worded at the meeting of the city health board this morning.

"Those suggestions sound to me to be a little schoolmarmy," said he. "It sounds to me as if they cover too much territory and are not specific enough. I believe you should say at the top of your pamphlets, containing those suggestions that if any grocer, baker or market man desires to have his name placed on the 'clean list' to be posted in the city health office, he shall first comply with the following regulations: Then give your list of requirements; make everything explicit."

The suggestions compiled by Mrs. Evans required the shops to be well ventilated and lighted and thoroughly clean. One of her suggestions was that no smoking or expectorating be permitted in the shops and that signs be placed in conspicuous places conveying that intelligence to customers. She said that she had seen men making bread who were smoking and permitting ashes to drop into the dough. She recently upbraided a man because a woman was permitted to expectorate in his shop and that she had seen men making bread who were smoking and permitting ashes to drop into the dough. LEAK SOMEWHERE SAYS DRUIN

Joe Northrup, Wanted on Warrant, Escapes on Sunday to Seattle.

SOMEBODY WARNED HIM, SAYS POLICE INSPECTOR

Was Arrested in Company With Several Actresses in Restaurant and His Evidence Largely Was Responsible for Acquittal of Proprietor.

Incensed by the escape of Joe Northrup, for whom a warrant of arrest had been issued by Police Judge Cameron, the municipal authorities declare that without doubt there is a "leak" somewhere in the police department or the police court. Inspector Bruin expresses the opinion that a department stool-pigeon managed to convey the information to Northrup that he was wanted by the police and that after being warned he left the city. Every effort will be made to discover who is responsible. Northrup was employed as manager of the music department of a mercantile store. With A. O. Smith, proprietor of the Circuit, or old Doctor saloon; J. Ward, an actor; Mrs. Ward and Miss E. Murray, actresses, he was taking an elaborate party as a witness against E. G. Johnson, a restaurateur, at 2:30 o'clock on the morning of April 23. Johnson was charged with selling liquor without furnishing meals. He was acquitted, largely on the testimony of Northrup, who is accused by Inspector Bruin of testifying falsely.

Angered by Northrup's testimony the police made an investigation as to his mode of living. It was discovered that at night he played a piano in the Circuit saloon. He is also charged with being an opium smoker and with having used the drug at the Castle lodging-house, Washington and West Park streets.

A complaint was filed against him charging a statutory offense last Saturday and a warrant issued. It was given to Detective Murphy to serve, but he failed to locate him quarry Saturday night. As the offense charged is a misdemeanor the warrant could not be served on Sunday, though it is known that Northrup was at Johnson's restaurant at 1:30 o'clock that morning.

SHEEPMEN BATTLING FOR WENAHU RESERVE

Special Dispatch to The Journal.

Pendleton, Or., May 1.—The Umatilla county sheepmen have their remonstrance prepared to present to the forest officers at Walla Walla today. The papers consist for the most part of affidavits from individual stockmen of Oregon setting forth their claims to land in the Wenaha reserve which was allocated to Washington men at the first meeting a month or more ago. However, the Oregon men will also make the claim that no Washington sheep are entitled to range in Oregon, and that if they are they should be kept in the Wenaha reserve. On this contention they are depending much and purpose to carry the matter to the head of the department should the officials at Walla Walla refuse to do to benefit the city by devoting Friday afternoon to work that will improve the exterior appearance of their homes. The ward committeemen will have general charge of the work and will adopt various means of arousing the interest of the children. Some of the committeemen will solicit funds and give prizes to the children who collect the largest piles of tin cans and rubbish of any character that cannot be burned, but must be hauled away. The women will, it is expected, form civic aesthetic societies and keep up the home-beautifying work permanently. Two women of the sixth ward called on the committee yesterday and asked what they could do to help.
