

OAKLAND WINS A POOR CONTEST

Giants Play Badly and the Visitors Have an Easy Time in Winning.

SEVEN RUNS SCORED IN SECOND AND FIFTH

Cates, of Last Year's Portland Team, Pitched for Oakland and He Managed to Scatter Out the Hits During the Nine Innings.

Oakland 7, Portland 1. Batteries—Cates and Hackett; Califf, Torin and McLean.

There was something wrong with the Portland Giants yesterday. From a close observation it appeared that several of the players were suffering from the restlessness that is known in New York politics today as a "Jerome slumber." And how they ever managed to slumber during the fitful spells while the few faithful fans were shouting holes through their lung pipes, in severe criticism for superb stupidity, is more than the casual observer can understand.

In the vernacular of everyday life, they were punk, and the slowest brand of punk in the market. As it is human to err, it is not divine for a fan to forgive, and all of the sweet things that were exultantly applied on Thursday, were taken back yesterday with a vengeance.

After the day's dark dream was over and the fans started for the cars, with heavy hearts and lonely tread, it never dawned upon the unsuspecting spectators that there was a cause for the disaster, and this is what it was:

On the pennant pole in right corner field, that patient flagstaff that has put Job's successor out of a position, and that has been apostrophized more than it deserved, there hangs on the topmost point the beautiful emblem of the United States. Half way down the pole starts a string of pennants that are supposed to spell the name "Portland." The idea is old; but anything for a change. The word as spelled by the arrangement of the pennant reads "P-O-R-T-L-A-N-D." The last letter is a "C" and should be a "D." The pennant is white, with a red ball in the triangle, while the correct emblem for a "D" should be a blue pennant, containing a white ball or design in the middle. If no other suitable reason can be assigned for yesterday's comedy that ended in a tragedy, the mistake in the arrangement of the pennants must naturally be accepted by the fans.

In the second inning Califf was hit for five safe drives. One of them dropped between Mitchell and Moilanen, but while the two worthies were imitating Gaston and Alfonso Moore added an error, and before the smoke cleared two runs were across.

Torin then took up the work unfinished by Califf, and things went along smoothly until the fifth inning, when four hits and Sweeney's miscue contributed five runs to the visitors.

Portland's only run was made in the third inning, when Donohue lined out a double-scoring a Giant.

Ely Cates, a discarded Portland player from last season's team, was in the box for Oakland, and heid the Giants safely throughout. While Cates was touched up somewhat, his cleverness prevented the Giants from bunting any hits.

The attendance, though it was free day for the ladies, took a drop below Thursday's figures. Knell umpired a good game. Here is the official score:

The breeders' home sale came to a close yesterday afternoon at Irvington racetrack. From early morning until late in the day, the auctioneer from Missouri, made the buyers "show him." From the standpoint of both breeders and purchasers, the sale was a success, a fair average price being received for the entire lot, numbering about 140.

Those who attended the sale were loud in their praise of the manner in which the auction was conducted. The full list of the horses disposed of yesterday and which concluded the sale follows:

THE TRACK TEAMS OF THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO engaged in its first outdoor meet of the season today, going against the University of Illinois team at Champaign.

The supposed weak teams of the American league are doing all kinds of things to their stronger brothers.

This is the date set for the second annual Marathon race under the auspices of the Missouri A. C. of St. Louis. In 1904 the first Marathon run was held in St. Louis in connection with the Olympic games at the exposition and was won by Thomas J. Hicks of Cambridge, Mass. Joseph Forshaw, who is now abroad with the American Olympic team, won the event, covering the 40 kilometers in 3 hours and 15 minutes.

It is interesting to note that very few of the "home teams" in the north won their opening games, while the southern baseball clubs that opened at home were nearly all successful. In the National league and in the Connecticut league no home team won its opening game. In the American league New York was the only home team that won, and in the Eastern league Providence was the only winner. In the American association two home teams, Louisville and Toledo, were successful. On the other hand, the Southern league won its first game, while in the South Atlantic and Cotton States leagues there were two teams each that won on the home grounds.

The track teams of Ohio State university and Indiana university are scheduled to engage in a dual meet today at Bloomington.

Both the St. Louis league teams are working hard to keep out of the cellar this year, and from present indications they will succeed in keeping above ground.

The tennis season for 1906 starts today, when the chess teams of Harvard, Yale and Columbia line up for the interscholastic tournament.

The Baltimore team played several of the Virginia league clubs this spring and ran into some mighty good ball playing, which indicates that Jake Wells is at the head of a high-class minor league this season.

The fifth annual meet of the Yale interscholastic track games takes place on Yale field today. About 100 schools have entered and the outlook is bright for a successful meet.

Ace Stewart has made a nice start with his Jackson (Mississippi) bunch and is going to make a hard tussle to land the flag in the Cotton States league. Billy Earls of Vicksburg says that the first name of the Jackson manager is a high-card, but he will have to show.

Large scores are scarce in baseball nowadays, but Chicago this spring had two in one week to their credit. One 12 to 0 game with Philadelphia and a score of 19 to 2 against Washington established the season's record.

The Pittsburg and Chicago Nationals are playing nice ball, but it is doubtful if they can overtake the Giants. It looks as if the New Yorkers get farther away every day.

GOOD PROSPECTS FOR NEW Y. M. C. A. BUILDING

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Corvallis, Or., May 5.—There is strong hope that the college Y. M. C. A. building for which the first contributions were asked about a year ago, may reach completion this summer. People outside the city of Corvallis have pledged $4,800, the alumni of the college will give $700, members of the faculty agree to donate $1,000 and Corvallis residents of $2,300 is still necessary for the completion of the project. The students have already pledged $5,000, and since the work has been taken up afresh within the past few days, the aid of the state committee of the Y. M. C. A. has been asked in raising funds. The building is greatly needed, and being a very worthy enterprise, should be and has been liberally supported.

IS BADLY INJURED IN FALLING FROM BRIDGE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Chehalis, May 5.—S. Bertelson, a well-known Tacoma bridge contractor, went home Thursday with very bad injuries, which he sustained in falling from a bridge across the Newaukum river, which his company is constructing about eight miles from Chehalis. Mr. Bertelson stepped on a timber, which he thought was secure on top of the structure and fell about 20 feet. As he fell he grabbed onto a 10X12-inch timber about 10 feet long and this went to the bottom with him. The timber struck his left hand and crushed the bones of about half of it into jelly. He lost two fingers and a part of the hand and was also cut about the head, where he struck on some rocks.
