REPORT SHOWS RELIEF WORK

While no account was kept of the patients carried while the relief work was running free yet a fair idea can be had by the number of cases moved. From April 18th to the 25th the people were carried free and 6,000 cases containing passengers were moved as follows: To interior points.....$7,000 in sleeping cars to other cities... 7,584 to points about the bay.....$20,000

In the movement of this enormous number of cars and people there were no accidents. From April 26th to May 5th the road carried 185,000 paying passengers. About 185,000 of these went to points adjacent to San Francisco, the balance farther on and out of the state. These figures would indicate that the greater number of actual residents are hovering near and will, unless something unforeseen happens, relocate and establish themselves in California.

On last Saturday it was estimated that 250,000 people were furnished rations. The largest camps are now at the Presidio and in the park. Cooking on the streets is still practically unknown, but is very slowly changing as chimneys and temporary structures are erected. The work of supplying relief is now in the hands of General Greely of the army and Mr. Devine of the Red Cross. There has been enormous waste, which, in the very nature of things, was inevitable, but the work of distribution is now fast being systematized. There are, however, to be some cases overlooked if particular attention is not given to them, as there are some people who are hopelessly incompetent that they have to be looked after under all circumstances. Still there is no other way of handling this tremendous problem than through some system. There has been considerable fraud practiced in getting supplies, but this is being dealt with and will, if practically, cease. I do not think there is any danger of famine. I would urge most strongly that you maintain your practice of sending only what Major Devine orders.

The condition of some of the clothing sent in some instances passes belief. I am thankful to say that none of it was sent from Oregon. The finances are extended, but they want nothing but money, that they can buy the supplies they need better than any one else can, and that money is their great need. On Saturday last they had $1,000,000 in cash on hand. They are holding to determine upon some plan of financial relief. Dr. Devine favors the following:

First—Employ those who can work for their own subsistence. Second—Employ those who can work, paying them wages and let them buy their own supplies. Third—Aid those who have lost tools, furniture, etc., by getting them new outfits.

This policy seems to be a good one. It has with this policy, well to be established at which meals can be secured for 15 cents.

It is the general consensus of opinion of those thoroughly familiar with the situation that many more people have been killed than have been reported. It has been impossible as yet to make any regular and thorough search of the ruins, and there are undoubtedly many bodies beneath the debris which have not yet been found.

San Francisco conditions are now normal, but there are indications of typhoid. Strenuous efforts are being made to get the sewers in shape and increase the supply of water. It is to be hoped that epidemics can be prevented.

Of the schools 42 are gone; 45 left. Four hundred and twelve classes are out; 600 in. They intend to care for the classes out in tents.

Calamity Teaches Lesson. This awful calamity has a lesson for us in Portland as well to heed. The earthquake did great damage, as it did in Oakland, Santa Rosa, San Jose and other places, but it was the fire that annihilated San Francisco, and the city of it has modern science has demonstrated that both causes can be guarded against. While we are free from the earthquake shock, we are subject to conflagration that could wipe us out. From the north end of the city to the south, on both sides, a train is practically laid ready at all times to swiftly carry the fire throughout the entire distance. On the riverfront rafts of logs block the efforts of the fireboat. On the east end the elevated roadway is the swift carrier of destruction.

The city, except in the matter of health and in a few other minor particulars, exercises no control over the character or kind of buildings erected. Fire limits are extended, but within these limits buildings that are but fire-nurces are erected. In the face of the general good the individual must give way and there should be some committee appointed by some responsible body and furnished funds sufficient to enable them to employ the most competent advisers to prepare some plan to make

URGENT MESSAGE TO WORK

Scores of Able-Bodied Men Offered Employment but Contractors Unable to Secure Help at San Francisco.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) San Francisco, May 8.—Blasting of the ruins on Market street that was resumed yesterday was continued this morning. A strong wind is blowing, cracking and rendering more dangerous a number of walls.

Hundreds of additional men went to work this morning clearing the debris. The demand for carpenters exceeds the supply. Many of those anxious to begin the construction of temporary buildings today are being unable to hire men. Many refuse to work so long as they are supplied with food and sleeping quarters, but with a better systematization and distribution of supplies, in which the able-bodied men will be eliminated, it is expected scores now leaving will be forced to work.

The health board has again issued a warning to take the strictest sanitary precautions. The Daily News, the last paper published in the city, was yesterday re-established in the city, issued yesterday, without outside help, Saturday's issue having been sent to Oakland.

City Funds Exhausted. The municipal fund for cleaning the streets is almost exhausted and unless additional funds are provided work will have to stop within the next four days. A number of banks opened for business today. The Red Cross reports ample food on hand and no suffering in prospect for the immediate future.

Fire which necessitated the calling out of 100 bluejackets and marines stationed along the waterfront and for a time threatened the saved portion of the waterfront from the city were the second and Brannan that occurred early yesterday, was due to spontaneous combustion in a large brick building at Filbert and Sansome streets, occupied by the Gibraltar warehouse, having its origin among thousands of rolls of wallpaper.

Fire Rages Fiercely. The fire raged fiercely for a couple of hours and gained great headway. A strong northwest wind spread the flames to ruins of adjacent frame buildings. All along the waterfront ships moored at the docks lay in the path of the fire and their destruction seemed imminent. Among the steamships that were the Pacific Coast Steamship company's steamers Curacao and Umattila, the Pacific Mail steamer City of Para, Japanese liner Nippon Maru, Oceanic steamship company's City of London, and the Chicago, Boston, Burnside and Princeton.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Salem, Or., May 8.—The First Congregational church of this city, which since the departure of Dr. W. C. Price of Cameron, Missouri, to supply the pulpit for the next three Sundays. He comes highly recommended.
