G. A. Westgate, the new chairman of the Republican state central committee, made his advent in Portland yesterday. He will remain at head-quarters practically all the time until after the election, and, with Secretary Spencer, will wage an active campaign. Besides the preliminary work of organization, they have yet done nothing except to arrange for a few meetings in different parts of the state.

The formal opening of the Republican campaign will be at Corvallis tonight, when speeches will be made by Dr. James Withycombe, candidate for governor, and by congressional candidate Hawley. Mr. Hawley has already mapped out a full line of dates for speeches in his district, and will speak twice on most of the days. Dr. Withycombe will be accompanied on his itinerary by several of the candidates for state offices.

The managers at the county Republican headquarters are husy arranging for mass meetings in the Multinomah county precincts outside of the city of Portland. These outlying points will be canvassed before an active campaign is begun in the city. Invitations have been made to several speakers re-
