

JOSHUA LIVED ON HEAVENLY FRUIT

Crefield Told Followers in The Dalles That He Ate Golden Pomegranates.

FOLLOWERS WERE NOT TAUGHT HOLY ROLLING

Murdered Fanatic Began His Mission by Having Trances—Powers as Hypnotist Displayed—Disciples Still Keep Together.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) The Dalles, Or., May 8.—Joshua Crefield, killed in Seattle by George Mitchell, was well known in The Dalles. He began his "mission" here over three years ago and had several prominent people as converts.

At times Crefield claimed to have trances, but these were suspected as impostations at the time. His power as a hypnotist was demonstrated on some of these occasions. In one of his trances he claimed to have eaten of heavenly fruit and to have the power given to him to feed his followers with the same.

One lady stated that she had tasted of this heavenly fruit through the miraculous power of Crefield and told her neighbors that the golden pomegranates which she ate were the most luscious she ever tasted. She was a woman of middle age, had passed the romantic and emotional period and was of exceptionally good moral character.

There is no doubt that she literally believed Crefield had fed her on heavenly fruit. His followers still continue together as a separate body and have meetings every Sunday. They never practiced "holy rolling" in its most revolting features, but are believers in divine healing and keep aloof from the churches.

HEALTH OFFICERS ACTIVE ON PENINSULA

Conditions Investigated in Portsmouth and University Park Districts.

Over 250 residences in Portsmouth and University Park have been inspected within the past four days by City Physician Spencer and Deputy Health Officer Beutelspacher to determine the cause of the contagion of diphtheria in those districts.

The cause of the contagion is thought to be due to the bad sanitary conditions existing on the peninsula. Large numbers of open vaults were discovered, which are not properly cared for, and cesspools were found to be improperly maintained.

What was found to be needed and what the health authorities have recommended to the residents of those districts is that the existing sewerage system which would carry all the sewage into the river.

A full report of the investigation of the health authorities will be made by City Health Officer Beutelspacher to the board of health in defense of the criticism heaped upon the health authorities by the committee from the Initiative One Hundred, who declared that the health department had been negligent in dealing with the diphtheria contagion on the peninsula the past winter.

'FRISCO BUREAU REPORT TO BE PRINTED HERE

Owing to the fact that the printing office maintained in connection with the weather bureau at San Francisco was destroyed by the fire, all of the statistical printing of that station will be done in the Portland office. Information was received this morning to the effect that H. Hutchinson, in charge of the government printing office in the destroyed metropolis, has been ordered to Portland and should arrive here tomorrow morning.

SAN FRANCISCO FIRE CAUSES COURT DELAY

A peculiar reason for a request for time in which to file an answer, yet a reason strong enough to warrant its granting, was pleaded in the case of W. T. Allen versus La Grande Water Storage company and others before Judge Wolverton this morning. Mrs. J. McCamant, attorney for the plaintiff, asked for a stay of 30 days, because they had been unable to locate the firm of Chickering & Gregory, their San Francisco respondents, through whom the case was first sent.

MULLIGAN-BROWN CASE READY FOR THE JURY

The trial of Albert L. Brown, alias Edward Burns, and P. J. Mulligan, accused of manufacturing machinery with which to make counterfeit money, was resumed this morning in Judge Wolverton's court. NO NEW DEVELOPMENTS

No new developments today marked the police investigation into the case of A. Watland's death. The man was supposed at first to have been killed by a streetcar, but many circumstances have come to light leading certain of his friends to think he was murdered or rendered helpless before he met his death.

NOT IN ACME MILLS STABLE

The colts in an Albina stable that were destroyed, presumably, by the same of young towns of that suburb, were not in the stables of the Acme Milling company, but in a stable on an adjoining lot. A watchman kept guard over the horses and other property of the milling company.

A POSITIVE RECOVERY

Having to lay upon my bed for 14 days from a severely bruised leg, I only found relief when I used a bottle of Ballard's Snow Liniment. It can cheerfully be recommended as the best medicine for bruises ever sent to the afflicted. It has now become a positive necessity upon myself. E. H. The REAL FEMININE

By HELEN HAWTHORNE

THE SENTIENT EYE.

There is no sound save as there is an ear to catch the vibrations, no beauty without the eye to focus, in fact the whole world becomes, without intelligence, as negative as the small boy's definition of salt—"that which makes potatoes taste bad if you don't put any on."

Nature is re-robing herself in most alluring fashion these days and the sweetly-scented thyme, the daisy, the music of the brook and the downy fluttering of the birds are very precious miracles to hearts attuned to nature's marvelous re-awakening.

The untrained eye may find no glint in the morning's dew, receive no hint of beauty from the branches of beckoning green, yet in the humblest touch of nature the sentient eye finds much to linger on—beauty in the homely, loveliness where ruggedly objects, even in the stage within the brain upon which all scenes are played.

It ever searches, searches early, late, To grasp the beauty set so thick around— Would clasp, enfold and revel in it, found, And stay therewith a logging naught can save.
