

FIRE ESCAPES OR CLEANING DAY HUGE SUCCESS, SAYS PRESIDENT FRANCIS T. MCKENNA

Shaver Building Must Conform to Ordinance in Ten Days or Be Closed.

DELAY WILL NOT BE TOLERATED

Executive Board Delivers Ultimatum to Board of Education in the Matter—Arlington Club Ice Causes Some Excitement During Season.

Unless the board of education begins this afternoon to bring up a subject with which you are already pretty well acquainted," said City Attorney McNary at the meeting of the executive board late yesterday afternoon. "It's about fire escapes on the Shaver school."

Mr. Wittenberg has been out of the city and it has not been attended to. Mr. Wittenberg has said it will be done during vacation, though he says "it is all right."

"How about closing the school?" inquired Thomas G. Greene. Both Mayor Lane and the city attorney gave as their opinion that the executive board has power to order the school closed.

Finally Mr. Peery moved that the fire chief be instructed to order the construction of the escapes within ten days or the school would be closed forthwith.

The disagreement between Edgar M. Lazarus, owner of a building at Fourteenth and Washington streets, and Building Inspector Mann was aired for nearly an hour.

The ice chest of the Arlington club was called a lot of hard names by Philip Bellini, who declared it a menace to the neighborhood.

City Attorney McNary reported that the Northern Pacific Terminal company was occupying, to the exclusion of the public, a number of streets which had never been vacated.

"That may be our chance for a site for a fire engine house," remarked Mayor Lane.

Patrolman B. P. McGinnis was ordered dismissed from the police force, following the recommendation of the police committee.

Busy With the Rake.

Considering the fact that it is the first time anything of the sort was ever attempted in the city, "clean-up" day in Portland yesterday was a huge success, declares President Francis T. McKenna of the initiative One Hundred. The city was given a cleaning such as it has seldom or never had before.

Every one entered into the spirit of the work, and while the rain interfered to some extent with their labors, they all got their work done so well that the refuse wagons are still busy today disposing of the piles of rubbish gathered. The downpour made everything so wet that the entire celebration planned for last night was abandoned.

Cleaning Day Scene.

not all that might have been wished for, yet on the east side and in north Portland numerous fires were observed. Yesterday was only the beginning of the work of civic improvements. It is to be carried on by Civic Aesthetic clubs to be organized in every ward of the city under the direction of the Initiative One Hundred.

School Children Help.

The task of cleaning-up was begun in the morning. At the schools the children spent their recess time beautifying the grounds and streets surrounding the buildings by picking up paper, trash and all such accumulations and disposing of them. In the afternoon the work proper commenced. Men and women took a hand, and when the school children were released from their studies at 2:30 p. m. they busied themselves. The result was that during the day more than 1,000 loads of refuse were hauled away by the "City Beautiful" carts, according to the estimate of President McKenna. A hundred or more loads yet remain to be moved, Mr. McKenna says, and the wagons are being kept in service today to dispose of this residue of the city's filth.

BOX LABELED "LIVE OREGON BEAVERS" IS SENT THROUGH MAIL

Secretary D. C. Freeman of the Made in Oregon exposition received a prize in the mail this morning. It was both a prize and a surprise, in fact such a surprise that the noise made by the stenographers and other office assistants brought people from adjoining offices in the Made in Oregon room. One man thought it fire and started for the alarm box, while another went to get a policeman. Janitors armed with brooms and brushes and pails of water poured into the room to learn the cause of excitement.

"Death? No, I do not fear it. I might almost say that I do not believe there is any such thing. I think that what is called 'dying' is in reality and more truly birth, a change for the better in every way, the open door to a life of greater opportunity, fuller activities and higher powers of our powers," said Professor F. T. McIntyre, the noted scientist and psychic authority of New York City.

"Whenever and wherever this so-called 'death' may come, whether peacefully in my bed, or by the assassin's dagger, I am ready to welcome it."

Professor W. A. Barclay, the noted practitioner of Oriental mysticism, writes: "You are without doubt the greatest genius in the world. Your systems of personal influence are a more complete and immediately efficacious of any that I have read of or tried. Your systems of reading character, projecting thoughts and controlling people are away beyond and in advance of any other thus far brought to light."

When asked what he charged for his book Prof. McIntyre replied: "Charge? I do not charge anything. I give it away absolutely free. I did not write it in order to sell it, but I believe that it will help my fellow mortals, and aid them in developing those inner and occult forces that exercise such wonderful control over all affairs and conditions of science, to better myself and others, and I am anxious for every man and woman to try the wonders laid bare by my discovery. I make only one restriction, and that is that they must not use the powers of their systems and methods to do harm. With this exception I will send a copy of my book absolutely free to every one who cares to ask for it."
