OVER NEW ROAD

Construction of Harriman Branch Causes United Effort for Betterments.

NO TIME LOST SEEKING HARBOR IMPROVEMENTS

Closing Days of Farmers' and Shippers' Congress Marked by Enthusiasm and Energetic Work for Development of Neglected Region.

By C. M. Hyakell. (From a Journal Starr Correspondent.) North Band, Or., May 28.—Marshileld nd North Bend are still jubilating over the news that the Southern Pacific will immediately begin construction of a railroad from Drain to Coos Bay. At a banquet to the Farmers' and Shippers' congress at the Hotel North Bend the congress at the Hotel North Bend the large significance of this project was shown in the demonstration made by the guests on receiving the announcement in a telegram from The Journal. Toast-master Simpson, to whom The Journal's representative communicated the contents of the telegram, waited until a number of addresses had been made and enthusiasm was high. Then in a stirring speech he read The Journal telegram giving Harriman's official announcement and tendering The Journal's congratulations to the people of Coos bay. In an instant the 200 men at the banquet were on their feet and yelling like mad. They threw things into the air, waved napkins, shook hands and shouted "good!" "great!" To Improve Marbor.

Not a day was lost by the North Bend chamber of commerce in following up the railroad announcement with a practical move in the direction of harbor improvement. At a meeting of the chamber last night action was laken toward improvement. At a meeting of the chamber lest night action was taken toward organizing a Coos bay harbor dommission, establishing a harbor district and levying taxation for harbor improvements. A bill will be presented to the next session of the Oregon legislature creating the commission. It is proposed to raise an annual revenue of $25,000 to $50,000 from taxation and provide interest and sinking fund for a bond issue, to raise money for carrying on extensive dredging in the bay. The people feel that if they are doing this much for their harbor they can fairly demand that the national government shall appropriate money to give them a 40-foot channel over the bar.

Louis Jerome Simpson, North Bend's stalwart young mayor, has achieved what is said to have been the greatest victory of his brief public career. Having with infinite care and skill promoted and organized a three days' session of

It is not enough to meet a few times and say things. This meeting is a step in the right direction. Keep at it. Hammer away, keep on demanding, push your needs before every congressman for and every session of congress. Send in petition after petition. When they get so high on the congressional deak that they are in the way, they will be taken up and acted upon."

Jefferson Myers' Speech.

Jefferson Myers of Portland mad-what was pronounced one of the best speeches in his career. His subject was 'Forty Feet on the Bar,' but he took up other topics and dwelt on the enterprise shown by Coos county people in the making of the best county exhibit at the Lewis and Clark fair. He thanked Coos county people, in the name of Portland, for their important part in the exposition, and exhorted them to be persevering in the work of development of their own county and loyal to the Oregon country. His ad-dress was received with great enthu-siasm. J. C. Davis of Portland spoke as a business man, who had for years believed in the Cons country and whose faith was steadily increasing. He said it was not his first visit, and he had many more visits in prospect. He had no apology to make for Portland's hesitancy in extending commercial rela-tions, but assured his hearers that Portland was not asleep as to the re-sources of Coos county, and that Port-land would do her share, in due time, a bunch of alfalfa in one hand and a bag of potatoes in the other, and gave a characteristic talk on "Coos County Resources" that immensely pleased his audience.

"I am here," he said, "to talk on the possibilities of the soil of Coos county. We depend on the soil for what we eat. We cannot eat the bar, even if there were 40 feet on it. We cannot eat the coal. If we can get the people at work producing all that the soil of Coos county will produce, we will have the greatest wealth."

The Edwards wedding, which occurred in Wilmington, Delaware, on February 22, last, was a clandestine affair, but not exactly an elopement, as the bride's relatives knew in advance of the event. The bride's relatives knew in advance of the who are prominent Christian Scientists.

Mrs. Edwards' mother is now the wife of Dr. Horace Christy, a dentist at Forty-second street and Ninth avenue. Mrs. Edwards received the consent of her husband to accompany her mother on a trip to Atlantic City last Saturday. TELEPHONE LINE FROM IRRIGON TO HEADGATE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Irrigon, Or., May 28.—The Oregon
Land & Power company has put in a telephone line from the Irrigon office along the main canal to the headgate on the Umatilia river. Easy communi-cation is thus established between various points along the ditch. Revenues will pay the cost several times over. It will be of special value when the company has crews working along the canal, or when it is desired to regulate the flow of water into the headgate.

of 75 years. The grange voted to expend $2,000 in furthering the work of the order during the next year.

The report of the committee on assessment and taxation was thoroughly dis-cussed. It favors full value assessments, publishing a list of the assess-ment roll and thorough taxation of in-tangible property. It advises that the time be extended to July 1, before taxes, become delinquent, instead of April, as at present. All notes are to bear the stamps of the assessor before they are collectible by an action of law. It advocates a law making it obligatory for assessors to hold an annual meeting to discuss these matters and thus secure an equitable assessment, and favors a just limit to the accumulation of prop-
