BLIND AND DEAF STUDENTS FATE OF BABY GO HOME FOR VACATION

Forty-Three Pass Through Portland En Route to Their Homes in Idaho and Washington.

from the Washington school at Van-couver passed through Portland yester-day on their way home for summer vacations. They were in charge of Superintendent Thomas P. Clarke of Vancouver and Miss May L. Scott, state superintendent of the Idaho schools superintendent of the Idaho schools. Twenty of the pupils were from Idaho, where there is no school for the deaf and blind, and the rest were from eastern Washington.

A happier 48 children perhaps never existed. Those who were deaf could see, for the most part, and those who were blind could hear and talk. The joy of vacation was written plainly of the faces of each one of these little un the faces of each one of these little unfortunates. "Hurrah! We're going home!" Those who could not cry it out with voice signaled it just as joyfully on lightning fingers. When the eastbound train pulled into the union depot there was a great cry and a waving of hands. Each boy and girl realized that he was to play on the farm for three whole months.

Miss Scott spoke cheerfully Idaho's prospective school for the dest, dumb and blind. "We are hoping to have it soon," she said, "and then we will not be compelled to take the children way over to Vancouver."

Captain Delude Awarded Custody of Adopted Child by Judge Frazer.

HIS WIFE WOULD HAVE GIVEN IT TO STRANGER

While Question Is Being Decided Babe Plays About Courtroom and Romps Over Floor, Caring Nothing for Law's Dignity.

Caring nothing for the law's dignity, pretty little 3-year-old baby romped on the floor in the juvenue court at the feet of Judge Frazer, while he listened to the the parents of the baby, Captain and Mrs. Nelson Delude, and decided which Captain Delude charged that his wife captain Delude charged that his wife did not want the baby, but would give it to strangers to be adopted, if she were allowed to keep it. The captain wanted the child himself, and said he wanted the child himself, and said he would provide a good home for it. While telling Judge Frazer his story, Delude broke into tears. He said he was going to Alaska soon, but can give the baby a good home with his brother-inlaw, Captain McDermott, of Kelso during his absence.

Mrs. Delude admitted to the judge that she would give the baby to some

Mrs. Delude admitted to the judge that she would give the baby to some one else if she were given its custody, but, though she would not keep it herself, she objected strongly to her husband having it, and to its being left with the McDermotts while Captain Delude was in Alaska. Mrs. McDermott and Mrs. Delude are sisters. A child of Mrs. Delude by a former husband is said to have been cared for by Mrs. McDermott for many years.
