

ROARING CHEERS FOR WORD AND CHAMBERLAIN

world, a training that is as inimical to public interests as it is possible for a favored class to give.

Before and after Judge McGinn's address songs were rendered by a quartet of traveling men. Judge McGinn explained that Dr. Stephen S. Wise of Temple Hall had been unavoidably prevented from delivering an address in the interest of Sheriff Word, but stated that Dr. Wise's address which had been prepared would be printed in the morning papers. Dr. Wise's address follows:

An American All the Time.

"I will not speak against Robert Stevens, whom I barely know, nor will I speak for Tom Word, whom I know and whom I trust. I will speak on behalf of the interests of the people of Portland and Multnomah, which are nearer to me than the interests of either candidate. I am a Republican sometimes. I am an American all the time. I am an Oregonian first, then a Republican. A greater and finer Portland is to be desired more than a partisan victory, Republican or Democratic."

"I conceive this to be not a political meeting, but a rally of that portion of Portland's citizenship, here to elect a good governor. I have never spoken at a partisan political meeting and I never will, but when a question of civic cleanliness and political decency faces the people of Portland, I have no right to be silent."

Faithful and Efficient Public Servant.

"If at this election my own brother were a candidate for sheriff on any ticket, I would still vote and work for Tom Word. In the first place, because of his record in office; in the next place, because of the enemies he has made, and lastly, because his candidacy represents two vital issues in American life, the enforcement of law and non-partisanship in municipal politics. His record here has impugned. He has been a faithful, efficient public servant, conducting the affairs of his office with ability and integrity. It cannot be said of him that he is a stupid but incompetent, honest but inefficient, for Tom Word has been incorruptibly honest and splendidly efficient. The enemies he has made do him honor, for he is opposed by a blind and misguided partisanship, by hungry office-seekers, and principally by an army of law-breakers, whom his stern and inflexible enforcement of law has offended and whom only a pliable and purchasable sheriff could hope to please."

Stands for Law Enforcement.

"This leads me to the discussion of the principle which Tom Word's candidacy represents, a principle far more important than any office and of greater consequence than the success or defeat of any man. He has stood and he stands for enforcement of law. Lawlessness breeds every manner of political corruption and national evil. The common gambler at the end of the scale and John D. Rockefeller at the other, alike demand exemption from obedience to law. Tom Word could not be bought or bribed into giving immunity from the consequences of law-breaking to the one, nor can Theodore Roosevelt be moved to allow immunity from the consequences of law-violation to the other."

Stands for American Way.

"Unpunished law-breaking spells anarchy and the end of our American democracy, which rests upon the foundations of law and order. In a democracy people make and keep the laws, and their elected or appointed representatives are sworn to enforce them. In a despotism observance of law is optional and evasive, and law-breaking in turn goes unwhipped by law-taking rulers. We are being called upon more and more to choose between the American way and the Russian way, the American way which grants to no man, even though he be a gambler, the privilege of violating the law with impunity, and the Russian way, which auctions off to the highest bidder the privilege of law-violation. Tom Word stands for the American way, for the enforcement of law for all without truce upon all the tribes of grafters and bribers and hoodlars."

Has Been an Ideal Sheriff.

"Moreover, at this election, Tom Word becomes by force of circumstances the symbol or banner-bearer of another leading principle. Seeing that he has for two years, in the judgment of every lawyer or business man who has had occasion to deal with the office, been an ideal sheriff, the citizens of Portland should show to his prospective party, unite in reelecting him and vindicating not him, but the principles for which he stands. Seeing, moreover, that the lawless elements of every party-lawlessness knows a party, though it usually wears a party mask—are arrayed against him, the law-abiding citizens of this community, waiving all partisanship, ought to unite in a man in keeping him for another year in the office he has filled with honor to himself and joy to all such as are jealous of the honor to our city and state."

Meets a Higher Standard.

"The question to be asked by the electors of Portland on Monday is not whether Tom Word is a Republican or a Democrat. Is he an honest man? Has he been a capable and upright public servant? A man's political complexion in national affairs no more affects, one way or another, his fitness for office holding in a municipality than the color of his hair or his hat. Political partisanship has no right to obtrude itself upon city housekeeping, which is the whole of municipal government. In municipal politics we ought to have another and a higher standard than that of narrow and bigoted partisanship—the standards of worth, character, integrity, these higher standards, Tom Word triumphs for another year."

Defeat Would Disgrace Us.

"To defeat Tom Word in his candidacy for reelection would do no such dishonor to our city as it would disgrace us. His defeat would be equivalent to serving notice upon our public servants: 'Don't be fools; your oath of office upholds and maintains the law is only a joke. You are not expected to enforce all the laws, but only those the enforcement of which will neither hurt your friends nor injure your political careers. As for the others, public office is a private trust.' To defeat Tom Word would be to punish honesty and fidelity; would be to say to the faithful, upright public officials: 'Public office is not for such as you. It is for the grater, the jobber, the bribe-taker. If you must be honest, then stay out of public office.' To elect Tom Word is to vindicate the majesty of the law for which he has bravely and unflinchingly fought. The reelection of Tom Word would be a proclamation that the people of Portland have set their face in the right direction of good government, civic decency, political honesty."

MANY CROWD

stumping the state and disparaging the qualities of Chamberlain, was not half as good a governor as he. I wish to say that I have nothing against T. T. Geer, but I simply look upon him as a middling good farmer and a devilish poor governor."

Mr. Lane earnestly referred to the prisoners in the state penitentiary at Salem and declared that in times past their condition had been worse than that of the exiles to Siberia.

"The food they got I would not feed to a dog," said he. "They were treated with the most shameful cruelty for years. But since Chamberlain has been in office that condition of affairs has been abolished. In the older days they died, died of starvation and cruelty, starvation the result of graft. Today they are fed and treated like human beings. When Governor Chamberlain was elected I went to him and told him there was just one favor that I would ask, and that was that he would treat those prisoners as human beings. He said that he would and he has kept his word. It takes a man with a heart in him to do for those prisoners what Mr. Chamberlain has done."

Was Praised for Gearia.

Continuing, Mayor Lane declared that, whatever his politics, there is not a man in the state who can deny that the present executive has not filled his office creditably. Referring to Senator Gearia, Mr. Lane characterized him as a gentleman than whom there was no higher-minded, no cleaner, no more whole-souled and no more honest in the state.

Mayor Lane referred to Tom Word and to the statement made by a prominent Democrat now running for office, who, before the campaign, asserted that during all the decades of his life in Multnomah county he could not remember a man who had so honestly and efficiently administered the office of sheriff.

"These are a sample of the men we can point to all the way down the line," said Mayor Lane, "and there is a good reason for this. The Democratic party is a minority party and it dare not come to you with anything but the best of men. For the same reason Democratic office-holders in this state make the best office-holders, for one slip, one misstep, will consign them to oblivion, while a Republican can do almost anything and yet be reelected by the narrow margin."

Closing, the mayor spoke a few words for Halley, urging the voters to add to the intelligence of the Oregon supreme bench by adding Judge Halley to that body. It was a great speech, and for the least 10 minutes the crowd was literally spellbound.

W. Hutchin Makes Address.

G. L. Hutchin, candidate for the legislature, was next introduced. Mr. Hutchin pointed to the fact that the election of Chamberlain, Word and other Democrats in times past is an indication that the people are breaking away from their narrow partisanship and coming to vote for men and for principles. He averred that the Democratic party represents the interests of the common people and called upon the common people of the Republican party to join with the common people of the Democratic party for the purpose of establishing a plutocratic government and the rule of the trusts.

The speaker characterized the United States senate as a millionaire's club, the richest in the country. The senators are paid representatives of monopolistic interests and they are there to watch against any legislation for the interests of the people. The only remedy for this state of affairs, he declared, was the election of senators by a direct vote of the people.

Speaks for Tom Word.

E. J. McAllister provoked round after round of applause by his speech advocating the reelection of Tom Word. He began by stating that the election of Judge Webster that Word had given the best business administration of his office which had been given for 30 years.

Gambling Houses Gone.

"When Word was elected sheriff there were 11 gambling houses where a 10-year-old boy might go and be ruined," said McAllister. "Today they are gone. Do you believe in laws against gambling? Do you believe in a sheriff who is not put into office to make the laws or be a judge. He is put there to enforce the laws, and if the laws are wrong it is up to us to change them."

McAllister Related the Story of Word's Fight Against the Gamblers.

McAllister related the story of Word's fight against the gamblers, saying that the county court still refused to reimburse Word for the money he expended in holding the gambling houses, though the supreme court said he was right in doing so. That Word might obtain his rights in such matters and be backed by an honest judiciary, McAllister urged that John Van Zante, judge-elect for the county, should be elected to the office instead of a man who would be a hindrance to the reelection of good government, civic decency, political honesty.

The pipe line amendment is retained in an amended form. As accepted by the conference it says:

"All persons or corporations engaged in transportation of oil by pipe line are hereby authorized to make contracts within authority of the company. Express companies are also included, but sleeping cars are not. Rebating is punishable by one to twenty thousand dollars' fine, and the railroad official convicted is also liable to imprisonment not exceeding two years. As it leaves conference the bill empowers the commission to fix 'just and reasonable maximum' rates for joint rates and establish the division of the rate over such joint route."

STONE ARRAIGNS

There was a long and bitter fight over the provision for the return of the initial carriers liable for damages to property when transported over a joint route, but it finally remained in the bill.

WILL NOT REMAIN FAR FROM PORTLAND

Warship Squadron Will Probably Leave Portland Harbor Before That Time.

SHIPS WILL BE IN DEMAND ELSEWHERE

Squadron Will Be Divided Later Part of June and Vessels Will Visit Different Ports for Independence Day Celebration.

There is little probability of the warships now in the harbor and those booked to arrive here during the month remaining in Portland over the Fourth of July. Admiral Goodrich gave out the information last night that while it rests entirely with the war department, it is quite likely that orders will be received for the vessels to depart for different destinations by the end of this month.

The torpedo boat destroyer Paul Jones may be expected in the harbor June 15, and she will be followed by the destroyer Preble on June 17. The cruiser Boston is undergoing repairs at the Mare Island navy yard and cannot possibly reach this port before June 18 at the earliest. The Marblehead is not coming here, as she is now in Panama.

It is customary to split up the squadron on holidays such as the Fourth, because so many requests pour into the war department for a visit from one of the warships. By reason of this fact, it does not appear probable that the fleet which will be here during the greater part of this month will be permitted to remain over the Fourth.

The admiral also announced that competitive small-arms target practice will take place as soon as the Paul Jones, Preble and Boston have arrived. Teams of 12 men from the five vessels will compete for the prize, which will be $300, or $25 for each man. The competition, it is believed, will attract considerable interest. Boat races may possibly also be arranged between the crews from the different vessels, although no program has been outlined as yet.

CORVALLIS COMMENCEMENT JUNE 7 TO 13

Rev. William C. Eliot Jr. to Speak at Graduation Exercises.

June 7 to 13 will be commencement week at the Oregon Agricultural college at Corvallis, and elaborate preparations are being made for the event. Invitations were received in Portland yesterday, giving the program for the week.

On Thursday, the seventh, there will be a cantata, "On Shore and Sea," given by the department of music. The feature Saturday will be a debate for a cup between the Pierian and Jeffersonian societies, and on Sunday baccalaureate sermon will be delivered by Rt. Rev. Frederick W. Keator, bishop of Olympia. There will be a physical culture drill Monday afternoon and an organ recital, with occasional exercises, in the evening in the chapel.

Tuesday, June 12, is class day, and will be marked with the usual ceremonies, including parade and skirmish drill by the cadets, class day exercises, a baseball game between faculty members and seniors, and the annual senior entertainment in the opera-house.

The graduation exercises will be held Wednesday morning, June 13, in the Army, when Rev. William C. Eliot Jr. of Portland will deliver the address. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon there will be a meeting of the alumni.

would go to the others all the more surely if they were near by."

Mr. Hellig was in Seattle yesterday and could not be reached for a statement. It is said New York theatrical interests known as Klaw & Erlanger syndicate, represented in Portland by Hellig, will furnish one half of the money for the joint project. They have for some time been figuring on building a new theatre for Manager Hellig in this city and negotiations have at last taken definite shape in the plan above outlined.

May Use Marquam Again.

E. L. Knapp, manager of the Royal Italian band, is planning to secure a lease on the Marquam Grand theatre and introduce year-around light and comic opera in Portland. He is willing to advance part of the money that will be necessary to construct the needed exits as will be required to make the theatre comply with the fire ordinance.

Knapp is the owner of the Hecla theatre of Los Angeles and is seeking to establish a circuit on the Pacific coast. He is connected with M. Aronson, the San Francisco millionaire builder, and will erect a new theatre in San Francisco as soon as it is deemed advisable.

"It is a shame," he said at the Hotel Portland last night, "to see such a theatre as the Marquam Grand go to waste. I believe that light and comic opera will be well supported in Portland if it is conducted in a first-class theatre. If I can secure the Marquam Grand it will be my object to get to-

Last of the Marshalls.

The chairman of the London county council and some of his colleagues journeyed on Saturday into a portion of London rich in Dickens associations, for the purpose of opening the newest of metropolitan playgrounds, which is situated on the site of the old Marshalsea prison and its yard.

Improvement Has Involved the Obliteration of a Dickensian Shrine.

That was a favorite with thousands of both Englishmen and Americans. True it is St. George's church is left—the church where Little Dorrit once found a refuge, and from which in later years she was married. Nothing of the Marshalsea, however, now remains except a portion of the original prison-yard wall, which incloses the northwest angle of the new playground.

Mr. Stuart Sankey, chairman of the parks and open spaces committee of the London county council, who declared the ground open, referred to the fact that it had taken eight years to acquire it. Mr. Evan Spicer, J. P., chairman of the London county council, expressed the prevailing opinion when he believed the ground would be "a perfect Godsend" to the children of the district.
