He had been employed in the Mattingly stables here for several days prior to a drunken spree, which terminated this morning when he entered the tunnel and lay down on the track to sleep. RATE CONTROVERSY WAS BEGINNING OF COLDNESS

All Now Seems Smooth and the Senator Calls at White House to Personally Explain Inability to Attend Function Because of Business.

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.) Washington, June 5.—Judging from the number of "significant" interviews that have recently taken place at the White House, and the "important" speeches that have been hazarded on "the bill" with the Allison amendment as a text, there is every reason to believe that the said amendment implied much more, both politically and otherwise, than was actually written into the bill. It is sagely observed by one of our "testamentary contemporaries" that Senator Allison has not forgotten the art of walking on piano keys. This is true of his politics as well as of his legislation. He may well be accredited with the coup d'etat of the Fifty-ninth congress when by diplomatic means he was named "Aldrich" in the title of the rate bill for that of "Roosevelt," and still maintain the most untruffled perfect harmony. Not only had Louis XIII his Richelieu, but verily the Duke of Rhodéland has his Allison. Chaplain Hale says that divine providence is looking after the senate. That is giving Mr. Aldrich pretty high rank. Senator Aldrich has resumed diplomatic relations with the president, and political gossip is wondering what deep-laid plots are hatching. This is the first restoration of the entente cordiale since the break early in the rate bill controversy. It was Wednesday that it took place, and the Rhode Islander was accompanied to the White House by the "smooth man" of the senate, Murray Crane of Massachusetts, whose role and nickname of peace-maker are pretty securely fixed on his mind. There was considerable "close harmony" when the three got together, the tenor of the meeting being one of sweet peace, in which the railway note was not sounded. Mr. Aldrich had been invited to a White House dinner this week and made the personal call to withdraw his acceptance, previously given, since an unforeseen business trip would require his presence in New York. There was some conference upon statehood and upon canal matters; the program for the rest of the season was outlined. Senator Aldrich explained that there was considerable strong sentiment in the senate for the sea-level canal plan, recommended by the committee.

SHEPHERD ASK TO HAVE TAX REMITTED

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Pendleton, Or., June 5.—Because they do not wish to pay the government $12,000 for ranges in the Blue mountains which are not to be allotted and will be used in common, Umatilla county sheepmen have petitioned to have the reserve tax left off this year. Two hundred and forty thousand sheep have been admitted from Umatilla, Morrow and Gilliam counties at 5 cents a head. If the Blue mountain reserve were allotted among the sheepmen, the Wenaha growers say they would have no objection to the tax. The remonstrance has been sent to the department by secretary Smythe of the Umatilla County association.

CHAMBERLAIN IS GAINING, SAYS CHAIRMAN SWEET AT HALF PAST TWO O'CLOCK.

Some Results Better Than Was Expected

WHERE WITHYCOMBE WAS CONCEDED MAJORITY THE MAJORITY HAS GONE FOR CHAMBERLAIN IN MANY INSTANCES—EVERY REPORT SWELLS HIS VICTORY.

(Washington Bureau of The Journal.) Washington, June 5.—Representative Nicholas Longworth and Mr. Longworth have called to Europe. The representative in congress and his wife, the son-in-law and daughter of the president, will be the guests of Ambassador Reid at Dorchester house, in Park lane and at Wreath's park throughout their stay in England, and are to be included in King Edward's party at Windsor Castle for the Ascot race meet. This is always a sort of a semi-private affair and will enable British royalty to show some attention to Mrs. Longworth.

CHAMBERLAIN'S VOTE WAS UNDERESTIMATED

Returns received late this afternoon show that the vote for Chamberlain was underestimated. For instance, this morning it was conceded that Withycombe would carry Clackamas county by 300, but complete returns from 24 of 29 precincts now show Chamberlain leading by 212 votes. At this rate Chamberlain will win the county by 390. This alone will increase his majority in the state from 2,200 to 2,590. Columbia county is also standing by the governor. Reports from La Grande give Chamberlain a lead of 200 in Union county with only a few precincts complete. Chamberlain is also ahead of Withycombe in Morrow and South Mountain precincts. In the latter county, Arlington precinct gives the governor a majority. Condon precinct was close, but Chamberlain won it by 9 votes.

ARLETA AND WOODSTOCK FILE THEIR PETITIONS

Petitions from residents of Arleta and Woodstock were filed with County Superiorintendent Robinson for the district boundary board this morning. The prayer is that these suburban school districts be consolidated with District No. 1, the Portland district. These are among the greatest of particular significance for the reason that Chamberlain has shown great strength in what was considered a Withycombe stronghold.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE FOR HILARIOUS FOURTH

At a meeting of the trustees of the Portland chamber of commerce today it was resolved to assist in every way possible the promotion of a big celebration of July 4 in Portland this year. Gliner was appointed to devise ways and means for the celebration, especially coastwise and foreign shipments from and to this port, and reports made regularly to the department of commerce and labor at Washington for publication.

FEWER FIGHTS AND DRUNKS THAN USUAL

Excellent order was preserved by the police department all over the city election day. The usual tally of fights and drunkenness was decidedly short. Around town the same condition prevailed. On constitutional amendments, adjourned until 2 p. m.

The president is determined on the lock type and wants to get to the inside of canal construction, instead of having to be content with picking around the edges of a half-baked idea.
