police were mode in the municipal courtifies morning by Attorney John F. Logan, representing M Chinese on trial for visiting a gambling-house.

During the progress of the cross-examination of Patrolman Smith, one of the arreging officers, Logan inquired of the policeman if his great eagerness to secure a conviction was due to the fact that the place in question refused to contribute to a graft fund. Smith hotty denied the accusation and declared that any one who made a statement of that character was a liar.

There was no evidence presented by the police iending to show that gambling was carried on in the premises at 136 Second street, except a set of dominoes and a package of watermelon seeds. Judge Cameron, in rendering his decision, took occasion to inform the pelice that they apparently did not use due diligence in securing evidence, not withstanding his repeated admonition as to what testimony was essential to secure a conviction. Deputy City Attorney Fitzgerald also stated that in his opinion there was no aufficient evidence to establish the charge and poisted out the inconsistencies between the testimony of Patrolman Smith and Detective Hill.

Smith's teetimony in brief was to the effect that he had received information from Ju Sus that 138 Second street was a sambling den, and after watching the place for some time determined to make a raid. After smashing the doors and gamings an entrance the Chinese were found congregated about several tables playing with dominose. TO BE DEDICATED SUNDAY

New M. E. Church at Seaside.

New M. E. Che

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Seaside, Or., July 26.—The new Methodist Episcopal church here will be dedicated on Sunday with appropriate services. Bishop Moore officiating, assisted by Rev. F. B. Short of Portland. The building is commodious and moderate in every way, having been designed to answer the needs of this growing community. The church is a monument to the work of Rev. C. A. Housel, the paster, who has worked dligently to provide better accommodations for his congregation. The auditorium is 33 by 56 feet, with a recess for the pulpit and choir. The pews are arranged in a semi-circular form. A lecture room 20 by 20 feet is separated from the auditorium by rolling partitions. On the same floor is the pastor's study and in the basement is the Sunday school, besides the heating plant and a kitchen. It is proposed to establish a free reading room in the basement.

The nucleus of the structure was the old building, erected seven years ago and which stood some 400 feet from the present location, which is on Main street and easily reached from all parts. The cost of moving, building and buying the land will amount to some $2,500. So enthusiastically has the enterprise been received by the people of Seaside that the most sanguine expectations have been surpassed in raising money at home.

The services on Sunday will continue

The services on Sunday will continue all day. In the morning Bishop Moore will preach the dedicatory sermon, and in the evening Rev. F. B. Short will worth will sing several solos.

Thieves Take Cash Register

Police Headquarters-Burglaries, Hold-Up Men and Sneak Thieves Continue Nefarious Work.

A crime of unusual daring in the very heart of the business district, on a well-lighted thoroughfare, was reported to the authorities at an early hour this morning. Thieves entered the Popular restaurant at 152½ Fourth street during the temporary absence of the night waiter, who had taken a tray of dishes to the kitchen, and carried away the cash register containing about $15.

The criminals took the machine to the corner of Alder and Fourth streets special contracts. Hayes submits a convincing brief to show that the special fund is a delusion and a snare.

Notable among the alleged victims is Andrew J. Hicks, the rancher-editor of Heppner, who claims that Agent Kady represented to him that he was to be the only "extcutive agent" appointed in the neighborhood of Heppner; further, that the company had large sums of money which it was just dying to loan to Heppner ranchers, and that Hicks would have the handling of these vast sums. Hicks says he waited a few months, but as no vast sums were forthcoming he began to wish he had his premium money back.

Hayes says that an anti-insurance-rebate bill was introduced in the last legislature, but was defeated. Such a bill will probably be introduced again at the next session of the Oregon lawmakers.

Meanwhile Oregon will remain the garden spot for corporation frauds. So says Waiter G. Hayes.

Special Agent Mark T. Kady was not in his office this aftergoon, and the clerk stated that he was out of town and probably would not be back for a week. His side of the question as to the character of the Mutual Reserve company could not, therefore, be learned.

Late this afternoon M. B. Meacham, who represents the Mutual Reserve in the suit now pending in the justice court, stated that the suit was being fought merely on the question of the validity of an anti-rebate contract. The defense holds that the contract in question is lilegal because there is an anti-rebate law in the state of New York, the home state of the company.

The plaintiff contends that the contract is legal, as it was made in Oregon, where there is no anti-rebate law. The admission is not made that in New York such a contract would be lilegal, but that question is held to be irrele-vessel during the night while the mob planned vengeance.

Early this month Lee was arrested and entered a pies of guilty to criminally assaulting Mrs. Lilly R. Barnes. Under the Maryland law, he was sentenced to death. Fear that he would be lynched or hurned at the stake led the officers to transfer him to the Baltimore prison, as it is impossible to hold the trial of a negro charged with assaulting a white woman at Princess Anne, where the crime was committed. There has never yet been a legal hinging in that county for such a crime, as the prisoner has always been lynched before the sheriff could perform his work.

So bitter is the feeling in Somerset county against the negro fiends that if one is captured and the officers manage to clude the mob before a lynching can take place the offender is hurried to Baltimore for anfe-keeping. Within the last 10 years three negroes have been lynched in the county. The last lynching occurred about three years ago. A negro named White, who had been held in Baltimore for safe-keeping, was taken to Princess Anne on the day of his trial.

to Princess Anne on the day of his trial.

He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to death. The crowd was not satisfied to let the law take its course, and as White and the officers came out of the courtroom the negro was knocked down, riddled with bullets and afterward hung to a telegraph pole. To provent a repetition of such a scene plans were being made to execute Scott on a boat. Under the law he had to be returned to Somerset county for execution and to prevent him falling into the hands of a mob at Princess Anne it was suggested by the authorities, in view of the threats of lynching, that the negro be hanged on a steamboat, preferably one of the state cyster police steamers, anchored in Somerset county waters for the scaffold on the main deck of the steamer.

It had been suggested that the governor send the prisoner back to Princess Anne jail for execution under guard of a company of state troops, but it was feared such a procedure would result in a clash and possibly bloodshed between the soldiers and a mob.

The men of that county were so chagrined and disappointed over the prisoner being taken to Baitimore for protection that they repeatedly declared they would burn him at the stake the first time he set foot on Somerset county soil, whether under legal sentence or not.

Later it was 'decided that the most practical plan was to hurry the prisoner and a portable scaffold on board a boat and take them to Smith's island where the execution could be held. This plan was successfully carried out and Lee was the first negro to be legally hanged for a crime of the nature of the one he committed.
