

WANTED VICTIMS OF FEVER

Of Four Hundred Men Sent to Isthmus of Panama, Two Hundred Suffer From Malaria—Many Still in Hospital

(Journal Special Service.)
New York, July 31.—After being a veritable hospital ship for nearly a month, the cruiser Columbia arrived at Tompkinsville today and unloaded a detachment of marines, who were sent to Panama to preserve order at the election of July 4. Of the 175 men who came to the New York navy yard, 25 were so seriously ill from malarial fever that they were taken directly to the hospital. Of the 450 men from the New York, Boston, League Island, Washington and Newport yards, who have been sent to Panama for special duty, 195 were ill with the fever when the Columbia sailed from Colon on July 4. Many of these recovered when they came into northern waters, but 44 were in the hospital in Boston, besides 30 more in the Brooklyn naval hospital. Nearly every man is feeling the effects of his experience and the enormous quantities of quinine being taken.

DROWNS HIMSELF IN LAKE WHEN JILTED BY GIRL OF ELEVEN

(Journal Special Service.)
Palmer Lake, Colo., July 31.—Because Dora Collins, a schoolgirl 11 years old, would not become his bride, James E. Williams, a laborer 30 years old, but with the soft white hands of a person of high station and the refined manners of a southern gentleman, drowned himself here yesterday. He had been here several weeks, but no one knows whence he came or where his relatives live.

STORY OF FRAUD

lands. This was only a little more than a year ago and the statute of limitations had run as far as conspiracy and perjury were concerned. Numerous witnesses were called from Fossil and several of them have recently testified that Hendricks asked them to commit perjury, telling them to swear that they took up the land for themselves and furnished their own money for final proof. At least two of those witnesses committed perjury, then changed their stories and implicated Hendricks. These two were George W. Hawk and Clyde Brown and their testimony resulted in the indictment of Hendricks for subornation of perjury. Then the government began to do things in Wheeler county. No man had a right to fence in government land. The fences were removed and the pasture land monopoly of the Butte creek company was at an end.

Endorsing Now on Trial.
Now Hendricks is facing a jury. When the trial began Judge Bennett, attorney for the defendant, asked that the government be compelled to elect whether it would press the charge based on the perjury of Hawk or the one resting on the perjury of Clyde Brown. The motion was denied at that time, but this morning Special Assistant Attorney General Francis J. Heney surprised the defense by announcing that the government would go to the jury on the Hawk case. This case was chosen because the grand jurors who indicted Hendricks had a clear recollection of Hawk and little or no remembrance of Brown.

Numerous members of the grand jury referred to were called as witnesses. Those who testified this morning were: W. H. Wade, foreman; John W. Jory, Foster Adams, Fred G. Bufum, W. F. Dutton, F. J. Bolter and V. W. Robnett. All recalled that Hawk had first told one story, then admitted it was a lie and gave testimony that was entirely different.

Fred G. Bufum and V. W. Robnett remembered many details. Bufum testified that Hawk first declared that he had taken up his claim for his own benefit and had furnished his own money for final proof, but after Francis J. Heney had questioned him for half an hour Hawk had said, "I've been telling a lie, but I'll come out and tell the truth and take the consequences." Then Hawk admitted that he had acted for the Butte Creek company.

Robnett corroborated Bufum's testimony and added many details concerning what Hawk had sworn to. He recalled Hawk sweating profusely under the ordeal and mopping his face with a red handkerchief. He said that Hawk had testified that he was to receive $300 for his claim. As this was $150 more than the figure mentioned by Hawk in his testimony a few days ago, Prosecutor Heney questioned Robnett closely with a view to getting him to admit that he was mistaken as to the amount.

REPORTER DEVIN REPORTS ON WORK OF 'FRISCO RELIEF COMMITTEE

Sends to Mayor Lane Result of His Investigation Into the Accounts and Papers Relating to Committee's Distribution of Funds.

City Auditor Devin today submitted to Mayor Lane his report of the examination into the affairs of the general relief committee. The report in full follows:

Honorable Harry Lane, Mayor of the City of Portland:

I have the honor to report that in pursuance of your instructions I have examined the records and papers of the general relief committee for the sufferers of San Francisco and I find the total cash receipts to be $223,665.36, and which includes $25,000 contributed by the city of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and $10,000 contributed by the city of Boston, Massachusetts, and $5,819.37 contributed from points in Oregon outside of Portland; but in order to understand the total business of the committee the following statement will be helpful:

Cash receipts as above stated	$223,665.36
Expended by Oregonian relief bureau and received by
E. B. Piper	8,354.80
Provisions and supplies contributed	50,761.53
Lewis and Clark fair stock	7,366 1/2 shares (estimated value 25 per cent)	18,416.25
Total	$301,237.94

There was no record kept of money received and therefore it has been impossible to check the same beyond the amount of money received. The Lewis and Clark stock subscription is taken from the report of the committee as made and is subject to corrections.

Statement of Expenditures.

The following is a statement of the cash expenditures as classified by the committee:

Provisions	$58,999.34
Supplies	$4,982.56
Local aid	$1,122.59
Woman's relief	$124.63
J. N. Teal	2,208.08
Incidental	164.61
Oregonian	5,055.99
Santa Rosa	2,900.00
Individual relief	7,653.72
S. F. Co. Med. Society	1,000.00
S. F. Relief and Red Cross funds	50,000.00
Total expenditure	$220,104.53
Balance on hand	2,560.83
Total	$222,665.36

For expenditures for provisions and supplies, excepting the expenditures for Pittsburg and Boston, the committee has receipts from the persons and firms furnishing the same. Of the Boston fund $9,999.76 was expended for provisions and supplies. The Pittsburg fund was all expended and 53 cents more. The committee submitted lists showing the check number, the persons receiving the same, and the amounts, for each of these funds, but it was told by the committee that the Pittsburg and Boston authorities and the committee is therefore without detailed information to show for what this money was expended.

Local Aid Expenditures.

I find that the expenditures for "local aid" were made principally by the secretary of the relief committee, J. B. Lober, by a general authority of the committee. The secretary would write a letter to the chairman, C. F. Beebe, recommending relief; Mr. Beebe would write his approval on said letter and return it to Mr. Lober, who would then receive a check for the amount desired. Mr. Lober received for these amounts his own letter, which was signed with the secretary of the finance committee, E. C. Giltner, and here the record of the expenditures ends.

For the expenditure for "woman's relief" there are receipts from the committee and a list of claims approved by the chairman. This fund was necessarily expended by many people and in small amounts and the very nature of the work made it the most difficult to account for. The fund far more difficult than expenditures made for other purposes.

Remittances to Teal.

The remittances made to J. N. Teal were by authority of the committee recorded in the minutes and passed upon by the committee. The Pittsburg and Boston committee has a report from Mr. Teal, which I examined, giving a detailed account of this fund, with receipts attached for the several amounts.

The item of incidentals is covered by receipts bills.

brother of Clyde Brown and brother-in-law of both George W. Hawk and Charles S. Fox, was told by the committee that Hendricks gave him $50 cash for filing on a homestead claim and promised him $300 more when he proved up. "Bud" expressed doubts of the legality of the transaction and Hendricks, who was an attorney as well as a United States commissioner, assured him that it was all right and no trouble would come of it. "Bud" never proved up, and Clyde filed the homestead claim with receipts attached for the several amounts.

Grand Juror Gives Evidence.

A. Bettinger, a member of the federal grand jury that indicted Hendricks, was called to testify as to the perjury of Hawk and Clyde Brown. He remembered Hawk clearly, how the sweat had stood out on his forehead, how he had paced the floor after telling his first story and how he had at last turned and said, "I'll tell you grand jurors the truth." With that Hawk took back his former testimony and declared that in all matters concerning his claim he had been the tool of Hendricks and that Hendricks had paid all the expenses, with the understanding that the claim was to be decided to him as soon as final proof was made.

The witness could not recall Clyde Brown save by name. He was permitted to read the indictment, but this did not help him much, and the prosecution decided to bring out the facts of Clyde Brown's perjury by some other witness.

Chinese King Stolen.

Mrs. B. Rudolph of 323 Sixth street reports the theft of a seal ring bearing Chinese characters. Implying "good luck." The ring was stolen from the bathroom of her home and the police are looking for a suspect.

HERE TO STUDY OREGON SCENERY

To acquire materials to be used in a course of lectures on scientific and scenic topics, James Franklin Chamberlain and Arthur Chamberlain of southern California are making a tour of Oregon, and will include Spokane in their itinerary. The former is the head of the geological department of the state normal school at Los Angeles, and the latter is dean of Throop Polytechnic Institute at Pasadena.

The two men called yesterday at the office of the general passenger agent of the Harriman line and secured data and suggestions relating to the trip. They will make a study of topographical conditions in the Pacific northwest and will take special observations along the Columbia river. On the return trip they will visit some of the points of interest in Oregon, including Crater Lake.
