The influences which caused the youthful murderers of aged William Powell to start on the downward path and ultimately brought them to a prison cell will be the theme of sermons in several churches in the city Sunday. The ministers are severe in their denuncianinisters are severe in their denuncia-ion of those who sell such literature to roung boys and girls.

Will Preach on Subject.

"I propose to preach on subject Sunday evening," said Rev. E. S. Muckley, pastor of the First Christian church, "and warn the people to what dangers their children are exposed when such books are sold promiscuously in this city. It is impossible to sound such a warning too soon or too strongly, for there are few, if any, influences that are more baneful and destructive to youths than the reading of 'yellowback' novels. "I propose to preach on the subject Sunday evening," said Rev. E. S. Muck-ley, pastor of the First Christian church, and warn the people to what dangers the catherough investigation of the bipect. It is our purpose to enforce a law, and the sale of such publicants is certainly prohibited.

"In my estimation there are few intenses which are so harmful to young young and girls as the reading of such policies where investigation showed that one in trouble were drawn into their discussions of the elimination of such literature from the shelves of the book stores and news stands."

It was announced by the inventors this afternoon that their success had been so gratifying that they would go about the preliminary details for the establishment in Moscow of a factory, the structure and necessary machinery to cost in the neighborhood of $40.000.

The new combined harvester does the cutting, threshing and sacking and does away with the binder now in general use. The machine can be placed on the market for $700, while the present harvesters require from $6 to 40 horses to operate them, and the new Anderson-Quesnell is worked nicely with four horses. But two men are needed on the machine, instead of six or eight. Ope is the driver and the other the sacker.

The new machine is simple in every particular. There are no bulky pieces of machinery and all of the working are open. As the reaper mows down the standing grain it is carried on the table and sent through three fanners, and in the experiments this afternoon the wheat was surprisingly clean.

The Market Basket

There is always something that happens that causes a flattening of the pocketbook of the housewife. This season it was the weather. For many years such conditions as have ruled the past season were unknown. There was every prospect early in the year that 1906 would show the largest production of Oregon fruit in its history. The reverse has been the case in most instances.

Just at the critical time for the pass-

Just at the critical time for the pass

Just at the critical time for the passing of the blossom into the fruit there was too much rain. Then the rain ceased and hot weather continued for so long a period that the trees began to suffer and a large per cent of the fruit did not materialize.

In the fresh-fruit market there is a general scarcity of first-class fruit at this time. Peaches of best quality are very hard to find and prices are way up over the dollar mark in the retail establishments. There has been a scardity of fruits thus far during the season. Charries did not last long enough for the people to get acquainted with them, and apricots have been very much of a fixe. The strawberry crop in this state was very much below expectations and just at the time when the housewife was getting ready for preserving, with the expectation of lower prices, supplies began to disappear.

A great many housewives thought they could make up for the shortage in home fruits by buying supplies of canned products in the markets this season. At this writing there is every evidence that canned fruits will be the highest for many a year. Oregon was not alone with its many climatic changes. In California the season has been unusually dry when wet weather would have been a great benefit to the fruit. The crop of peaches there was so small that prices on the canned goods for this season's pack have already advanced about 50 cents for a dozen cans. That's at wholesale. The retail advance will be in proportion when the goods That's at wholesale. The retail advance will be in proportion when the goods are ready for market. Not alone will there be higher prices fer practically all lines of canned fruits, but some of the varieties will be next to out of market. California, for instance, is the great producer of apricots. This season the crop there was so small that canners have withdrawn all prices because they say they cannot get the supplies to fill the orders already accepted. Canned tomatoes will be even higher than a year ago, and every one will agree that they were high enough then. The short crop of a year ago was followed this season by almost a failure

Deputy City Attorney Fitzgerald is making a personal investigation of the crime. He declared this morning that if the facts in the case were found to be as represented by the boys, it was one of the most outregeous affairs he had ever been called upon to prosecute.

"Men who would be guilty of such a crime should be given a lengthy jall sentence on the rockpile." says Judge Fitzgerald, "and if the evidence warrants a conviction I shall insist that the court impose the maximum penalty."

A few slight contortions of the body, a few nervous twitchings of the arms and legs, a moment's trembling and then he was still, the head and body in a straight line. Six minutes after the trap was sprung Bond was pronounced dead by the prison physician.

Bond lived at the home of the man

Bond lived at the home of the man he murdered and was intimate with his wife. On the night of the murder Daly came home late and was sitting on a sofa taking off his shoes, preparing for bed, when his wife accused him of neglecting her. Daly remarked:

"Jennie. I guess you don't love me any more, but love Fred (Bond) most."

She replied:

Daly then said that if that was the case he might as well leave them together, and began putting on his shoes.

Bond stepped into the room and shot Daly in the top of the head and the latter fell over on his face, crying: "For God's sake, Fred, don't kill me."

Bond then went to the prostrate form and fired three more shots.

The couple remained with the dead man until morning. Bond then went to the police and reported the killing, saying Mrs. Daly had killed her husband in self-defense. The woman was arrested and at first admitted the killing, but at the preliminary examination broke down and confessed. Her evidence convicted Bond. Fred V. Holman, the well known attorney, has been appointed as acting general counsel of the Portland Railway, light & Power company, vice O. F. Paxton, deceased. Mr. Holman has for a number of years been general counsel of the Portland General Electric company. He is a close personal friend of President H. W. Goods of the Portland Railway, Light & Power company and is regarded as the probable permanent successor of Mr. Paxton. The selection of a permanent general counsel will probably not take place until October until which time it is presumed that Mr. Holman will remain in the position.

DANIELS ACQUITTED OF PICKING POCKET FOR BRUTAL ASSAULT

Hillsboro, Or., Aug. 10.—The case of the state of Oregon against Samuel Dan-iels of Gaston was heard here yester-day. Daniels was charged with stealing $15 from the pocket of James McClaran of Eugene, who is visiting relatives in Gaston. The accused was acquitted.

While there is a shortage in most lines of fruit, we will still have that old standby—the Oregon prune—to eat during the winter months. The crop of prunes this senson is about four times as great as a year ago, and while prices will not go as low as some had been led to suspect on account of the absence of other fruits, the price will be cheap enough to suit any one. Then we will have one of the heaviest apple crops in the history of the state. Last year there was a shortage all over the country and prices were exorbitant on account of the great demand. Apple cider men suffered most on account of this shortage, for with apples at $1.50 and $2 a box they could not begin to grind cider and even get their money back.

PIERCE IS HANDLING TWO MILLION PROJECT

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

La Grande, Or., Aug. 10.—The Grande Ronde Water company is a corporation which is handling a $2,000,000 irrigation proposition in Union county, with its beginnings in Wallowa county.

The head offices are at La Grande, Walter M. Pierce, principal owner of the Hot Lake sanatorium, is the president of the company. T. H. Crawford is the secretary and general counsel, and J. K. Romig is the vice-president and the chief engineer in charge of the field work.

Besides furnishing water for irrigation on a large scale, the company expects to furnish power for lighting wherever demanded.

The preliminary surveys for the big canal were made last year, and the engineers are now engaged in making the final surveys, and are doing the cross sectioning. The water will be taken from the big Minam river, which is the boundary line between Union and Wallows counties.

The canal will take the water down through a deep canyon. The main canal to the divide will be 34 miles long. The lateral distribution canals so far will be 60 miles in length.

JULIUS KRUTTSCHNITT EXPECTED IN PORTLAND

Julius Kruttschnitt, director of maintenance and operation of the Southern Pacific railroad, is expected in town this evening in his special car from the south. Mr. Kruttschnitt comes here for no special purpose, as far as known, it being merely one of his periodical trips of inspection over the Southern Pacific lines. He will probably remain in Portland two or three days. Mr. Kruttschnitt has been in San Francisco for the past several weeks. He has not visited Portland since early in the year.
