J. R. Wilson, principal of the Portland academy, is spending the summer traveling over the Pacific coast to study this educational field. More than ever he is impressed with the possibilities of this city as an educational center. He has written:

"The schools of Portland do not exist for Portland alone. Alaska and the basin of the Columbia are their field. From all this region students, boys and girls, are in our schools, and are here each year in increased numbers. Besides China, Japan and the Philippines, send boys to be educated here with the expectation that they return to their native land when they have completed their education. This gives to our schools, not simply a wide field from which to swell their numbers, but some of what the character of a mission as well. The work of our schools in this field takes on more of the character of a mission when we reflect that men and women educated in them shall go from us each year into this wide field, to take places of responsibility and influence in missions, in education, in business and in the civil service. A city may, as may a man, feel a certain pride and quickening of the pulse in the conscious possession of the deepening and widening influence for good in the world. Portland may justly feel this pride and quickening, standing thus with varied and well-equipped schools at the time and place of opportunity."

McIntosh Teacher Abroad.

Mrs. Carrie Casler Potter, the head of the conservatory of music of McMinnville college, is spending the summer vacation in the east with some of the great masters of music. The last three weeks of the vacation will be spent in Chicago. She has been very successful in creating an enthusiasm for music among the students of McMinnville college. Last year the college had a glee club, an orchestra and a brass band, all of which were developed under her leadership. In addition to her regular work in piano and voice.

The Younger Graduates.

Ruth Turner, 802 Kerby street, Upper Albina, striving for one of the musical scholarships offered by The Journal, has returned from her outing at the coast and is now putting in all her time in gathering subscription votes.

Miss Turner is 12 years of age. She was graduated from the D. F. Thompson school last June and she bears the distinction of being the youngest graduate which the D. F. Thompson school has ever had. She is bright, persevering and energetic and has the tact which should enable her to become popular. Having spent some time in a vacation at the beach, she dropped behind in her contest work but her first efforts produced 2,500 subscription votes. Her friends are giving her so much encouragement that she feels that she will be able to make a creditable finish in the contest.

Ruth attends the Third Baptist Sunday school, corner of Kust and Vancouver avenues, and her parents are members of that church. She has many friends in the vicinity of her home which is one of the prettiest cottages in Upper Albina.

Ruth's father, Mr. J. M. Turner, is a lineaman of the Pacific States Telephone company. Ruth expects to get subscriptions from her father's friends among the electricians and linemen. Mr. Turner was formerly an office man and bookkeeper, but prefers the pure and invigorating exercise of the lineaman's occupation.

Ruth Turner wants to win a scholarship to show her parents she can do something for herself. She thinks that she will enjoy her music lessons if she earns them by canvassing more than she would if they are paid for by her father.

Boomer a Leader.

J. C. Adams, 545 Millers avenue, Selwood addition of Portland, is one of the enthusiastic supporters of Miss Nellie May Shannon. He has been living with his three blocks of the Shannon family for two years. He has observed Nellie May to be an industrious, serious and worthy girl who deserves the scholarship which she seeks. Although the girl is an invalid, he says she has a disposition that is full of sunshine. The neighbors all are fond of her.

Mr. Shannon is a carpenter and must be in moderate circumstances. The family live in a modest home and all are working very hard to help the little cripple win out.

Adams Not Discouraged.

Mr. Adams has joined the Shannon family and their other friends in canvassing for votes for Nellie. Yesterday he made a pilgrimage to Mt. Scott, but he found that country generally supporting Miss Alleen Hackman. But nothing daunted, Mr. Adams will canvass other localities.

Mr. Adams is a retired attorney, having practiced law at Dallas, Oregon, for 11 years, and at Ritzville, Washington state, for five years. He is a man who makes things go when he espouses a cause, and Miss Shannon is fortunate to be represented by so able and energetic an advocate.

Boy Was Encouraged.

Guy Johnson, 308 Grant street, Portland, has not been making very good progress in the educational contest. There are several reasons.

First—He has not lived in Portland very long and has not a large personal acquaintance here.

Second—He is bashful and retiring and is not quick and ready in stating his claims upon public subscription for his needs in a business college.

Being his predicament, an older friend "with gift of gab" volunteered to help him yesterday. The man made several calls with Guy by his side and solicited subscriptions in the boy's behalf. Encouragement was given by every person he met. He has now a number of tutoring Guy dismissed his benefactor and successfully carried on the campaign for himself. He now has confidence to approach anybody and everybody, and he believes he will be a high marker in the contest.

He attends Sunday school at the White Temple and his sister belongs to that church. He is circulating among the members of the Holy Name Academy and they are responding generously.

Other contestants who have fallen behind might be encouraged if men and women who are interested in them would do as Guy's friend did. The occupation is pleasant and profitable as a matter of experience. The contestants receive a commission on every new subscriber secured to defray streetcar fare and other traveling expenses.

Prizes at Stake.

Tuition in best Oregon schools, $750 in gold and cash commissions.

PENNILESS SWEDE IS NOW WORTH MILLIONS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Hood River, Or., Aug. 10.—From being penniless and destitute three years ago to a fortune and an interest in a mine, that is now providing him and his partners—three in number—with an income of $5,000 a day, is the story of Sam Samson, a Swede, who arrived at his former home in Hood River today.

Three years ago Samson, who operated a shingle mill near here, of which he was owner, went bankrupt and was without the price of a meal. Today he is here for the purpose of paying his debts. In his sudden affluence he has not forgotten those who were friendly to him in his hour of need and is repaying them from the rich earnings of a mine of which he is now part owner at Nome, Alaska.

Samson went broke and worked his way to the gold fields of Alaska, where, after many hardships, he is amassing a fortune. A large nugget taken from his mine and attached to a stickpin adorns his shirtfront and he has given several smaller ones to intimate friends as evidence of his regard. Photographs of the mine exhibited by Samson show a complete mining outfit in operation, including a pumping plant. These are not carried by him for the purpose of selling stock, as the Cyrus Xobis mine, the name by which it is known, is a close corporation and has no stock for sale. Unlike most of the goldseekers at Nome who satisfied themselves with trying to gain a fortune by washing the sands of the sea-shore, Samson and his partners sunk a shaft and prospected for gold-bearing quartz. At a depth of 100 feet they struck a vein that has paid them as high as $5,000 a day and bids fair to make him a millionaire.

CAPITOLA MILL WILL BE ERECTED AGAIN

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Winlock, Wash., Aug. 10.—The Winlock Lumber company began work today rebuilding the large Capitola mill, which was burned Tuesday evening, August 7. The mill will be rebuilt as large as it was before at a cost of about $40,000. H. Stuchell of Everett is in town making arrangements to push the work as rapidly as possible. Mr. Stuchell is president of the company and one of the heaviest losers.

VETERANS GATHERING FOR ANNUAL REUNION

(Journal Special Service.)

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 10.—Although the date for the opening of the annual encampment of the G. A. R. is three days distant, many visitors began pouring into Minneapolis today. The influx of visitors, beginning early this morning, was somewhat unexpected, but the local committees were equal to the emergency and guides were soon stationed at the depots to meet the incoming trains and escort the visitors to quarters. Already the city is assuming gala attire and by tomorrow night the business section will be aglow with the national colors.
