

COUNCIL DOES NOT CONSIDER EAST THIRD STREET FRANCHISE MATTER

Delayed Because Auditor Has Not Received Proof of Publication of Ordinance.

UNDERGROUND WIRES ARE NOT DISCUSSED

Preston Ordinance Will Come Up at Next Session of Street Committee Before Which It Has Been Pending—Other Acts of the Council.

The most important piece of business which might have come before the council last night, the question of the franchise on East Third street to the O. R. & N., was laid over, as the auditor had not received proof of the publication of the franchise ordinance. In this way a strong opposition was headed off from slaying the measure with the butcher knife it had whetted for the occasion.

Annand, Rushlight and Vaughn were not present. The Fourth street franchise matter did not come up, and neither did the ordinance requiring underground wires.

Building Ordinance Passed.

Sharkey opposed the ordinance limiting the height of reinforced concrete buildings to eight stories, championed by Shepherd. He declared that in his office was a photograph of a reinforced concrete building in Cincinnati 22 stories high.

Shepherd made a cutting remark about "self interest governing the actions of some people," and declared that provision to secure beauty for the city should be taken before it looked like a cemetery filled with high grave-stones. Architects and concrete contractors were on hand to talk on the

AND THERE WAS A PARK JUST ACROSS THE STREET

And Yet Horace Tillard Jones Hung Up the Telephone Receiver Without Engaging Rooms There and Was Also Real Angry About It.

Despite the successful experience of millions of his fellowmen, Horace Tillard Jones, one of the trusted men of the Portland land office, has a suspicion that it does not always pay to advertise.

A short time ago Horace found that his increasing wants included a more commodious house. Being a busy man, he hadn't time to look around the city, so he inserted an advertisement in one of the local newspapers. Another trusty employe of the land office read the ad, and wrote him a letter, which in substance read as follows:

"If you desire nice, quiet apartments within three blocks of the federal building, at a price so reasonable you would not notice the outlay, ring up Main 543 and get further particulars."

The letter was not signed. Horace decided to ring up. He did not know that Main 543 was the number of the county jail, as given in the telephone book. The number had been changed, but when "Central" informed him of subject, but they weren't given a hearing. The vote on the passage of the ordinance was: Yes, Dunning, Kellaher, Masters, Sharkey, Willis—5; no, Beld, Gray, Menefee, Preston, Shepherd, Wallace—8; absent, Annand, Rushlight, Vaughn.

Buildings not of concrete are limited to four stories, and steel frame buildings to six stories by another ordinance also passed.

Dunning tried his best to get Mrs. Anna Campion's building at 85 North Ninth street exempt from the fire limit, the law which prohibits the erection of a wooden building with the fire limit.

The vote on the petition was: Yes, Belding, Dunning, Masters, Sharkey, Wallace—5; no, Gray, Kellaher, Menefee, Preston, Shepherd, Willis—5; absent, Annand, Rushlight, Vaughn.

Discussion Is Averted.
Kellaher asked for consideration of the East Third street franchise just as Sharkey moved to adjourn. Kellaher was primed with much heavy ammunition with which to blow holes in the franchise to the Harriman lines, but Sharkey succeeded in proving that the auditor had received no proof of the publication of the advertisement of the ordinance in the official paper. The council adjourned forthwith.

The Preston ordinance providing for underground wires will come up at the next session of the street committee, in whose hands it has been, pending the expiration of 90 days of grace granted the Portland Railway, Light & Power company. Preston will insist that the wires on prominent east side streets go underground, as well as those in the business district on the west side.

This fact he asked to be put right, and soon, blissfully innocent, he was in communication with Jailer George Mitchell. Horace opened the conversation.

"I got your letter about those apartments within three blocks of the federal building. I'd like to know more about them."

"The jailer was wise in a moment. 'All right,' he said. 'I've got a wonderful place here. None of my guests leave me until I tell them they can go.'"

"They must like it."
"Only yesterday one of my guests remarked that something seemed to hold him here."

"Attractive surroundings, I suppose."
"There's a fine park just across the street."

"Is the place quiet, as you represented in your letter?"
"Sure; we've no children here. If a guest becomes noisy we put him in the bugaboo cupboard."

Portland Day Nursery.

Could there be a more vital help to a poor, hard-working mother than to relieve her of the care of her young children during the day and thus enable her to go to her work feeling that the little ones will be well cared for and safe from harm? This is the work that the Flower Mission is doing at the Day Nursery on Fifth and Burnside. Here children are cared for from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. When they arrive in the morning their outer garments are removed and they are bathed and dressed in little blue and white pinafores, they are then allowed to play in a large, pleasant room furnished with little chairs and the long tables, such as are used in kindergartens. On the wall are Mother Goose pictures and there are many toys for the children's enjoyment. At 10 o'clock every morning they are given a generous bowl of bread and milk but their principal meal comes at noon when they are given plenty of good, wholesome food, probably much better than they ever get at home. After dinner the blue pinafores are changed for pink and white ones and the children taken for a ride or otherwise amused by the ladies of the Flower Mission. Children under the age of 4 years take a nap in the afternoon. Before a child is allowed in kindergarten the parents are required to fill out a card stating name, age and home conditions. All precautions are taken against disease, and children must be vaccinated. There are visiting physicians who look after the health of the little ones. The Flower Mission tries to instill ideas of neatness and through the children, to exert influence over the mothers. It will be remembered that the Fruit and Flower Mission won second place in a popular voting contest not long ago and the $500 received was the fund used to start the Day Nursery, which was opened two days after Easter. They feel that they have not received the help that they should have if people had not given so generously to the San Francisco relief fund. Well, the relief fund is already large enough to cause every citizen of San Francisco to try and get on the committee, so remember that there is a good place to put your money here in Portland.

To Study Apes.

Miss Ida Simonton of New York is to go to Africa to study apes, and the paper which prints the story of her intentions tells at great length just who Miss Simonton is—under the name of Miss Simonton, that is, the highest social position the bigger fool. One really wonders why, if Miss Simonton is bent on devoting her life to the study of apes, she doesn't study her society friends. Here is a wide field of exceedingly interesting "ape" study.

New Hosiery.

Lacy socks are the dressiest. They're of silk, with lace bands and motifs. They are worn in either black or white. Lovely effects are obtained with embroidery. A fine silk stocking with embroidered gloves is very correct. You may have your monogram embroidered on the instep. Changeable silk hose are beautiful, but costly. A life and silk imitation of these is less expensive and quite pretty. Gray stockings in all shades are much worn. With a gray skirt, gray hose are thought all right, even with black ties.

Topic Tips.

Rather gaudy belts are worn. The brave ones are encircling their waists with plaid ribbons. It is said that very wide belts, both round and pointed, are coming back. Hats with amazing high crowns are getting more frequent. It may be that by winter the flat or low-crowned hat will be decidedly passé. A white linen dress with the tailored waist made absolutely tight-fitting was a novelty seen the other day. The prettiest frocks in any group are those of black gauze flowered in delicate colors. Brave ladies are wearing semi-low-necked gowns by daylight these hot days. A very pretty outing hat is a stiff cream felt with brown and buff plaid band and brown wings. Most of the little summer silk frocks are made with chemisettes of white muslin or lace.

CRANE FLAT DREDGE LEFT WITHOUT WATER

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Granite, Or., Aug. 15.—There is trouble brewing in this section over the Lucas water right, which takes water from Bawdy lake and Crane creek on the Granite creek slope. This water right was purchased some time ago by Wheeler & Co. from the First National bank of Sumpter. Last week A. P. Jones of the Magnolia mine made arrangements to secure water for his mill through the Lucas ditch, and the taking of this water from Crane creek cut off the water supply of the Crane Flat dredge, and compelled the boat to stop work. The owners of both the Lucas water right and that used by the dredge say they have the first claim on the water, and it may take a decision of the courts to settle the question of which has the first claim.
