TOWN'S AMUSEMENTS

William Martloff, a laborer, residing in Marston street, yesterday commenced a suit in the circuit court for a permanent injunction restraining the Williams Stone company from blasting stone in the quarry near his home. The Williams Stone company has for some time been blasting stone near the residence of Martloff, who alleges that his wife is of a nervous disposition and that the blasting of the rock throws stones all around the house, which is a source of constant annoyance to her. Judge Fraser signed an order directing the stone company to appear in court on August 29 to show cause why a permanent injunction should not be granted. Ed and A. R. Mendenhall appear as attorneys for Martloff.

Judge Webster admitted the will of Conrad Ordemann to probate in the county court yesterday afternoon. All the personal property of the deceased, valued at $150, is left to the widow, Caroline Ordemann. If she does not re-marry she is to have all the real estate, valued at $5,000, for life. At her death it is to be divided equally between their children, Helen, Thomas C., Edward L. and Birida Ordemann. If Mrs. Ordemann remarries she is to receive an undivided third of the property, and the children the undivided two-thirds. Mrs. Ordemann is named as executrix.

Starting from the show grounds, Twenty-fifth and Overton streets at 9:30 tomorrow morning, the Forepaugh-Bella circus parade will pass along the city street to Twenty-second street, through Twenty-second to Flinders street to Twentieth street, along Washington to Washington street, down Washington to Third street, thence to Everett street, out Everett to Twenty-second street to Overton to the circus lot. The only parade during the visit of the circus in Portland will be on Monday morning.

The gloomy appearance of the cells in the county jail has been relieved by a coat of white paint that has been applied by the prisoners under the direction of Jailer Mitchell. The cells and cages had been painted black, and the jailer's idea of painting them white has resulted in giving them a much more cheerful appearance. Besides affording prisoners more light, all the cells have been painted white except the dungeons.

Residents in the vicinity of Tenth and Burnside streets are signing a remonstrance against a saloon at that corner, for which a building is now being re-modeled. Attorney Banks, who is one of the prime movers in the work, declares that everything will be done to keep the resort from this corner, which is in the center of a residence district of pretty homes.

Mabel C. Widal has begun suit in the circuit court for a divorce from Albert T. Widal, charging infidelity. Jessie Borlan is named as co-defendant. Mrs. Widal asks for the custody of their two children, aged 7 and 9 years, and for $20 a month alimony. They were married at Beaverton, in March, 1927. E and A. R. Mendenhall appear as attorneys for Mrs. Widal.

Today, between 10 and 1 o'clock, our studio will be open to accommodate our busy brothers and sisters unable to visit us during the week. It is acknowledged that our photography is of an excellence, our pictures superbly perfect. Everybody agrees to this—and so do we. E. W. Moore, Elks' building, Seventh and Stark.

Water through hose for sprinkling yards or sidewalks, or washing porches or windows, must be paid for in advance and used only between the hours of 5 and 8 a. m. and 5 and 8 p. m. It must not be used for sprinkling streets. If used contrary to these rules, or wastefully, it will be shut off.

BIG CIRCUS IS TO ARRIVE THIS MORNING

Five special trains bearing the circus paraphernalia of the Adams Forepaugh-Sells Brothers combined shows will arrive this morning. As Sunday is a day of rest for the workmen, only necessary work will be performed today. Tomorrow morning at sunrise the great arctic tents will be erected and preparations made for the street parade, which will be held at 9:30 a. m. Two performances will be given Monday and two on Tuesday. The billboard promises have aroused considerable anticipation and much is expected. Year after year this great show has grown in size and scope. This year it is larger than ever before. In novelty, in sensational features, in the number of its European and American artists, in the beauty and magnificence of its paraphernalia, in the completeness of its zoological display, in the thrilling realism of its hippodrome contests and the character of its professional display, it is said to be without a rival.

ALBERT CASWELL DIES AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

Albert Caswell died yesterday afternoon at his home, 361 Weidner street of enlargement of the liver, after an illness of but one week. He is survived by his wife and three children, E. E. Caswell and Mrs. A. C. Valde, De Vries street, Walla Walla, Washington, and A. T. Caswell of Portland.

Mr. Caswell was born June 22, 1849, at Smith's Falls, Ontario, Canada, where he resided until 1870, when he came to Oregon as agent of the Canadian Pacific railroad. Since coming to Portland he held many positions in connection with the city government, the last being that of special private policeman under Mayor George H. Williams.

DECLARES TOLL ROADS SHOULD BE CONDEMNED BY THE STATE

E. F. Cannon, Who Recently Made Long Auto Trip, Says Highways Are Impassable Between Portland and Tillamook and Need State Inspection.

E. F. Cannon and O. W. Olsen in Their Car. Photographed at Forest Grove.

In the opinion of E. F. Cannon of the Automobile club, the state should condemn the toll roads between Portland and Tillamook and should assist the county in making passable highways of them. The proposition may be brought before the club at its next meeting.

Mr. Cannon, in company with O. W. Olsen, returned yesterday afternoon from a nine days' trip over the roads between here and Tillamook. The start was made a week ago last Thursday in Cannon's runabout. Going, the party traveled by way of Newberg, McMinnville, Dallas, to Fall City, back to Dallas again, on to Sheridan and over the Sheridan road to Tillamook, arriving at Tillamook Sunday night last. They left Tillamook Monday, traveling by the Wilson river road to Forest Grove and by that way to Portland, arriving here yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, the whole distance covered being about 400 miles.

Mr. Cannon said last night that the trip was made simply with the purpose of getting a line on the roads traveled. After getting the line, he decided that the roads were about the poorest in the state, especially the two toll roads, which lead into Tillamook county, the Wilson river road, said Cannon, is much the poorer of the two, being full of muck holes and lined with rickety bridges. For an ordinarily heavy auto it is practically impassable. The Sheridan road is in much better condition, but the grades are steeper and heavier. The Wilson river road could be made a first-class road, while the Sheridan grade could be reduced materially by proper engineering.

"I am the only man who ever drove an automobile over the Wilson river road," said Mr. Cannon last night, "and I am not in a hurry to do it again. Those roads must be improved. I am in favor of the state condemning them and helping the counties to put them in good condition. The roads have never been laid out. No engineering has ever been done on them. They have just been made to follow Indian trails."

Mr. Cannon was much pleased with the country and believes that it has a great future before it.

LARGEST SINGLE DEAL SINCE THE EARTHQUAKE

Believed to Precede Immediate Development of Harriman Plan to Have Two Trunk Lines Between Portland and San Francisco.

Payment was made yesterday by the Southern Pacific to the Spreckels interests for the Coos Bay, Rossburg & Eastern railway, recently purchased by the Harriman company. The amount of money transferred was something over $1,900,000. Whatever consideration passed aside from this sum is not known.

The transaction is said to have been the largest single deal affecting San Francisco capitalists since the earthquake and fire. It is believed to precede immediate development of the Harriman plan to have two trunk lines between Portland and San Francisco, the one linking Drayton and running south via Coos Bay and Eureka. Contracts for the first 90 miles of the line from Drayton westward have been let to the C. E. Loss company of Portland and San Francisco, and men, horses and materials are being assembled for the beginning of grading September 1. The line will connect at Marshfield with the Coos Bay road purchased from the Spreckels, and about 25 miles of this road southward will be used. The purchase includes the Beaver Hill coal mines, south of Marshfield, and other coal lands in the vicinity; also bunkers at Marshfield and two steamships.

Southern Pacific engineers are making surveys for continuing the road south to Eureka. The section for which contracts have already been let, from Drayton westward, amount to about $2,500,000. This will, it is said, be the most expensive part of the road. It will include three tunnels, one of them 3,000 feet long, and much rock work on the route through the Coast range and down the Unappqua river to the Ten Mile lakes, where the road turns toward North Bend and Marshfield.

fraction of being elected mayor at a cost of about $65,000.

But in his mayoralty campaign he developed powers of oratory and slashing, original, straightforward attack, that surprised everybody. And ever since he has shown an almost incredible love for public speaking, and a growing mastery of the art of extemporaneous oration of the poor but honest citizen who has a vote.

HEARST'S PERSONALITY.

Mr. Hearst is a very tall man. His shoulders are wide and his limbs long and powerful. His face is as unwrinkled and his skin as fine as that of a young girl. The nose is very long and very straight.

The mouth is small, a curious mouth, which laughs nervously and then suddenly contracts, as if its owner were reluctant to reveal himself. The forehead is broad and high. The eyes are of a singular shade of blue, eyes that smile and grow cold, almost shy, by turns. The jaws are heavy and ominous.

His hands are big, strong, white and flexible, the hands of a creator, constructor, artist. He has a nervous way of tapping a steady tattoo with his fingers while he talks. His feet sometimes jump in a little fidgeting movement, wholly unconscious.

Whatever the innate nature of this astonishing man may be there is no trace in his personality of the indecent ruffianism that has been attributed to him by his enemies. In speech and person and manner he is all softness and refinement; so much so that, but for his stalwart frame and fighting jaws, he would suggest effeminacy. He has the subtle, hypnotic smile of a woman.

Success of Principles.

"In my judgment," said Mr. Hearst, "the most important thing to be done in this country is not so much to make new laws as to make it possible to enforce all laws against the poor and rich alike. Money is simply power in cold storage. When it is properly used it is a blessing; but when it is employed to prevent the people from expressing their will at the polls, when it is used to protect the great criminal from punishment which the little criminal must suffer, when it is used to take the government out of the hands of the majority and pervert it to the uses of a class, then money becomes a public menace."

A Socialist? Of course I'm not a socialist. That's a mere epithet, and so long as my antagonists merely call names they can't hurt me. I don't want the form of our government changed. The people don't want it changed. That's the very point—we are fighting to prevent our institutions from being gradually destroyed by the corrupt use of wealth.

I'm a Jefferson Democrat, a Jackson Democrat, a Lincoln Republican, anything you like to call me that represents unchangeable opposition to the interference of the money power, in any disguise, in our public affairs.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Rev. W. L. Riley, D. D., Cuba, New York, writes: "After fifteen years of scrutinizing papers from Seattle, I have found you the only one who has been induced to try Hearst's new law. The first application giving my name and the second asking for the new law, was forwarded to Mr. Hearst, the U.S. Woodard, Clark & Co."
