Hurletta Holmes-Flanders, of the Holmes-Flanders Preparatory school, Portland, one of the schools of the Journal's educational contest, has a favorite quotation which should become a slogan to young people who have time to invest. It is as follows: "Knowledge cannot be stolen from us. It cannot be bought or sold. This is the season of the year when the question, 'What school shall I attend?' is uppermost with all young people who have decided to strive for the imperishable wealth of knowledge. The list of schools mentioned in The Journal's contest may aid all seeking such information to settle that important question. World Demands Efficiency. Too many young people leave the schools and apply for positions before they are properly prepared to be useful. The day of the practical apprentice to the trade and profession is passing. The world demands efficiency and some degree of proficiency right at the start. The captain of industry has no time to explain rudiments to the hopeful son of a poor parent. The hopeful must stand the test alongside of the boy who comes to the firm without a 'pull,' but with a determination to make himself so valuable that he will be needed. The strenuousness of modern business life requires "the know-how" in every situation. The graduate of the classical school feels this necessity before going out into the world of practical affairs to complete his preparation in a professional, mechanical or industrial school. Patience, Untiring and Invincible. Mrs. Flanders hits off a trait of the successful student which applies equally as well to the successful apprentice. Her observation may be extended, in fact, to apply to the men and women of affairs whose achievements cause them to rise above the many. "Experience has taught me," says Mrs. Flanders, "not to place too much reliance upon a brilliant intellect, the accompaniment of which is too often more impulse rather than steadfast purpose. It is the courage that dares attempt the patience that is untiring, the invincible 'I will' that makes the ideal pupil. In other words, he must possess that rarest of all qualities—'backbone.'" Contests Have "Backbone." The winners of The Journal's scholarship and cash prizes will demonstrate in their victory that they have "backbone." They will prove by their days and weeks of constant canvassing that they possess "the courage that is un-

Governor Gooding Trying for Re-election Upon Gallery Plays He Was Able to Make in Steunenberg Assassination Case.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Wetser, Idaho, Aug. 28.—Politics in Idaho is becoming of the tropical order. Probably not another state in the union has for its issues anything resembling the issues before the people of Idaho at this time.

The Republican party has gone before the people on the issue of the Steunenberg assassination, claiming for their nominee for governor the present incumbent, Frank Gooding, that through his connection with the case he is entitled to a re-election at the hands of the people. They appear to work upon the presumption that no other man in the state would or could do what he has done. What has he done more than any other executive, be he Republican or Democrat, would have done? Did any man do less than to see that the law and order is enforced he would be faithless to his sworn duty as the governor of a great state.

Gooding Too Official.

There are many people in the state of Idaho—and they are not confined to the Democratic party alone—who believe that Governor Gooding has been too officious in the matter; that much that he has done has been done for political effect and that it will prove to be a boomerang. Details of the labor vote of the state. While every true citizen of the state is in favor of the enforcement of law and order, they do not believe that men who are charged with the committing of a crime should be used by some man to further his political ends.

The Democrats have made an issue of Mormonism and interference in politics by the Mormon church. They charge that two years ago Governor Gooding was elected by a combine made by him with the leaders of the Mormon church at Salt Lake City.

Mormon Appearances.

To lend color to the charge, it is only necessary to refer to the fact that every appointee of the state administration is either a Mormon or secured his appointment through Mormon influence. Old time Republicans who had fought the party's battles for years, were told to go away back and sit down, where they were compelled to witness the appointment of men whose sole claim to office was that they were members of the Mormon church or had the indorsement of President Smith of the Mormon church. That the Mormon church interferes in the politics of Idaho, no person who is not blinded to the question—blind as those who will not see—will question.

Nominated by Church.

Governor Gooding received the nomination two years ago from the Mormon church and he received it again this year in the face of the protesting the invincible 'I will' that makes the ideal pupil.

The young people who graduate from the Journal's contest into the schools of Oregon will become the prize of institutions which they elect to attend. And, proving themselves invincible and untiring, as contestants and students, they are likely to exhibit those same valuable qualities in the business affairs of later years.

Must Meet Expectations.

The boys and girls racing for scholarships are being tried out before the public. Every one is gathering a circle, constantly growing larger, of admirers and supporters. The larger the acquaintance, the greater the responsibility. Every contestant owes it to himself and to his friends to meet the expectations of his friends in this contest and in future undertakings.

Tuition in Best Oregon Schools, $150 in gold and cash commissions.

Following is the list of scholarships, with approximate cash value of each, offered as prizes in the contest. Information concerning them will be published from time to time, or furnished on application to the contest department:

Let the greatest of diets have dyspepsia and the weaker would soon fail. Physical strength is derived from food. If a man has insufficient food he loses strength. If he has no food he dies. Food is converted into nutrition through the stomach and its associate organs of digestion and nutrition do not perform their duty. Thus the stomach is really the vital organ of the body. If the stomach is weak the body will be weak also, because it is upon the stomach the body depends for strength. And as the body, considered as a whole, is made up of its several members and organs, so the weakness of the body as a consequence of "weak" stomach will be distributed among the organs which compose the body. If the body is weak because it is ill-nourished that physical weakness will be found in all the organs—the muscles, great arteries, the liver will be torpid and inactive giving rise to biliousness, loss of appetite, weak nerves, feeble or irregular action of heart, palpitation, dizziness, headache, backache and kindred disturbances and weaknesses.

Mr. Louis Para, of Quebec, writes: "For years after my health began to fail, my head grew dizzy, eyes pained me, and my stomach was sore all the time, while everything I would eat would seem to lie heavy like lead on my stomach. I consulted a doctor and he prescribed for me, and although I took his remedies regularly, I felt no better. My wife advised me to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery—and stop taking the doctor's medicine. She advised me to buy it, and we soon found that I began to improve, so I kept up the treatment. I took on flesh, my stomach became normal, my nerves worked perfectly and I soon began to look like a different person. I can never cease to be grateful for what your medicine has done for me and I certainly give it highest praise."

Don't be hoodwinked by a penny-grabbing dealer taking inferior substitutes for Dr. Pierce's medicine, recommended to be "just as good."

To gain knowledge of your own body—in sickness and health—send for the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser. A book of 1023 pages. Send 21 one-cent stamps for paper-covered, or 31 stamps for cloth-bound copy. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, 603 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.
