CAPITAL BEAU BRUMMEL LOSES JOB THROUGH OFFICIAL JEALOUSY

Cotillion Leader Too Slow in Leading President's Daughter in Dances.

DIRECT ORDER IGNORED BY MAJOR M'CAWLEY

Romance of Secretary Frelinghuysen's Daughter Completed When Wedding Was Performed With Groom Lying in Bed.

Having in mind his friendship both with that lady and with the person from whom the peremptory order came, the major, it is said, seized upon it as a challenge and promptly selected Mrs. Davis as his partner and stepped through the mass of the dance quite blissfully unconscious of the glowering looks that frowned upon his disobedience.

From that day forth Major McCawley walked in the shadow of the official displeasure and became more and more persona non grata with the administration, until the semi-official announcement that Captain Frank McCoy, of the Third cavalry, close friend of General Leonard Wood, had been appointed in his place as the president's social aide.

Social Career Summed. Mrs. Davis, while a little older than her husband, is still a great beauty, one of the handsomest women in Washington. Moreover, she has a fortune, and is still socially ambitious, and, of course, there are other stories to the effect that she prefers to have an independent position for herself and household this winter rather than be known as the wife of Major McCawley, of the White House staff. In any event, say the gossips, there can be no doubt that the social goings and comings of the McCawleys this winter are quite likely to be upon a scale of significance that can only be designed to outlive the functions of the White House, from whose service the gallant major is said to have been so summarily dismissed.

LABORERS NEEDED IN HAWAII

London's Starving Millions Could Live Well There, Says Sugar Plantation Owner.

PECULIAR SITUATION IN PACIFIC TERRITORY

White Men Could Do Plantation Work, but There Are None to Do It—Planters Now Making Effort to Secure Portuguese Laborers.

If a million starving workmen from the London east side and a half million of the tenement poor of New York's south side could be transplanted on the Hawaiian plantations, it would be a magnificent thing for the islands as well as something of a boon to the transplanted. So thinks L. Matthews, a Hawaiian sugar planter who passed through Portland today on a trip around the world.

"In Hawaii," said Mr. Matthews, "there are, but two classes in society, the wealthy sugar baron and the servant class. We have no American middle class in Hawaii, though we would like to have one. The government is taking steps to compel the planters to hold out stronger inducements to white laborers to work on the plantations. The government is now compelling planters to give their workmen land and houses."

The great shortcoming of the islands, continued Mr. Matthews, "has been the scarcity of help. It has so far been impossible to get labor. The best laborers for the sugar plantations are undoubtedly Chinese. Before annexation they were used extensively, but now, of course, that is done away with. There were attempts to get congress to pass laws allowing Chinese immigration to Hawaii, but they all failed."

Japanese Like Soft Soap. "Next to the Chinese, the Japs are the best plantation workers. Many Japs have been imported, but they soon learn that they can get along even better in the states, and they emigrate to America. Then Japs like a soft soap and are inclined to city life rather than country life. Filipinos were tried and found to be a failure. Porto Ricans were pressed into service, but were worse failures. It was found that a Porto Rican prefers murder and robbery to work any time. Efforts are now being made to get Portuguese laborers. A delegation has recently gone to the Azores for the purpose and prospects are favorable for securing several shiploads at least. The conditions of labor upon the plantations are becoming better all the time and there is no reason why white men should not ultimately do all the work."

Mr. Matthews says that another drawback of Hawaii has been that of being a one-product country. In the olden days the only industry was the growing of sandalwood; now it is the growing of sugar. But the people are making efforts looking toward diversification.

Success and the culture of pineapples is a growing industry. The conditions are better now for coffee, but the trouble is that the planters cannot compete with the article raised by the cheap labor of Guatemala and other South American countries. If congress would only place a duty on coffee it would boom the industry in the Hawaiian islands, thinks Matthews. The rubber industry is also beginning favorably, and he believes that the "territory of the Pacific" has a great future before it.

AMERICAN GIRL ELOPES TO MARRY A JAPANESE

Parents Opposed Match, So the Maiden Stole Away With Dark-Skinned Lover.

(Journal Special Service.) Rockford, Ill., Sept. 1.—An unusual wedding ceremony was performed here this afternoon when Hantaro Canada, a native of Japan, was united in marriage to Miss Luella Emon of Madison, Wisconsin.

Miss Emon is an American girl, who became infatuated with her Oriental lover while he was a student at the University of Wisconsin. The parents of the girl opposed her marriage to the Jap, so they stole away to Rockford and were married by Rev. Frank D. Ebert, pastor of the Court-Street Methodist Episcopal church.

The groom is a native of Kobe, and is a merchant at Milwaukee. He came to America to attend the Wisconsin university, but intends to return to his native land with his fair bride in the near future. Miss Emon appeared to be devoted to her dark-skinned sweetheart, and proud that he had won her hand in marriage.

Scott, Fourteenth cavalry, replaces Brigadier General Albert L. Miles, who has been the superintendent of the academy for several years past.

The new superintendent is a native of Kentucky, but was appointed to the military academy from New Jersey. RAISED FIRST OSTRICHES IN UNITED STATES

R. H. Stracey, Son of England's Nobility, Pioneer in Industry, is Dead.

(Journal Special Service.) Santa Monica, Cal., Sept. 1.—Randolph Harbor Stracey, who founded the first ostrich farm in the United States and who died in Glendale a few days ago, was, it develops, the son of Sir Henry Stracey, Bart., of Rockhills Park, Norwich, England. His three sisters are the Countess of Kimberley, Lady Sondes and Lady Burfield of Norfolk.

Twenty-two years ago he came to California because of some difficulty and settling in San Fernando valley, acquired much valuable land. His estate is valued at $300,000. Mrs. John Bidwell knew Stracey in England and she and her children cared for him during his sickness. He lived in a cozy cottage here.

Stracey first imported 20 ostriches and had them shipped to Santa Monica, afterward selling them to Edwin Cawston of the South Pasadena ostrich farm. Though Stracey remembered the Bidwells, giving $25,000 to the widow and $1,000 each to the nine children, there were no witnesses to the will and the estate will probably revert to his English relations.

J. O. TURNER, Chairman. TOM EASON, Commissioner. CLEMENT A. SWANK, Commissioner.
GOODLOE YANCY, Secretary. J. C. MOORE, State Warden.
Atlanta, August 10, 1906.

Dear Sirs—"I have suffered more than twenty years from indigestion. About eighteen months ago I had grown so much worse that I could not digest a crust of corn bread and could not retain anything on my stomach. My heart would beat so fast I could not sleep, at times I would almost draw double with pain in the pit of my stomach. I lost twenty-five pounds; in fact, I made up my mind that I could not live but a short time, when a friend of mine recommended Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. I consented to try it to please him and I was better in one day. I now weigh more than I ever did in my life and am in better health than for many years. Kodol did it. I keep a bottle constantly, and write this hoping that humanity will be benefited."
Yours very truly,
JAKE C. MOORE.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is the only digestant or combination of digestants that will digest all classes of food. In addition to this fact, it contains, in assimilative form, the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. All other digestants and dyspepsia remedies digest certain classes of food only, and are lacking in reconstructive properties.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is prepared at the laboratory of E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, and is sold by leading druggists everywhere.
