WEATHER REPORT.

Except a moderately heavy shower which fell last night in the sound country, fair and cool weather prevails everywhere on the Pacific slope in connection with a large high pressure area that was central this morning over western Washington. Light frosts occurred this morning in extreme eastern Oregon and in the Boise basin. The temperature was also dangerously near the frost mark at Roseburg, Oregon, and Spokane, Washington. A shallow trough of low pressure extends from Arizona east to New Mexico and thence northeast to Minnesota, but as yet it has caused no rain of consequence. The barometer in the Atlantic states is slightly below normal, and the temperatures are generally from 5 to 10 degrees above normal.

The indications are for fair weather in this district tonight and Tuesday, with light frosts tonight east of the Cascade mountains, and with rising temperatures Tuesday, except along the immediate coast and in southern Idaho, where they will remain nearly stationary.
