Portland Day Broke Records in Attendance at the Oregon State Fair at Salem.

MARION COUNTY EXHIBIT CAPTURES FIRST PRIZE

This Is Fraternal Day and Different Orders Will Participate in Program -Big Parade of Livestock to Fol-

(Special Dispatch to The Journal) Salem, Sept. 14.—It was Portland day at the fair yesterday and the people from the metropolis came to Salem in large numbers. Probably 5,000 people Portland and vicinity were in attendance. Three special trains brought the visitors to the fair grounds and the little thriving town of St. Johns sent several carloads of its most enterprising citizens. Salem, too, sent a large contingent to the fair and the attendance was the largest yet recorded-10.

This morning at 9:30 a Collie dog test was pulled off and at 10:30 the premium loss will reach $400,000 test of livestock took place and closed with a parade of all the animals.

The awards on the county exhibits were made yesterday and resulted thus: Marion county, first; Lane, second; Jack son, third; Linn, fourth; Douglas, fifth; Benton, sixth; Columbia, seventh. Mrs. F. A. Wolf of Polk county received first award for the best display in farm

INTERURBAN FROM TACOMA TO OLYMPIA

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) Olympia, Wash., Sept. 14.—Surveyors in the employ of the Northern Pacific railway are encamped in the city and are making a resurvey of the old Union Pacific grade which recently passed into the hands of the Northern Pacific. It is now stated on good authority that an interburban railway will be built over this grade from this city to Tacoma and that the main line of the Northern will be built on the survey made about three years ago which finds its way through the eastern portion of the city, striking East Fourth on Ayer's

This is said to be the best grade to be found by the surveyors after nearly one year of search over the country south of this city. The road when constructed will be a double track.

New Profession for the Blind.

A new and large field has opened for he blind. It has been discovered that blind excel all other persons as masseurs, and as this profession is be coming of more importance every day, not only in connection with hospital work but in the numerous beauty parlors, it will give good paying work to many who are afflicted with loss of eyesight. A Russian woman, Mme. Z. I. Vengueroff, was the one to discover the blind person's abilities in this direc tion. She is herself a professional masseuse. Mme. Vengueroff has established a school of massage, especially for the blind, in St. Petersburg, and says that it is impossible to fill the numerous calls for the blind masseuse. Physicians say that they succeed better than persons possessing all their facul-ties. Not only do they make the best masseurs but they take about half the time to learn. They seem to have a special magnetism in their hands and their touch is so delicate yet firm that they are always preferred by patients. It is to be hoped that the blind school: all over the country will add a depart-ment to teach the art of massage.

What Is Independence?

There has been so much talk of lats on independence for women that one feels constrained to ask what is independence and do we ever really acquire this much vaunted condition? of the world is the law of supply and demand, and we are all either consciously or unconsciously liv-ing in accordance with this universal plan. Nothing is free; everything must be paid for in some way, and whether the way lies within the confines of home or in the world of business must be settled by the individual woman. It is sometimes forgotten by women there are other things in the world more value than money money is greater than what it will purchase. and there are many things over which it has no power.

Independence has been defined in dir-ferent ways by different men. But complete independence for the individual is impossible of realisation—we are too alike and too different—and the law for the good of all is bound to hurt some. This is the vulnerable point in social-ism; they defeat their own object.

It is hard to escape the personal equa-tion, especially for women. A man was discussing this point with his wife, "But, George," she said plaintively, "I never take a personal view of things, do I?"

The sum and substance of woman's suffrage is the question, Is it for the good of all, irrespective of the individual? If it is, then we should have suffrage. Suffrage has not made the individual man-independent nor will it have that really undesired affect on women, but it does give a man a say.

The Auto's Patron Saint. St. Christopher, the patron saint of pilots and seamen, is to be the patron of the modern automobile as well. of the modern automobile as well. The pope of Rome presented a beautiful-miniature of St. Christopher, painted by Di Lorenzi, to the Princess Colonna, grand-daughter of Mrs. John Mackay. The princeus, when presented to the pope, said that she had traveled from Milan in an auto. The pope replied that he must send her a picture of St. Christopher to insure her safe return. That is how the fad started, and now all smart autos have a picture of this patron saint.
